PLAN TO SPEED UPTURN IS GIVEN ROOSEVELT O. K.

1926 Levels Goal of Efforts.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 28.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt, it was learned tonight, has given his approval to a program that he believes will assure the country a permanent recovery of the prosperity which is daily showing increasing signs of returning.

In brief the plan envisages the restoration of the purchasing power of consumers through manipulation upward of commodity prices and wages to some such pre-depression level as that of 1926 by means of currency inflation, if necessary, and of a planned economy in agriculture, industry and transportation.

The project involves what may prove to be a permanent abandonment of a rigid gold standard and the adoption of a system of managed money which though still based on gold may be manipulated in the interest of preserving a stable price level.

Business on Way Upward.

If the experiment proves successful more than 10 millions of the idle will find steady employment within the next two or three years, the President has been assured by his advisers.

Whether the business upturn that is materializing is due to natural causes or to anticipation of the application of the President's inflationary powers presaging higher commodity prices, there is no gainsaying the fact that the revival is here.

Perhaps, as many hold, the impetus to recovery was imparted by restoration of beer or by the sudden rise of wheat prices due to crop shortage just as previous depressions have been ended by fortuitous events—the discovery of gold in California in the forties, crop failures abroad in the seventies, more gold discoveries in the nineties.

Mr. Roosevelt is not wasting any time on the question of how it has come about. What is engaging the attention of the President and his counselors is the problem of accelerating a recovery which otherwise might be extremely slow in developing.

Credit Expansion Being Tried.

Acceleration is now being attempted through the expansion of credit. The federal reserve banks have begun large scale purchases of government obligations, the result of which is to increase the volume of funds at the disposal of member banks for loans to industry.

Whether this move proves successful remains to be seen. It failed last year, although the reserve banks purchased more than a billion dollars' worth of government securities. Either industry would not borrow or the banks would not loan, or both, and as a result money failed to achieve that velocity which is essential to raising commodity prices.

Credit expansion will avail naught unless there is business activity to be financed. Mr. Roosevelt purposes to accelerate business activity tremendously within a few weeks by means of his 3 billion 300 million public works construction program.

To finance these grants to the states and municipalities for public works of all sorts government bonds will be issued. The bonds will be sold to the public as Liberty bonds were during the war, and to the reserve banks. The result will be the kind of inflation that took place in 1917 and 1918.

Outright Inflation if Necessary.

These measures are relied upon to raise commodity prices to the level at which the present volume of private debts was contracted. By inflation the dollar is to be cheapened to enable the debtor to pay his debts. If these measures prove inadequate to restore the price level desired the President will resort to outright currency inflation under the terms of the Thomas amendment.

Mr. Roosevelt is confident that any extensive currency inflation attempted can be controlled. He is authorized by the act to issue greenbacks up to an aggregate of 3 billions, which would be retired at the rate of 4 per cent a year.

The danger of inflation lies in the failure to exercise control. If the brakes are properly applied inflation can be held within bounds. Mr. Roosevelt has given assurances that he intends to proceed cautiously in the matter of inflation and to keep the brakes on at all times. He has said there is to be no resort to "printing press" money.

The emergency brake, which can be

KANSAS CITY'S MANAGER GETS DAUGHTER BACK

She Says Kidnapers Gave Flowers.

Kansas City, Mo., May 28.—[Special.]—Miss Mary McElroy, 26 year old daughter of the city manager of Kansas City, was safe in her home tonight after being held captive by a band of extremely polite kidnapers.

Her father paid $30,000 ransom to masked men, whom he met on a lonely road in Wyandotte county, Kas., and the kidnapers, true to the pledge they gave, freed the girl two hours later at the gate of the Milburn Golf club, near here. This was seventeen hours after she had been seized in her home.

The men had told the father they wanted the two hours so that they might examine the money to see that it was neither counterfeit nor so marked that it might be identified.

The whole affair appears to be a bizarre mixture of crime, faith in promises and faith in keeping them, and a friendly spirit between captors and captive. Even the father, when negotiating for the release of the daughter, dealt with the gang as if conducting an ordinary business transaction.

An Enjoyable Kidnaping.

"They were very attentive to me," said the girl after her release. "They gave me roses and a detective story to read. In the basement room in which they held me they placed a radio, an electric fan, easy chairs and a comfortable bed on which they had spread clean linen.

"I slept well all night. It did me good to get away. I had a good rest and I needed it. And I learned things about gangs while I was gone. They even showed me how a machine gun works.

"After they had talked to father this morning one of the men came to me and said: 'You have a wonderful father and I am going to meet his terms. I think he has been doing a fine job in Kansas City trying to put men to work. But why should a man work for $2 a day?'"

She added the gang praised her behavior and said: "We would be glad to recommend you as a victim to other kidnapers." They asked for her card to have in readiness to offer to other would-be kidnapers.

Later Miss McElroy said she was confined in the basement with a handcuff locked about her left wrist and chained to the wall.

Expect to Steal Child.

The kidnapers apparently knew very little about Miss McElroy. They appeared at the residence yesterday morning. When Miss Heda Christensen, the housekeeper, answered the door bell, two men said they were agents of a cosmetic company and wanted to make a delivery of goods. Another man waited in a sedan in front of the house.

Miss Christensen refused to unlock the screen door. The two callers then drew guns and threatened to kill her.

Once admitted, the two men demanded to know "where the little girl" was, apparently thinking Miss McElroy was a child.

Miss Christensen said the only daughter of the house was a grown woman and that she was taking a bath. The two men ran up the stairs, pounded on the bathroom door and demanded Miss McElroy dress. She entered the adjoining bedroom through another door, dressed leisurely, and then came out to face the armed men.

Again Show Surprise.

Their surprise at finding Miss McElroy was not a child was plain, the housekeeper said, even before one remarked to the other, "Why, she's a grown woman."

They apparently had not believed the housekeeper.

The men protested because Miss McElroy had put on a bright dress and fawn coat, but she refused to change, saying she was going to the races and had "several hot tips."

"We'll play them for you later," the men promised her. The kidnapers took the girl to the car with them after telling the housekeeper Miss McElroy would not be harmed if she did as told and that they would get in touch with her father shortly.

But they told Miss Christensen that if she or the girl's father appealed to the police or the newspapers the girl would be killed.

Miss McElroy said the men told her to write her father that the ransom would be $60,000, and that she replied laughingly she was worth more than

THE LOSS OF A GOOD SHIP

Pay 3 Million U. S. Beer Tax in Milwaukee

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., May 28. — [Special.]—Seven weeks of lawful sale of beer have brought the federal beer tax at the Milwaukee internal revenue office almost to $3,000,000 and at current prices have produced nearly $9,000,000 in sales by Milwaukee brewers to be distributed through employés and purchases of supplies to the channels of general trade.

The figures are based on more than 570,000 barrels of beer on which taxes have been paid. The legalization of beer in its first seven weeks has brought $14,000 to the city of Milwaukee for tavern and retailers' licenses.

Will Mean More Revenue.

This quick tax return more than justifies President Roosevelt in urging all states to take prompt action in repealing the 18th amendment, local tax students said.

Reports at the office of A. H. Wilkinson, internal revenue collector at Milwaukee, show $2,850,000 paid since April 7 for beer stamps levied at the rate of $5 per barrel. In addition, the special wholesalers' tax to date has netted $7,500, the retailers' tax $50,000, and the brewers' tax $13,500. These special taxes permit sales only up to July 1 and must be renewed at the yearly rate. This will mean additional revenue at that time.

The figures show taxes have been paid on 570,000 barrels since the advent of beer. The special taxes disclose that 600 wholesalers, 45 breweries, and more than 10,000 retailers have paid their fee to participate in the sale in the state of Wisconsin. At the published price of $16 a barrel, the total sales of these breweries alone for this period exceed $9,000,000.

City Gets Slice of Melon.

The city likewise has received a slice of this new beer "tax melon." The city treasurer's office reports that the license fees from taverns for the first seven weeks of operation total $12,500 in addition to $1,420 in fees from grocers and druggists handling beer. These licenses will also have to be renewed on July 1. The fees from 250 taverns were $50 each and the 142 retailers paid at a $10 rate. A number of additional applications for licenses are still be acted upon by the common council.

Porto Rican Rain Keeps Churchgoers Extra Hour

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, May 28.—Four inches of rain fell in two hours here today, stopping street car traffic and stalling hundreds of automobiles. Many people remained in the churches for more than an hour after the morning services before venturing out.

75 POLICE STAGE MANHUNT WITH FLARES AND GUNS

Using flares and spotlights, 75 state highway, county highway, and suburban policemen were scouring the prairies in and near North Riverside early this morning in a search for two fugitive gunmen. Two other men, one slightly wounded, who had been with the fugitives, were nabbed, one of them by means of the flares.

Shortly before midnight State Highway Policemen John Jakovec and Edward Emond gave chase to four men in an automobile, later found to have been stolen, at Cermak and Mannheim roads, Westchester. At 1st avenue and 23d street, North Riverside, the pursued car stopped. Three men jumped out and ran into the prairie. The fourth one, James Panico, 30 years old, 2859 North Keating avenue, remained in the car.

Policemen Emond and Jakovec fired at the three men and were fired upon in return. Police reinforcements were called. Flares were brought into use. An hour later Roy Perotti, 19 years old, 1240 South 51st avenue, Cicero, revealed by the flares, was found in a weed patch. He had been grazed on the head by police buckshot.

Panico and Perotti denied any wrongdoing. They said they had met the missing men in a Cicero poolroom. In the car in which they had been riding police found two revolvers. Police said one of the guns resembled the revolver stolen on April 29 from Police Chief George Wahlstedt of Westchester in a robbery on the Lilac grill, Hillside, in which Mrs. John Raleigh, wife of the fire commissioner of Cicero, was shot in the wrist.

Gale Menaces Roosevelt and Yacht Guests

Washington, D. C., May 28.—(AP)—It was revealed tonight that President Roosevelt and his guests rode out one of the most severe storms that has struck the Potomac river in recent years and battled the waves for more than an hour in an atmosphere of real concern.

The storm, accompanied by lightning and wind of almost gale force, struck the Sequoia, government yacht, last night about 8 o'clock far down the Potomac.

The small, trim craft rolled and tossed in the battle with the storm. Dinner, which was being served at the time, was interrupted. The table was quickly deserted by the guests.

Roosevelt Unalarmed.

Mr. Roosevelt himself is an expert navigator. He had with him, of course, an able captain. Neither the President nor the captain would admit tonight of any alarm or real danger, but their view was not wholly shared by some of the others who were aboard the Sequoia.

Complete darkness added to the difficulties in fighting the storm, but fortunately the river at that point was wide and straight.

In the opinion of several of those aboard, the Sequoia was at the mercy of the wind and rain for a while, but after a contest of about 40 minutes the situation was declared safer.

Guests Admit Fright.

The President, who is a lover of the seas and a veteran in handling water craft, was inclined to make light of the incident tonight. His guests had complete confidence in him, but some admitted that they were rather frightened at the time. James Roosevelt Jr., eldest son of the President, and his wife joined the party on the cruise, arriving by seaplane early this morning to board the yacht.

Other guests who boarded the Sequoia last night at Quantico, Va., with the President included Secretary and Mrs. Woodin and Rear Admiral and Mrs. Cary T. Grayson.

The yacht docked at the navy yard here shortly before 9 o'clock tonight and the party on board rode directly to the White House.

Train Kills Man Who Fell from Elevated Platform

John Duff, 55 years old, 6964 Sheridan road, a chef, was killed last night when he fell from the platform of the Bryn Mawr avenue elevated station and was run over by a southbound train. Motorman Owen O'Malley, 5146 Eddy street, said he had no chance to stop the train in time. Police said it was possible that Duff fainted and fell just as the train approached.

Officials' Pay Cut, Road Gets R. F. C. Loan

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 28.—[Special.]—Officers of railroads and other corporations will have to scale down their salaries as a condition of obtaining loans from the Reconstruction Finance corporation. That new policy was announced today by Chairman Jesse Jones of that federal credit agency.

Legislation aimed at the same purpose is now pending before a committee of the senate. Without waiting for its enactment, Mr. Jones said, a loan has just been made to the Southern Pacific railroad premised on substantial reductions in the salaries of the higher paid officers and employés.

Rate of Reduction.

In the meantime, however, schedule of salary reductions has been prescribed by the Reconstruction Finance corporation. That schedule applies to the Southern Pacific and all future loans, as follows:

Salaries exceeding $100,000 must be reduced 60 per cent; $50,000 to $100,000 must be reduced 50 per cent; $25,000 to $50,000, 40 per cent; $15,000 to $25,000, 15 per cent; $4,800 to $10,000, 10 per cent. All reductions may include slashes already made.

Mr. Jones said deductions of approximately 25 per cent already had been made in the salaries of the higher paid officers of the Southern Pacific.

If congress passes the pending legislation, Mr. Jones explained, officers of the Southern Pacific have agreed to make effective, as of June 1, 1933, whatever limitation congress imposes.

Loans Exceed 2 Billions.

Meanwhile the Reconstruction Finance corporation announced total cash outlays of $2,448,710,246 in the fifteen months of its operation. Of that amount approximately one-fifth, or $511,844,713, had been repaid by May 22.

Advanced by the secretary of agriculture to farmers for crop loans	$ 107,650,571
To banks, trust companies, railroads, and other financial institutions under original Reconstruction Finance corporation act	1,875,116,624
To 42 states and 2 territories for emergency relief	278,982,670
Repayments included:
By farmers on crop loans	$ 20,766,113
By banks, railroads, and other financial institutions	485,011,921

Still More Billions.

The finance corporation, it was stated, stated, under emergency legislation passed at the current special session of congress, has specific borrowing power up to 4 billion 100 million dollars, in addition to its initial capitalization of 500 million dollars. In addition unlimited and indefinite borrowing power was granted in the emergency bank legislation passed on the first day of the session and in the farm relief-farm refinancing inflation bill enacted several weeks ago.

PILOT PASSES OUT; PASSENGER LANDS AIRPLANE

Hartford, Conn., May 28.—(AP)—An airplane passenger who never had handled a plane before brought a ship safely to earth today while the pilot lay unconscious garroted by his silk scarf that had twisted in the propeller.

The pilot, Frederick T. Hawes of West Hartford, was flying at 1,000 feet with Sam Levin, the passenger, when his scarf became entangled in the whirling propeller.

As the scarf tightened about his neck Hawes shut off the motor before he slumped down unconscious in the cockpit. Although he had never before landed a plane, Levin tore the stick from the pilot's hand and guided the ship to a safe landing.

Hawes was given treatment at the Hartford hospital for a burned and lacerated neck and then released.

GANDHI BREAKS HIS 21 DAY FAST; NEAR EXHAUSTION

POONA, India, May 29 [Monday.]—(AP)—The Mahatma Gandhi, Indian leader, at 8:30 a. m. [2:20 a. m., Chicago daylight time] today broke his three weeks' protest fast against "untouchability."

The Indian leader, who started May 8 his abstinence from food as a protest against "untouchability," began his day of silence at noon yesterday. At the end of the day of silence he broke his fast. The board of doctors attending the Mahatma issued the following bulletin yesterday afternoon, hours before the fast ended:

"Despite extreme exhaustion Gandhi is holding his ground and his general condition warrants us in feeling confident he will successfully survive his ordeal. Nevertheless we shall be relieved when his fast ends tomorrow."

SUNDAY THRONG VIEWS MARVELS OF WORLD'S FAIR

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

With the opening ceremonies out of the way and five months ahead of it as host to the world, A Century of Progress Exposition settled down yesterday to something like normal life.

On Saturday the paid admissions totaled 170,000 and the total attendance was estimated at well over 200,000. Such an attendance will be handled with ease henceforth, but on the opening day it seemed large. It was large for an opening day, compared with other expositions, and the crowd taxed some of the untried facilities. Steps to improve these facilities were well started as the second day of the Exposition began.

Yesterday's attendance, of course, was not as great as that of the opening day. Chilly weather and a light fall of rain during the evening cut down the night crowds which on Saturday had surged through the grounds. The total attendance for the two days was put at about 260,000.

Exhibits Fascinate Throngs.

For the leisurely and comfortable Sunday afternoon throng that wandered down the Avenue of Colors and Flags and gathered in fascinated groups along the 82 miles of exhibit corridors the Exposition began to unfold its manifold wonders and to open new areas of consciousness, both as to the world that has been and the world that may be.

This is typified best, perhaps, in the dignified and beautiful reception room of the Ohio room in the Hall of States, where in a great mural a pioneer and his wife sit before the fireplace of their log cabin and in the clouds above them see the dream of a great city. In the New York hall nearby the picture of this city may be seen in enormous photographs of the Empire State building and Radio City.

The Exposition itself came from such a dream, and now the years of work behind it, the accomplishments and hopes of science, intimations of the use of power such as were given in the use of the ray from Arcturus, rush from every corner and build conceptions and stir imaginations as they have not been stirred in many dark years.

Colors Banish Gloom.

There is something daring in the colors that chase away gloom. Education pops out from every booth—illustration of how the radio works, in cathode-ray tubes of sea green tint; music in the air, coming out of tall boxes on poles; the oscilloscope, where speech and music are seen as well as heard; inverted speech, illusions of voices whispering in your ears. This world of science is a ghost world, where reality is invisible, incredible, but true.

There is much to be done at the Exposition, but so much ready to see now that there seems no hurry about presenting any more marvels. Behind closed doors, however, the workers are preparing new exhibits and new pleasures. There are bare places where grass and trees will come in a few days. There are rough spots, but these are being ironed out.

Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, general manager, and other officials were well satisfied yesterday with the operating efficiency of this vast new machine. In view of the great attendance on opening day they view the Exposition as an assured success.

Many Problems Solved.

Problems which developed the first day were straightened out. These ranged all the way from orders to slow down the driving speed of ambulances to speeding up the bus transportation. Work was begun on the building of another bus route on the easterly side of Northerly island, as it was found that the existing route is insufficient.

The weather was cool yesterday, sunshine alternating with overcast skies. Those who became tired of walking and looking at things varied the day with a trip on the lagoon, where gondolas and speedboats plied, or took a bus ride through the Enchanted island, or sat in a comfortable wheel chair and let a college boy tell them about things.

The land of the children's paradise seemed to have a great attraction for their elders. They were seen in the spook houses, in the toy railroads, dining in the tavern where "this little pig goes to market." They lingered in front of the store of colored marbles, watched the baby bears, the monkeys, and smiled to see Little Red Riding Hood again.

The managers of the New York state exhibit were congratulating themselves on the rescue of their realistic Adirondack bog from the too anxious cleaners and truckers. They had been at great pains and expense to transport here moss and old tree stumps, rocks, and ferns from the mountain wilderness of their state.

When orders were given the night before the opening to clear away all rubbish some one saw these old rolling tree stumps and piles of dirt and stone and green things and promptly ordered them out of the way. The frantic New Yorkers had to follow the trucks to the dumping ground to get their bog back. Now it is all in place, with a pool of stagnant water and everything exceedingly realistic. One might get lost there, only the lake is just a few feet away.

The Indians were making their camping grounds neat. Crowds leaned over the fences and watched them at their household duties near the south end of the grounds. The women were preparing food and the children were playing in the sand as though they had lived there always. The old bucks smoked and looked gloomily upon the world.

Mayan Temple Merges Into Fair.

The Mayan temple, and its colored terraces and weird figures, seems enough like the futuristic architecture of portions of the Fair to be a part of that, instead of an example of the glories of an extinct civilization. The Dairy building, for instance, and parts of the Temple of Science, as well as some of the more modern dwellings of the Hopi Indians, merge together without that violent contrast which the changing years and the proud claims of today might seem to imply.

The Florida gardens were coming into life on the west bank of the island and fruit trees that were planted here only a few weeks ago were shedding their blossoms like snow on the new grass laid in tell-tale squares. There were spots of quiet but these were to be found chiefly in the buildings. Such a place is the Ohio building, where we come again for rest and meditation, finding on a panel there this lesson for today:

"Back of all progress in human affairs must lie some one's dream—a constant and determined vision of the days and years ahead. Without undue heroics as to her pioneers, Ohio takes pleasure in honoring the men and the women who, through frugalities, hardship, and frequent suffering led early America onward. May we of today face the problem of our future with an equal fortitude—with as cheerful but unflinching an initiative and resourcefulness."

San Francisco in Miniature.

California was a center of interest, with Miss Mildred Clemens, niece of Mark Twain, as official hostess for San Francisco, explaining the panorama of that city to admiring crowds all afternoon. With infinite detail thousands of buildings in perfect miniature have been set into this scene by the Golden Gate, and residents are able almost to pick out their own houses and office buildings.

The Hall of Science, vast central heart of the Exposition, with enough education on tap to form a liberal college course, was the scene of several lectures and motion picture exhibits during the day. The molecular theory of matter was explained, the early experiments of Michael Faraday shown. There was an introduction to the study of magnetics, a lecture on electromagnetism, and the characteristics of sound. The acoustical exhibit of the Bell Telephone company was a big attraction.

There were plays at the Enchanted island theater, a program from the string choir of the symphony orchestra, a marionette show, music on the Deagan carillon, and an Italian fiesta in the evening.

Similar entertainment is to be provided today and every day.

CROWD IN CUBS PARK APPLAUDS QUEEN OF FAIR

For a few minutes yesterday the Queen of the Fair and her court of honor took the spotlight temporarily away from Chicago's Cubs at Wrigley field. Applause rolled like a wave through grandstand and bleachers as the throng witnessing the double header between the Cubs and the Boston Braves glimpsed the file of pretty girls streaming into a block of boxes in the lower tier, and realized that the Queen and her entourage had arrived.

Nodding and smiling about her at the crowd, blonde Lillian Anderson of Racine, Quene of the Exposition and winner of the $5,000 grand prize offered by THE TRIBUNE and fifteen other papers, acknowledged the gay salutes. Then she settled down with her fifty companions and their seven counselors to watch the National League brand of baseball. The game was one of the popular features on their program, with the girls.

Girls Enjoy Themselves.

Rested and refreshed after the tension of the opening of A Century of Progress, the girls were ready to enjoy themselves thoroughly, and they did.

Last night, grouped about their tables at dinner in the Empire room of the Palmer house, where Mrs. Gertrude Loys Hoffman was hostess to the party, the girls relaxed still further under the glow of soft lights, a leisurely meal, and the music of the orchestra. Escorts and dancing had been omitted for this occasion, the court congregating for an informal reception in the foyer of the grand ballroom soon after arrival from the game.

Excellent dancers themselves, the girls had an opportunity to do a little applauding on their own account when Veloz and Yolanda, lately arrived in Chicago, took the floor for an exhibition of the tango. The teamwork of the Merriel Abbott troupe also came in for an ovation frrom the Queen's party, some of whom are dexterous in clogging and tap dancing as well as in ballroom technique.

From the Palmer house the girls were taken last evening to the Chicago theater, where they witnessed the "World's Fair" stage production and saw Fredric March, Carol Lombard, and others in "The Eagle and the Hawk."

A Versatile English Girl.

One of the girls most interested in the hotel and theater shows was petite Vera Fleck of London, who displays a surprising versatility of accomplishments. Vera is a home girl, living in the outskirts of London, is an all around athlete and an expert needlewoman. Part of the wardrobe she brought to America is her own design and make. She is also a dancer and singer of talent.

Vera did not come to Chicago an entire stranger on her initial trip to this country. By a coincidence, she is a next door neighbor in London of the family of Victor Poole, brother of Ernest Poole of Evanston. She will remain for a few days' visit in Chicago with the Pooles after the entertainment program for the court is finished.

Another popular member of the court is Mary Rose Johnson of Chicago, tall, statuesque blonde. Mary Rose is an orphan whose father, Bror Johnson, was the central figure nineteen years ago in one of the tragedies of the Chicago police force. He was shot to death by a holdup man.

THE TRIBUNE announced a $500 reward for the arrest of the murderer, who was never identified or captured, and raised a fund of $2,700 to be turned over to Mary Rose, then a baby. Her mother died suddenly not long afterward.

Attend Church Services.

After dancing through the midnight hour on Saturday in the Urban room of the Congress hotel, most of the girls were up and about early yesterday at their various hotels, and the majority elected to attend church services. One group went to old St. Mary's at 9th street and Wabash avenue, and was thrilled to discover that they were participating in the celebration of the church's 100th anniversary, with Cardinal Mundelein presiding.

Most of this morning will be spent photographing the girls singly and collectively. They will visit the Field museum and A Century of Progress this afternoon, and will have dinner tonight at Old Heidelberg inn. Their day will be ended at the Palace theater, where they will see James Dunn in person and on the screen, Venita Gould impersonating screen stars, the dance quartet of Adler and Bradford, and George Beatty, monologuist.

Prepare for Cellophane Ball.

Reservations for the Cellophane ball, which will be one of the most brilliant features of the court's program, are coming in rapidly, it was announced yesterday by executives of the Drake hotel, where the ball will be held Wednesday night. Among those who have reserved tables are Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Mrs. Howard Linn, Mrs. Archibald Freer, Mrs. Loring Coleman and Mrs. Sidney Heap.

FAIR DEDICATES PANTHEON, HUGE WAR MEMORIAL

BY EARL MULLIN.

With a roll of drums and fanfare of trumpets in a martial setting reminiscent of the stirring scenes in which it was conceived, the Pantheon, World War memorial, was officially dedicated yesterday afternoon on the Midway at A Century of Progress.

Col. Francis E. Drake, president of Pershing hall in Paris, spoke for the American Expeditionary forces, and delivered an appreciation of the huge war painting. C. Wayland Brooks, former assistant state's attorney, represented the American Legion in the ceremony. Rene Wallier, French consul general in Chicago, and his aids were among the guests of honor.

Twelve Nurses Take Part.

Twelve Red Cross nurses, testifying to the part acted by women during the war, stood at attention with troops from the United States army encampment, while the flag was raised. A Gregory Pincus of Paris, who brought the gigantic war painting to Chicago for exhibition, was host to Fair officials.

The 8th infantry band played during the reception preceding the dedication and accompanied Kathleen Downs, who sang the national anthem at the conclusion of the flag raising.

Pershing hall, headed by Col. Drake, will participate in the proceeds of the concession, it was announced. The Hall, called by Myron T. Herrick, former United States ambassador to France, "the second American embassy in Paris," is the European home of all American military organizations and of many fraternal orders.

What the Pantheon Is.

The Pantheon, housed in an appropriate building in almost the center of the Exposition grounds, is a painting 402 feet long and 45 feet high. It depicts battlefield scenes of France and Belgium during the war, and presents a foreground of six thousand portraits of national heroes, both men and women, who served during the war.

The painting represents the work of 128 artists over a four year period. The artists were headed by Pierre Carrier-Belleuse and Francois Gorguet. Twenty-eight nations are represented in the painting. Packed for shipment to the Exposition, the painting and its crating weighed twelve and a half tons.

"It is, indeed appropriate," Mr. Brooks said, "that this war memorial should be placed on exhibition in Chicago, which furnished so many notable men and women to the war. It is of great significance to every American who had a part in that conflict."

FALL PROVES FATAL.

World's Fair Notes

Whistler's painting, "Mother," one of the most famous art pieces in the world, will reach Chicago this afternoon for exhibition in the World's Fair art show. Arriving from Columbus, O., over the Pennsylvania lines at 4:15 p. m., the painting will be officially greeted by Chauncey McCormick, chairman of the Fair art committee, and a group of leading citizens and Fair officials. A detail of soldiers will accompany the painting to the Art Institute on Michigan avenue where a program will be presented. The painting is the property of the Louvre at Paris, and is insured for $500,000.

Jake Bouslara, cashier of the Streets of Cairo, is missing with $15 in American money and $3,000 in French money from the concession, but the concession is operating just the same.

Rigid enforcement of Exposition regulations excluding automobiles from the grounds during the hours the Fair is open, was demanded yesterday by Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, general manager. From now on even officials of the Exposition will make necessary tours of inspection by bus or boat.

Five men arrested by the Fair's special police Saturday while selling stolen or fraudulent tickets outside the main gate will be arraigned this morning at 9:30 o'clock in the Boys' court. They are Ben Schulman and Joseph Chase, both of Detroit; Abe Kominsky, 3819 Lexington street; Sam Miller, 10230 South Central Park avenue, and Louis King, 949 Wilson avenue.

The first mass for Roman Catholics on the Exposition grounds was held yesterday morning at 9 o'clock in the railway chapel car maintained by the Catholic Extension society, at 16th street. Msgr. Eugene J. McGuinness conducted the services.

Charles Doering, head of the concern bearing his name, which is exhibiting its dairy products machinery at the World's Fair, lays claim to being the oldest manufacturer in point of service in Chicago, having been a partner in the concern for 53 years. Mr. Doering is only 61 years old, but he was formally made a partner in the business by his father, founder of the company, in 1880, when he was 8 years old.

A demonstration showing how light from the star Arcturus illuminated the fair grounds for the first time Saturday, was given last night in the court of the Hall of Science. The demonstration was presented for Sunday visitors who did not have the opportunity to witness Saturday night ceremonies.

TROOPS FINISH THEIR DRILLING FOR WAR SHOW

Military Tournament Opens Tomorrow.

More than 800 infantrymen, cavalrymen, artillerymen and members of anti-aircraft units of the regular army held their final drill yesterday morning for the military tournament which will open tomorrow evening in Soldiers' field.

This evening the troops will go through a dress rehearsal for the war show in Soldiers' field. The units are encamped within the Fair grounds, in a regular military field establishment, called Camp John Whistler, just north of 31st street.

Officers reported that their men, hardened by their march to the Fair grounds camp and by the four hours' drill which they have put in daily since they arrived, are in superb physical condition for the difficult maneuvers which they will go through nightly during the tournament.

The infantry battalion has been trained to machine-like precision in the execution of a silent manual of arms, done without spoken commands. Crack artillery units will roll their guns and caissons through a fantastic and difficult "fire May-pole dance."

Members of the 14th cavalry will present a varied program of equestrian feats. This will include circus riding on two and three horses abreast, human pyramids formed on the backs of galloping steeds, monkey drill and mounted gymnastics.

The exhibition will be brought to a close each evening by a spectacular event entitled the Battle of Cantigny, which will be accompanied by brilliant fireworks displays.

Admissions have been reduced below the levels of last year, and the highest priced seats will cost only half as much as they did at the Washington bicentennial tournament. There will be no reserved seats this year, and general admission to Soldiers' field will be good for any seat in the huge stadium.

PUBLIC VEHICLES RUSH CROWDS TO FAIR; NO JAMS

Tribune Reporter Tests Various Services.

BY HAL FOUST.

Private automobiles, buses, street cars, elevated trains, Illinois Central trains, airplanes, and speedboats carried the Sunday visitors to the World's Fair without congestion. In another month it is estimated that these facilities will carry as many as 700,000 a day without undue delays. The fair administration anticipates a gradual growth in daily attendance until July, a popular month for vacations and a month that will see many large conventions in the city.

A TRIBUNE reporter yesterday checked the various means of transportation to A Century of Progress Exposition to get some idea of their relative efficiency and cost to the public.

Quick Service by Street Car.

A Cottage Grove street car was boarded at Wabash avenue and Madison streets at 4:35 p. m. In ten minutes, Roosevelt road was reached. To leave the car there would involve a walk of about three-fourths of a mile, over the 11th street viaduct, to the entrance of the Fair grounds near the Shedd aquarium. In ten minutes and thirty seconds from Madison street the street car was at 18th street and Indiana avenue, two short blocks from the passerelle carrying pedestrians over the I. C. tracks to the gates of the exposition. In twelve minutes and five seconds the car was at Cermak road, three short blocks from the 23d street viaduct. The time at 31st street, two blocks from a passerelle to the Fair grounds, was sixteen minutes and twenty seconds.

The street cars, with their fare of 7 cents, are expected to carry more than half the total attendance to A Century of Progress.

Fast Time by Bus.

The bus company has lines looping between Field museum and the central business district. The fare is 10 cents. Transfers from regular Chicago Motor Coach lines are honored. The reporter boarded one of these at THE TRIBUNE public service office at Dearborn and Madison streets and was at the Fair grounds in eleven and a half minutes.

The same trip was made in a taxicab belonging to one of the two companies that enjoy a virtual monopoly in Chicago. The meter, registering 25 cents for the first fifth of a mile and 10 cents for each additional two-fifths, with 10 cents for each three minutes waiting time, totaled 65 cents for the trip. The time was seven minutes and nine seconds with lucky breaks on the lights.

Later the reporter found one of the nine Capitol Taxi company cabs operating in Chicago on a temporary permit from the city council with a tariff of 15 cents for the first third of a mile and 5 cents for each additional third. The fare from THE TRIBUNE'S loop office to the Roosevelt road entrance to the Fair was 40 cents.

Eleven Minutes by Auto.

In a private car from Dearborn and Madison streets, the time was ten minutes and fifty-five seconds to a convenient position in the parking lot just east of the I. C. tracks next to the 18th street entrance to A Century of Progress. William R. Moulds, manager of this lot, announced yesterday that the rates had been changed to 75 cents for all day. THE TRIBUNE yesterday reported complaints against his former maximum charge of $1 for preferred positions in the lot.

West of the I. C. tracks, in vacant lots scattered through the neighborhood, are parking stations charging rates that are uniform with few exceptions at 50 cents for the first four hours and 10 cents for each additional hour. One operator, who asked that his name be withheld, said he wanted to charge less, but was called upon by a delegation of other operators.

Why Rate Is Higher.

Seventy per cent of the visitors from outside of Chicagoland to A Century of Progress, an estimated 2,250,000, are expected to arrive in private automobiles. Many will be from cities where parking rates range from 10 cents to a quarter. Of course, real estate and taxes are higher in Chicago, and the lot abutting the Fair grounds, with its capacity of 7,000 automobiles, has an investment of $200,000, represented by the removal of I. C. tracks, 400 carloads of cinders, ramps and passerelles. The south park board gets 5 per cent of gross receipts.

In this large parking station yesterday were many licenses from foreign states. Riding back and forth in the lanes of cars, these plates were noted: Kentucky, 2; California, 3; Colorado, 1; Florida, 2; Idaho, 1; Iowa, 6; Indiana, 36; Minnesota, 3; Missouri, 10; New Jersey, 3; Michigan, 21; Ohio, 16; Oklahoma, 1; New York, 7; Texas, 2; Wisconsin, 36; West Virginia, 1; Pennsylvania, 4; North Dakota, 1; Arizona, 3; Massachusetts, 1, and District of Columbia, 1.

A good sized army of police and guides are helping to move the traffic and they have been instructed to exercise their best manners during the Fair. At Madison and Michigan avenues, the reporter tested a South park policeman on duty by stopping his car in the middle of the street and asking how to make a left turn.

Not So Mannerly.

"Get along," the policeman yelled, "what do you think the five bridges are for?"

"I was just asking and didn't want to cause any argument," the driver replied.

"Get going, you, before I get hard," said the policeman as if he meant it.

The reporter rode the new 10 cent World's Fair service of the I. C. railroad, which parallels the Exposition grounds. Special trains are operating at intervals of about ten minutes. The running time from Randolph street to the unpainted station at Roosevelt road was five minutes, including loading time.

On the elevated, from Madison and Wells streets, the time was six minutes and five seconds to Roosevelt road but the station is about a mile from the Roosevelt road entrance to the Fair. The "L" fair is 10 cents.

Waits for Boat to Load.

A speedboat from the Michigan avenue bridge was a short and pleasant ride to the Fair grounds, but the charge was 50 cents and the reporter had to wait for fifteen minutes until the boat got a load before it started. As yet, there is no regular water taxi service to A Century of Progress, according to the man on the river front.

Inside the Fair grounds, the intramural bus service was operating efficiently yesterday after a failure on Saturday due to the roadways being jammed by cars bearing silk hatted, distinguished visitors. From now on, there will be no private automobiles permitted within the grounds except for emergency service, and few of these.

The intramural buses, long and low vehicles, seating fifty passengers and with room for forty to stand, operate for the length of the two and a half miles of exposition. The fare is 10 cents. Their right of way might be compared to an alley in ordinary city planning. Pedestrians are fenced from these rights of way in most places. The main streets of the Fair are reserved for pedestrians.

FAIR FASHION SHOW WILL BE OPENED TODAY

A dress rehearsal of the Fair Fashion Show, which will officially open today, was staged last night at the Fabst Blue Ribbon Casino. The show is under the direction of Mrs. Ford Carter. Among the patronesses are Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Mrs. A. Watson Armour, Mrs. Joseph Coleman, Mrs. Charles Swift, and Mrs. Secor Cunningham. Forty mannequins last night modeled bathing suits and gown creations as a forerunner of the show. Approximately 200 nationally known modistes, in addition to the mannequins, will present two shows a day, one at 11 a. m. and one at 3 p. m. In the evening a floor show will be given.

The disappearance of her 17 year old son, Balfe, shortly before the body was found, has resulted in a wide search for him. POLICE VAINLY SEEKING SON OF SLAIN WOMAN

Test Boy's Garments for Blood Stains.

Flint, Mich., May 28.—(AP) Every known haunt of 17 year old Balfe Macdonald was searched in vain today. The police want to question him concerning the death of his mother, Mrs. Grace B. Macdonald, 54, found murdered yesterday morning in her bedroom. Her skull was fractured by being struck with a pair of book ends.

The police learned Balfe, accompanied by another boy, William Terwilliger, 15 years old, had stopped at a gasoline station shortly after 4 a. m. Saturday not far from the Macdonald home.

The police search of the Macdonald home in Crescent road disclosed a pair of the boy's stained trousers that are being tested for blood. Inquiry is being made as to whether the boys had money and whether there was a considerable sum in the house Friday night.

A fortnight ago young Macdonald figured in a motor car accident in which a girl was injured. He explained that he had dozed at the wheel and the car ran into a ditch.

Funeral arrangements for the slain woman were awaiting the arrival of her daughter Gwenlaurie, 20 year old student at the University of Southern California.

CHICAGO POLICE JOIN HUNT.

Chicago police were ordered yesterday to be on the lookout for Balfe MacDonald of Flint, Mich. It was said he may be headed for the Century of Progress exposition. Balfe is described as 5 feet 4 inches tall, weight 120 pounds, blue eyes, brown hair, bridge work in mouth, and as wearing a dark steel-grey suit. William Terwilliger is described as 5 feet 8 inches tall, brown eyes, fair complexion, thin face. The car in which they left Flint is a coupe with Michigan license G-7036.

Names of the winners in "Seals of the States" contest will appear Tuesday, May 30

TRANSPORT LINES DO BIG BUSINESS ON FAIR'S 1ST DAY

Transportation companies reported a heavy increase in passenger business throughout Saturday, the first day of the Fair.

"The surface lines carried 150,000 more passengers Saturday than ordinarily," said B. H. Evenson, superintendent of transportation. "The average Saturday total is 2,000,000."

The Rapid Transit lines showed a traffic 15 per cent above normal for Saturday, according to Harry G. Hardin, general superintendent of transportation. From 6 a. m. Saturday until 1 a. m. Sunday, an average of 60 trains an hour—one a minute—were operated into the "L" stations at Roosevelt road, Cermak road, and 18th street.

Garrett T. Seeley, vice president and general manager of the Chicago Motor Coach company, reported Saturday's business as the best in a long time. There were 30,000 more fares than on the day previous. One hundred extra coaches were pressed into service and scores of old employés were returned to work, Mr. Seeley said.

Results of yesterday's business will be reported.

Houghton, Mich., May 28.—[Special.]—The coast guard cutter Crawford arrived here this afternoon with 118 persons saved from the steamer George M. Cox of Chicago, which broke its back yesterday on a reef off Isle Royale, in northern Lake Superior.

Thirty-two passengers and 86 members of the crew were rescued by the cutter from a lonely lighthouse on a nearby reef, where they took refuge after the ship struck.

The vessel, a 30 year old craft formerly known as the Puritan, is a total loss, according to its owner, George M. Cox, New Orleans barge line operator. He purchased the Puritan and renamed it recently, and the vessel was on its maiden voyage at the time of the disaster.

Four Persons Injured.

Cox, four members of the crew, including one woman, who were injured, and the ship's nurse were taken to Fort William, Ont., by the M. S. Tremaine, one of several ships which hastened to the aid of the stricken vessel in response to radio calls.

Mrs. Donald Blair and her son Jim of Evanston were among those rescued. Chicagoans aboard the vessel were Mary Thurston, Gretta Morgan, Theresa Boyd, Ruth Talley, Dick Warren, Herbert Davern, Henry Biederman, W. C. Zoeller, W. Miles, William Gilbert, Philip Wheeler, George Le Roy, Marion Polton, Mrs. C. F. Bloker, Rachel Bloker, Mrs. W. C. Zoeller, Millicent Ryan, J. S. Pederson and C. F. Bloker.

A graphic description of the wreck was given there by the nurse, Miss Adeline Keeling. The ship was traveling at 17 knots in a heavy fog when it struck, she said.

Nurse Tells of Crash.

"There was one heavy thud, followed by a series of crashes," said Miss Keeling. "The passengers were at dinner at the time. I saw a heavy buffet slide across the floor and crash into tables and a partition. I was thrown against a door and stunned. The stewardess, Beatrice Cote, helped me to my feet and was herself knocked down in the second crash. Her back was injured.

"There was no panic, but the steamer listed heavily to port, and the passengers and crew rushed to starboard. It was impossible to lower the starboard boats because of the list of the vessel, but the port boats were lowered and ferried us all to the lighthouse."

The reef on which the vessel crashed is known as the Rock of Ages. Nearby is a lighthouse, separated by a short stretch of open water from the rocks which the steamer struck. John Soldenski, the light keeper, heard the crash and hurried to the steamer in a motorboat. He helped tow the lifeboats and rafts to the bare reef on which his lighthouse is situated.

Spend Night on Reef.

There the crew and passengers, who were the guests of Owner Cox on the initial run of the ship under its new management, spent a chilly and uncomfortable night. There was not room for all of them inside the light tower and they took turns inside to warm themselves, spending the rest of the time huddled on the bare rocks outside.

At dawn the castaways were taken to Washington Harbor on Isle Royale.

Capt. Ralph Whitehouse of the Crawford was at Two Harbors, Minn., with his craft when he got the flash of the wreck. He set out for Isle Royale immediately, driving his vessel at top speed in the darkness and through the fog which had brought disaster to the George M. Cox, and arrived during the night. He picked up all of the passengers and crew who had not been taken to Fort William after they had had breakfast, and started the 60 mile voyage to Houghton.

Steamer Is Total Loss.

The steamer is a total wreck, it was reported by the crew of the tug Strathmore, which visited the scene today.

The injured were all hurt when the vessel struck. Besides Mrs. Cote, who lives in Manistee, Mich., they are John Gancarz, Freesoil, Mich.; Alex Mack, Portland, Me., and George Williams. Mrs. Cote was the most seriously injured.

REEFS MENACE SHIPS ON SUPERIOR NEAR COX WRECK SCENE

Washington Harbor, an island of the Isle Royale group, where the overnight castaways of the George M. Cox were taken after being rescued off the Rock of Ages, is about one-half mile west of that rock. It is owned by Mrs. E. H. Jung, 5229 Winthrop avenue, and her family, who maintain a summer resort on its eastern end. The point of the island nearest the Rock of Ages is uninhabited.

"Shipwrecks might easily occur in the Rock of Ages region," said Mrs. Jung last night. "There are many reefs, some of them uncharted. New reefs are formed during the winter, and the region is very treacherous."

In 1928 the steamer America, out of Duluth, struck a reef near Isle Royale, about 5 miles north and east of where the George M. Cox met disaster. Its crew and passengers, numbering 45, were saved. The hull of the ship may still be seen on the reef.

2 SHIPS AGROUND OFF CALIFORNIA; 40 MEN ABOARD

Los Angeles, Cal., May 28.—(AP)—The Mackay radio station here said late tonight that two vessels, the Japanese oil tanker Nippon Maru and the lumber schooner S. S. Chehalis, were aground north of Santa Barbara.

The tanker, the station heard, went aground near Point Hondo, known among seamen as the "graveyard" of the Pacific because of the long list of disasters which have occurred on its rocky promontory. About forty men were believed aboard the tanker. There was no report of any casualties.

Two S O S calls were heard from the tanker, one at 9:20 p. m. and a second at 9:25 p. m. After that her signals faded, indicating a loss of power and the possibility of a serious accident.

The Chehalis, the station heard, was in collision with another lumber schooner, the J. D. Stetson, and was beached about four miles below Point Conception. No other details concerning the two vessels had been received.

EXPLOSION VICTIM DIES.

David Joseph, 45 years old, 1810 South 50th court, Cicero, died last night in the Mercy hospital of injuries suffered Friday in an explosion in the Edwards & Deutsch Lithographing company, 2320 South Wabash avenue.

ECUADOR SENDS PANAMA HAT EXHIBIT TO FAIR

The government of Ecuador is sending to A Century of Progress exposition a large assortment of Panama hats as its chief exhibit. It is the desire of the Central American republic to inform the world that Panama hats are made in Ecuador and not in Panama.

The hats, representing the finest examples of the toquilla fiber weaver's art, will be brought to Chicago by Dr. Francisco Banda, Ecuadorean consul-general. At present the hats are on exhibition in New Orleans. They are not for sale. The exhibit includes a new style of women's hats never before seen in this country. They are woven in a lacelike pattern.

According to Dr. Banda, American miners who went through Panama on their way to California in the gold rush of '49 bought Ecuadorean hats in Cristobal and Colon on their way across the isthmus and named them Panama hats. The misnomer stuck.

GIRL KIDNAPED; HER FATHER PAYS $30,000 RANSOM

Kansas City's Manager Is Extortion Victim.

that, saying, "That's not as much as they got for Mike Katz." She referred to the recent kidnaping of a Kansas City druggist who is reported to have paid $100,000 for his release.

At 7:15 last night a special delivery letter was received by McElroy. It was signed by his daughter. It was written on soiled paper of a cheap grade and bore her thumbprint in an upper corner.

"Dear Dad," it read, "I have been kidnaped. They are demanding $60,000. If this is reported to the police or the newspapers they will ask $100,000 and I may not be returned. You will hear later where to send it. Any letter without my thumbprint is counterfeit. We are off the gold standard, so send used currency.

"I will be released six hours after you send it. They want $20,000 in twenties, $20,000 in tens, and $20,000 in fives. If this money is marked they will harm you or Henry [the girl's brother], so be careful. They have treated me with consideration and I am not frightened."

Advises "Stay at Home."

Three hours later a second letter was received. It read:

"Stay at home Sunday. They will get in touch with you. They want the money done up in thousand dollar packages. They want nothing but used currency. When you receive information where to go, go alone in your car. If detectives follow you, you won't be met.

"The money will be checked for counterfeit and marks before I am released. If any trouble comes up after I am released they will try to avenge it. I love you."

A telephone call came this morning. "This is the gang calling," said the voice. "Can you get the money?"

"I can get $30,000," said McElroy.

"Do better than that," was the abrupt answer.

"Be reasonable," McElroy pleaded. "Men who were worth $100,000 now are worth only $10,000. There is reason to everything."

"Raise it ten," came back the voice.

"I don't see how I can," said the father. "It is difficult to explain the distress you have put me to. Do this for me—please try to do this. Let's not have a long wait until I see my daughter."

"I'll see what I can do. I'll give my word that your daughter is all right."

A second conversation two hours later resulted in an agreement to release the girl for $30,000.

Promises Are Tested.

"How do I know you will be square with us?" the kidnaper demanded of McElroy.

"Say, you don't know me, do you?" McElroy answered.

"Do you know that I never made a promise I didn't keep? When I give you my word, you are safe. There will be no trouble unless you make it."

After another hesitation the kidnaper said he would call again. He agreed to let McElroy's son accompany the father on the trip to pay the ransom.

On the third call the city manager was instructed to go to an address in Kansas City, Kas. Behind a mail box at a vacant house he found a note instructing him to go to another spot and read a note in a tin can. That note sent him to another location to find a can with a note.

That note told him where to meet the men in Wyandotte county. Obtaining the money, Mr. McElroy and his son started out, urging every one not to follow them.

Meet Four in Auto.

They met a car with four men. Two masked men, wearing overalls and carrying sawed-off shotguns, came forward. The money wrapped in a newspaper was offered the men. They hesitated to accept it because it included five $1,000 bills.

"I wish you would appreciate what I am up against," the father said. "My friends have got together to raise this money for me. You understand we cannot have just the denominations we want on such short notice. I swear to you that these bills have not been recorded and no preparations for following them up have been made."

The men took the money.

"In two hours you will hear from us," one man said. "Keep your mouth shut."

McElroy returned home and about 4 p. m. received the news that his daughter had been released and was at the golf club.

The newspapers, which learned of the girl's disappearance yesterday but had printed nothing for fear of harm to her, printed extras which were held ready, and the police squad cars were sent in search of the gang.

Girl an Honor Student.

Rockford, Ill., May 28.—(AP)—Miss Mary McElroy, victim of kidnapers at Kansas City, Mo., was an honor student at Rockford college, graduating in 1929.

During her junior year Miss McElroy was editor of the college paper the Taper, and in her senior year was president of the College Government association. She was prominent in dramatics and social activities. Miss McElroy spent her sophomore year at the University of Missouri after spending her first year in college at Rockford.

ASSESSED VALUATION OF MANHATTAN REAL ESTATE NINE BILLION

New York, May 28. — [Special.] — The new land valuation map of Manhattan, compiled by the emergency work forces of the borough president's office in the last two years, was made public today by Borough President Samuel Levy. It shows that land in this borough used for building purposes has an aggregate assessed value of nearly five and one-half billion dollars.

Manhattan real estate, including real estate of corporations, has an aggregate assessed value of $9,188,151,915 on the assessment rolls for 1933.

The highest real estate values, including properties that range from $5,000 to $9,999 and above $10,000 a front foot, are concentrated in the financial and midtown districts.

"High priced land, however, represents but a minor part of the total, comprising about 6 per cent valued at approximately 330 million dollars out of a total of five and a half billion," says the report.

Revolt Breaks Out in China; Truce With Japan in Peril as Armies Join War Lord

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, May 28.—While Chinese government officials at Nanking debated terms for a truce with the Japanese in the Peiping-Tientsin area, Gen. Feng Yu-hsiang, the "Christian general," today raised the banner of revolt. He branded Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, virtual dictator of China, as a traitor.

Gen. Feng, who announced himself as commander in chief of the "people's anti-Japanese army," circularized the nation by telegrams, calling upon all his former generals to join his cause in continued resistance to the Japanese military machine.

Calls Upon Patriots.

He demanded all true patriots to join the revolt.

"Every person who consents to make terms with the Japanese is my eternal enemy," Gen. Feng said.

His assumption of the Chinese command followed a statement in which he denounced Nanking's "lack of determination and definite plans of resistance to the Japanese." His first step was to cut the Peiping-Suiyuan railway and grab all rolling stock.

Severe fighting has broken out at Kuyan, between Kalgan and Dolon Nor, where Gen. Feng ordered the forcible disarming of troops commanded by Tang Yu Lin, former governor of Jehol, who fled to Chahar following the Jehol debacle. Gen. Feng insisted that Gen. Tang's army be disarmed within four days. The Jehol forces refused, whereupon hostilities broke out. The latest dispatches say a serious battle is in progress.

Aided by Cantonese.

It is believed that Gen. Feng is acting in closest coöperation with Canton in an effort to overthrow Gen. Chiang.

Gen. Feng's action caused government generals to hurry to a conference at Peiping.

Cutting of the railroad between Peiping and Gen. Feng's headquarters at Kalgan has increased the uneasiness in Peiping. Gen. Ho Yingchin, minister of war, has ordered generals in north China to afford special protection to foreigners.

Orders also have been issued suspending passes permitting foreigners to visit Chahar province, which is now under Gen. Feng's control.

Already Gen. Fan Chen-wu with 8,000 men about 110 miles west of Peiping has joined Gen. Feng. So has Gen. Sun Tien-ying with 32,000 men west of Dolon Nor. Yesterday Fan Chen-wu's forces battled the army of Gen. Ho Jui, who is the Chahar representative of Nanking.

Although Gen. Feng has been credited with having only a bodyguard of 3,000 men, it is now learned he has been quietly recruiting troops for more than three weeks.

Calls Truce Temporary.

Meanwhile the national government, harassed by Gen. Feng's action a l by denunciations of its policy by Cantonese leaders, issued a declaration that the Sino-Japanese truce under consideration is entirely local and of a temporary nature.

"It is not incompatible with the declared policy of continuing a sustained resistance and efforts for the recovery of lost territories," the statement said.

"It is absolutely impossible for the national government to agree to an ignominious surrender since the Manchurian issue is entirely outside the sphere of the local military truce with Peiping."

Cantonese, however, continued their charge that Nanking is selling Manchuria in order to prevent the Japanese from occupying Peiping and Tientsin. Canton charges that the proposed Peiping truce is a violation of the faith with the league of nations.

Gen. Tsai Ting-kai, commander of the 19th Route army of Shanghai battle fame, which is advancing north from Canton, is demanding continued anti-Japanese resistance. Reports from Hankow claim that Gen Ho Chien, ally of Chiang Kai-shek and governor of Hunan province, is not hindering the advance.

Reds Prepare for Attack.

Reports from Hankow state that various communist bands under the leadership of the notorious Ho Lung, a former disciple of soviet Russia, are congregating southwest of Ichang and Shasi in preparation for an attack on Chiang's forces in that area. The government troops number less than 20,000 in that region.

A late report tonight said that Wang Ching-wei, head of the executive yuan; Sun Fo, head of the legislative yuan, and other high Nanking officials, have left for Kiukiang to confer with Chiang. An unconfirmed report is that Chiang is moving 10,000 troops from Nanking up the river.

In the meantime so-called plain clothes gunmen, allegedly subsidized by interests friendly to Japan and Manchukuo, are terrorizing the region immediately around Tientsin. Numerous skirmishes are taking place.

See Hand of Russia.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

TIENTSIN, China, May 28.—Following the sudden revolt begun in North China by Gen. Feng Yu-hsiang, the "Christian general," well informed observers question whether he has an understanding with soviet Russia.

Gen. Feng, formerly the leader of the northern group of generals in the civil war with the Nanking régime, has been holding Kalgan, on the main route from Peiping to Siberia, during all the fighting in Jehol and North China.

Feng is too experienced a warrior to attempt to fight both the Japanese and also to oust Chiang Kai-shek and the Nanking government without having large supplies of arms and munitions. Thus, the question is advanced whether he has not been supplied by caravans of motor trucks coming over the old caravan route from Urga, the chief outpost of the soviet government in Mongolia.

Diplomats and strategists in the far east are convinced that Japan's campaign in North China is designed to obtain some sort of control over Peiping and Tientsin and the shores of the Gulf of Po and then to make a westward penetration from Jehol through the province of Chahar to Suiyuan. They believe the Japanese are determined to hold the western end of the Peiping-Suiyuan railway and cut off the main route of the soviet union to North China.

200 Chinese Prisoners Escape.

TOKIO, May 28.—(AP)—A Rengo [Japanese] news agency dispatch from Changchun, Manchuria, reported today that 200 Chinese prisoners, mostly political prisoners, effected a wholesale delivery from the Manchukuo jail at Changchun.

The prisoners are said to have overpowered the guards and smashed doors and windows to make their escape.

It was learned later that two of the Chinese were slain and 45 recaptured. One prison guard was killed when the break occurred.

Vater and Piaseki received severe cuts and bruises and were taken to the Chicago Memorial hospital by A Century of Progress ambulance. Fitzgerald was not injured. The men were on a 30 foot scaffolding painting when the accident happened.

TRAIN WRECKS STALLED AUTO; COUPLE KILLED

Double Tragedy at South Side Crossing.

An elderly couple, Eugene May, 81531 Yale avenue, and his wife, Mary, were killed last evening when their automobile was struck at 134th street by the Chicago bound Century of Progress flyer of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad.

The street at that point is a cinder road, little used. May apparently had turned on to it because a portion of Indiana avenue, a quarter of a mile west, was closed for repairs. The road rises to cross the elevated railroad tracks, and the only warning at the tracks is an old fashioned cross-arm sign without a signal bell or lights.

May was driving an old automobile, and it is believed that his motor stalled as he reached the top of the grade, leaving the car on the tracks in the path of the limited train. The car was crushed and carried some distance and the bodies of the couple were thrown clear of the wreckage. Both were dead when members of the train crew found them. May was 65 years old and his wife 63. They lived alone at the Yale avenue address. May was employed by the A. & P. grocery chain, and the couple had a daughter living on the west side, neighbors told police.

Woman Dead; Daughter Hurt.

Mrs. Bessie Burkett, 60 years old, of 1519 Huron street, was killed, and her daughter, Mrs. May Rasmussen, 35, of the same address, was critically injured last night in a collision between their automobile and another car at Mannheim and St. Charles roads, Bellwood.

Mrs. Rasmussen was driving north in Mannheim road and the other car was proceeding in St. Charles road at the moment of the crash. In this second car were James Carey of 537 West 44th street, his wife, and five children. Carey and one of the youngsters, James Jr., 14 years old, were cut. The others were shaken up. Mrs. Rasmussen received a fracture of the back, and was taken to the Westlake hospital in Melrose Park.

Policeman Is Killed.

Richard Groja, a state highway policeman, was fatally injured yesterday in Des Plaines when his motorcycle left the road and struck a tree.

The accident apparently took place about 2 a. m., but Groja's body was not found until 7 a. m. by other members of the police force. He had been sent to answer a call at River road and Irving Park boulevard, and when he did not report the search for him was started.

His body was found beside his wrecked motorcycle at Rand road and Garland place in Des Plaines. Rand road, in which he was riding, describes an "S" curve at that point. Groja, who was 25 years old, lived at 2904 North Damen avenue. He was married and the father of a 4 month old baby.

These deaths and one other raised the motor death toll for 1933 in Cook county to 383. The other victim:

Charles Haley, 65 years old, 2857 Wilcox street. Died last night in the county hospital of injuries received early yesterday when he was struck by a hit and run automobile at Madison street and Francisco avenue.

Cornelius Collins, 29 years old, 1823 Crystal street, sustained a possible skull fracture yesterday when the automobile in which he was riding collided at Cermak road and Canal street with one driven by William C. Maire, 3618 West Cermak road. Both cars were overturned.

Henry Lorek, 19 years old, 2136 Evergreen avenue, was overhauled after a mile chase yesterday by Carl Vainisi, 1239 West Erie street, who told police he saw Lorek strike a man at Grand and Long avenues and then drive away. Police charged the youth with reckless driving, but were unable to find the man he was charged with striking.

BODY TAKEN FROM LAKE.

St. Mary's Church Celebrates 100th Birthday

Cardinal Mundelein Heard at Centennial of St. Mary's

With Cardinal Mundelein officiating, Old St. Mary's Roman Catholic church 9th street and Wabash avenue, celebrated its centennial yesterday. The parish was founded in the year of Chicago's official birth by the Rev. John St. Cyr and a small group of pioneers.

"It is a happy coincidence that the city of Chicago and the church both celebrate their 100th anniversary on almost identically the same day," said Cardinal Mundelein. "It is well worth remembering that both of them began at the same time and that they progressed at equal pace.

Growth Impossible to Foresee.

"Not in their earliest dreams could those early settlers have anticipated such marvelous growth or foreseen a city of more than three and one-half million inhabitants and a church with more than one million members in the space of 100 years."

Cardinal Mundelein presided at the solemn noon mass, which was attended by hundreds of worshipers from all parts of the city, and the Most Rev. Alfonse J. Smith, bishop of Nashville, Tenn., delivered the sermon. The Rt. Rev. Msgr. William R. Griffin, pastor of St. Andrew's church, sang the mass. The Paulist choir, under the direction of the Rev. F. O'Malley, sang.

Bishop Points to Parallel.

In his sermon, Bishop Smith traced the parallel growth of Chicago and St. Mary's church.

The centennial observances continued throughout the day and evening. In the evening services were held and a sermon was delivered by the Rev. Francis P. Lyons.

Old St. Mary's church was founded by Father St. Cyr in 1833. He came from St. Louis at the invitation of the Catholics in what was then the small trading community of Chicago. The first church was a small frame chapel close to the present site of the church.

FIND SLAIN BODY OF A WITNESS IN GANGSTER CASE

Discovered in Deep Water in Quarry.

Quincy, Mass., May 28.—(AP)—The bullet-scarred body of Thomas G. [Red] Curran, youthful witness against two gangsters who critically injured a Boston police inspector several months ago, was found by a diver in a water-filled quarry here today.

Curran's body had eight bullet holes in it, Medical Examiner Fred E. Jones said. The face apparently had been kicked in and the skull crushed.

The body was found by Fred J. Wallace, a diver hired by county authorities as a result of police investigation into the mysterious disappearance of an expensive automobile apparently driven over the precipitous walls of the quarry last Monday.

Find Bloodstained Clothing.

The machine was found today at the bottom of the quarry, in more than 100 feet of water. In it were two suit cases, filled with men's clothing, much of it bloodstained. One shirt bore Curran's name.

Shortly after the diver went down for a third time he found the body and when he came to the surface he reported what appeared to be another body not far away from where he found Curran.

Since several articles of clothing found in the suit cases were obviously too large to have been worn by Curran, police said they would not be surprised to find the body of another man in the water, although they also said it possible that some of Curran's slayers had discarded their clothing.

Boston police officers definitely identified Curran. The license plates on the machine were found to be those stolen from an automobile in Greater Boston last Saturday night.

Dr. Jones said Curran apparently had been dead a week.

Witness for Government.

Curran was a government witness in the trial of Thomas P. Dineen, 21, and Anthony M. Dembrowski, 22, members of what is known to police as the Gustin gang of South Boston, who were convicted of assault with intent to kill Police Inspector Daniel McDonald.

Dineen and Dembrowski were sentenced on March 18 to long terms in state prison. McDonald was brutally beaten the night of Jan. 13 and for weeks he was not expected to live. He was found unconscious in a field near a clubhouse, allegedly the resort of the Gustin gang. Curran was caretaker of the clubhouse.

CANDIDATES FOR SUPERIOR COURT

ELECTION JUNE 5

(Full Term)

Grover C. Niemeyer, Democratic candidate for the full term in the Superior court, who was indorsed by the bar primaries, was born at at Montrose, Ill., 52 years ago. After attending high school at Effingham, Ill., he was graduated with the A. B. degree from Austin college at Effingham. He studied law at Illinois College of Law, being graduated in 1904, and in the same year was admitted to the bar.

Since 1905 he has practiced law in Chicago, and at the present time is first assistant state's attorney. He is rated as an exceptionally fine trial lawyer. He was assistant state's attorney from 1917 to 1920 and special assistant state's attorney in 1922, 1926, and 1929. From 1927 to 1932 he was a special attorney for the board of election commissioners. In the recent bar primaries he received 1,884 votes as against 820 for Edward J. McCarthy, Republican, and 119 for Thomas J. Jordan, nominee on the People's Judiciary ticket.

Of Mr. Niemeyer, the bar association report said:

"His education, temperament, professional experience and excellent service in public office demonstrate that he is well qualified for judge of the Superior court. He should be elected."

Edward J. McCarthy, Republican, is 40, and is a native of Chicago. After graduation from De Paul university and DePaul University School of Law, he was admitted to the bar in 1917, and has since practiced in Chicago. He served for six years as an assistant state's attorney, from 1917 to 1923.

Since leaving that office he has been in general practice of law. For some time he was in partnership with Frank J. Tyrrell. He was married thirteen years ago, and with his wife and two children lives at 1428 Sherwin avenue.

The bar association report says of Mr. McCarthy: "He has not the requisite experience and capacity to qualify him for the office."

Thomas J. Jordan, People's Judiciary candidate, is 37 and was born in Chicago. He was admitted to the bar in 1925, and from 1927 to 1931 was an assistant city prosecuting attorney. He served in the United States navy during the world war, and in recent aldermanic elections he ran for alderman of the 36th ward.

COLBY CONSIDERED AS FUSION ENTRY IN N. Y. MAYOR CONTEST

New York, May 28.—[Special.]—Bainbridge Colby, secretary of state during the Wilson administration, is under consideration by fusion leaders as an alternative candidate for mayor if Samuel Seabury persists in his determination not to run.

Mr. Colby, it became known today, has knowledge that his nomination has been suggested, but has not indicated whether or not he would accept the nomination. Efforts to get Mr. Seabury to reconsider his decision not to be a candidate are being continued.

The suggestion of Mr. Colby as the possible fusion candidate has been received quite favorably by leaders of the various fusion groups. Mr. Colby, in the opinion of those who have put him forward, would undoubtedly be a more effective campaigner than any other person mentioned so far for the fusion nomination for mayor, and there is a growing realization among the fusionists that the campaign against Tammany, if it is to be won, must be won in the campaign.

BROOKHART BUSY ON PLANS TO WIN TRADE OF RUSSIA

Recognition Not Part of His Job.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 28.—[Special.]—Smith Wildman Brookhart, newly appointed by Secretary Wallace as "the agricultural ambassador" to soviet Russia, is not going to let the outside world in on his plans, he said today. Asked with what officials of the soviet he intended to negotiate or whether his appointment might carry him to Moscow Mr. Brookhart assumed an air of mystery.

"I can't disclose the details of my program," he said. "That would bring forces to work against me. With what has been printed already opposition has begun to develop."

Recognition Not in Plans.

The former senator from Iowa, a radical Republican who termed himself rather proudly as having been "the unofficial ambassador to Russia" during three administrations past, said that the work he has embarked on has no connection with the question of America's having refused ever since the revolution in Russia to recognize the soviet government.

Brookhart said he intended to exert every possible means to effect a thriving trade between the two countries, and in reply to an inquiry as to whether such relationship might result in eventful diplomatic recognition as well, he replied:

"I would hope so on my own personal account. I have always favored and promoted recognition of Russia by our country."

Peek Explains Hastily.

The announcement of the Brookhart appointment, and its purposes has stirred the state department, and brought a hasty amplification from George N. Peek, Mr. Wallace's farm adjustment administrator, to the effect that the department of agriculture was not seeking to usurp the privileges of state affairs.

Mr. Peek's afterthought also declared that Mr. Brookhart's duties were to make "purely factual studies" and he denied Brookhart would enter into negotiations with foreign countries.

But "Ambassador" Brookhart bubbling over with enthusiasm for his job, said that his negotiations had already begun and he left no doubt that they would proceed apace.

Sees Soviet Representative.

"I've done a lot of work already," he said. "I have gone into the matter with people here, including the soviet representative, Boris Skvirsky. He's a pretty fine fellow and I've had several talks with him."

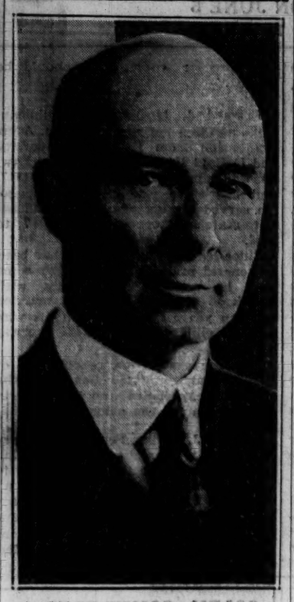
Mr. Skvirsky is not a trade representative of the soviet, nor has he connection with the Amtorg corporation, organized by the soviets to transact business in America. Mr. Skvirsky said yesterday that he is a representative of the soviet foreign office.

Opposition to the Brookhart-Wallace plans has already developed, it was learned, based on the ground that while the new "agricultural ambassador" to Russia might succeed in helping farmers somewhat by gaining a distribution of their surplus crop in Russia, he might do so at the expense of other industries.

It has been stated that Mr. Brookhart would try to negotiate agreements for the exchange of American live stock, wheat, and cotton by taking Russian wood pulp and manganese ore.

This has roused the producers of American and Canadian wood pulp and of American manganese to protest against any plan which would dump Russian articles into this country at the expense of American producers.

EDUCATOR KILLED



DR. W. J. M'GLOTHLIN.

Gastonia, N. C., May 28.—(AP)—Dr. William Joseph McGlothlin, president of Furman university, Greenville, S. C., died in City hospital here today of injuries suffered in an automobile wreck May 16.

Mrs. McGlothlin was killed in the same wreck. They were on their way to Washington to attend the Southern Baptist convention of which Dr. McGlothlin was a past president.

Since 1919 Dr. McGlothlin had been president of Furman and for more than a quarter of a century had been identified with the Baptist church as an educator, minister, and author. Born near Gallatin, Tex., Nov. 29, 1867, he was a teacher in the Bardstown, Ky., institute in 1889-1891 and in 1893 became a tutor in Hebrew in the Southern Baptist Theological seminary. There he became a full professor in 1900.

PRIVATE WAR AT CEMETERY MARS SERVICES

Jackson, Ky., May 28.—(AP)—Two men were killed and another was wounded today in a gun fight at religious services at War Creek, near here. The dead were Deputy Sheriff Morgan Pelfrey, 40, and Dan Cundiff, 45. Jerry Turner, 40, a former deputy sheriff, was struck in the head by a stray bullet but was not believed to be seriously wounded.

Witnesses said Pelfrey had ordered Cundiff's son, Lowell Cundiff, to leave the cemetery where the services were being conducted because he had been drinking. The elder Cundiff then quarreled with Pelfrey, authorities were told.

Officers were told that Pelfrey shot the elder Cundiff, who fired after falling to the ground, and one of the bullets struck the deputy. Cundiff then was shot fatally by the deputy's brother, according to witnesses.

A large crowd had gathered for the open air services, at which eight or nine ministers were in attendance.

TINKHAM FEARS BANKERS DIRECT NORMAN H. DAVIS

Demands Investigation of Arms Delegate.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 28.—[Special.]—A demand for a congressional investigation of the financial dealings which Norman H. Davis, spokesman for the United States at the Geneva arms conference, may have had with international banking and business interests, will be made in the house tomorrow by Representative George H. Tinkham [Rep., Mass.].

Mr. Tinkham, in announcing his intentions today, declared that Mr. Davis' connections with J. P. Morgan & Co., as disclosed in the Pecora committee investigation, should be fully disclosed.

Charges "Disloyal Actions."

Asserting that Ambassador Davis has spoken at Geneva in "repudiation of the traditional American foreign policy," Mr. Tinkham said that a congressional committee should also investigate Mr. Davis' connections with "disloyal and seditious American organizations and foundations in the United States."

"Mr. Davis has just announced in Europe that the United States shall no longer be an independent natiop and exercise such sovereignty as belongs to such a nation," said Mr. Tinkham. "He has officially proposed the termination of American neutrality, the curtailment of American freedom of the seas and the assurance of American coercive action to enforce article 10 of the league of nations, which article guarantees the present political boundaries of the world. He has announced that European nations are to be allowed to supervise American defense in the setting up at Geneva of a bureau for the supervision of arms.

Important to Know Relations.

"The same objectives have long been sought by American international banking and international business interests. It therefore becomes of the utmost importance to know what relations Mr. Davis now has or has had with any international banking or international business interests."

7 CUBAN REBEL PRISONERS BLAME YANKEE LEADER

CAMAGUEY, Cuba, May 28.—(AP)—Seven rebels who surrendered to government forces Friday were indicted here last night on charges of rebellion.

The prisoners testified that Col. Charles Muecke, an American who is leading a rebel force near Cubanacan, Camaguey, induced them to take the field, telling them an armed expedition would soon arrive at some Camaguey port.

Col. Muecke, who was recently reported to be leading a rebel force in Camaguey province, is more than 60 years old and almost blind in one eye. He fought in Cuba's war for independence from Spain.

WOODIN RETAINS TREASURY POST, IT'S ANNOUNCED

Sees Roosevelt, Then Makes Statement.

Washington, D. C., May 28.—(AP)—Secretary William H. Woodin authorized the statement tonight after his return from a yachting trip with President Roosevelt that he had not resigned as secretary of the treasury.

Woodin, smiling and genial as usual, told the newspaper men tonight that he had discussed with the President the fact that his name had been on the favorite subscriber list of J. P. Morgan & Co., before he became secretary of the treasury, allowing the purchase of stock at bargain prices.

"I can simply tell you I have not resigned," said the secretary.

Willing to Retire.

He left no doubt, however, that he would be willing to leave his office if it should appear his continued presence there would in any way hinder the progress which he feels is very definitely being made in national improvement.

Woodin's stand was interpreted on good authority to mean that Mr. Roosevelt wants him to continue on in the emergency to which he was called suddenly on March 4.

Meanwhile, Mr. Woodin with the full support of President Roosevelt is going ahead at the helm of the treasury and policies for the immediate future were thoroughly gone over and discussed on the trip with the President.

Confident of Future.

Confident of the future, the diminutive treasury head who left a profitable business to take public office asserted, "All lines of business and trade are improving."

"I am sure it is the real thing," he said. "It is all over the country. It is everywhere."

RAPIST'S VICTIM NEAR DEATH AT COUNTY HOSPITAL

An unidentified woman about 35 years old is expected to die at the county hospital as the result of a rape attack early yesterday morning under the elevated structure at Hill and Orleans streets, back of St. Joseph's church. Chicago avenue police arrested William P. Gleason, 338 West Goethe street, near the scene of the attack and held him for investigation.

The victim, who has henna dyed hair and blue eyes, was found by a passerby lying on the ground. Investigation disclosed that the woman had been struck on the head. Her clothing had been torn and partly stripped from her body. She was still unconscious with a fractured skull at the hospital late yesterday.

Gleason, the suspect, was intoxicated when the police seized him under the "L" structure. They said he gave a trivial excuse for his presence there, but denied that he had seen the woman.

PLAN TO SPEED UPTURN IS GIVEN ROOSEVELT O. K.

applied as a last resort to control inflation is the devaluation of the dollar, authority to do which is also conferred on the President by the Thomas amendment. It is the view of some of the President's advisers that once the level of prices is adjusted to the level of debts the valuation of the dollar should be manipulated in such manner as to stabilize prices permanently.

This would be the abandonment of the present rigid gold standard in favor of a managed money. The contention is that in a world in which actual gold coin has become an infinitesimal part of the money employed, a medium of fixed value is no longer practical.

Words on Lagging of Wages.

In any process of inflation the rise of wages and salaries always lags behind the rise of commodity prices. The employed classes thus become the victims of inflation. But the Roosevelt program envisages a manipulation upward of wages commensurate with the manipulation upward of prices. This is to be accomplished through the minimum wage agreements provided for in the industry control legislation.

Another tendency of inflation is to induce overproduction of commodities. This tendency the President aims to counteract through powers conferred upon him by emergency legislation.

In this manner, whether it be viewed as an approach to state socialism or a species of Fascism, the President, clothed with unprecedented authority to regulate the activities of his fellow citizens is about to launch the experiment of controlling and directing powerful and imperfectly understood economic forces. And the people manifest a willingness to try the experiment.

HITLERITES WIN DANZIG ELECTION; RULE FREE CITY

Nazi Throngs Celebrate Victory at Polls.

FREE CITY OF DANZIG, May 28.—(AP)—The Nazi party polled 107,619 votes to get a clear majority of the 215,135 votes cast today in the election of a new volkstag for the Free City of Danzig.

This represented a vast increase for the Hitlerites over their total vote in the last election, Nov. 16, 1930.

Win Senate Presidency.

This represents 50.8 per cent of the vote entitling the Nazis to elect Hermann Rauschning as new president of the senate. He would succeed Dr. Ernst Ziehm.

[The senate constitutes the government of the Free City, ruling under the direction of the league of nations commissionership. The Socialists were dominant in the last senate, elected by the volkstag, or parliament.]

The Naziz party chiseled votes today from all eight of its opponents except the Catholic Centrists, who showed a slight increase.

The Socialists, Communists, and National Front party all lost heavily. The Socialists lost 10,000 votes in comparison with their 1930 total, the Communists dropped 6,000, and the Nationalists 12,000.

The Nazis won 36 seats in the volkstag and the Young German party one. This gives the Hitlerites a bare majority in the parliament of 72 members. The Nazis held 13 seats in the last volkstag.

Celebrate Nazi Victory.

The city has been surging with excitement since earliest returns indicated a great Nazi tide of votes probably would bring a majority. Darkness found singing throngs in the streets celebrating the victory.

Minor clashes occurred outside the city proper, but Danzig itself experienced a quiet election day despite the tension and excitement which the campaign had developed.

The Danzig Nazi program follows broadly the lines of the German National Socialists. Anti-Semitism has already driven many Jewish businessmen to leave the Free City.

The Polish government watched today's election anxiously for fear pro-German exuberance might provoke an incident which would call for Poland's interference. Poland controls the foreign politics and the harbor traffic of Danzig, under the aegis of the league of nations.

LEAGUE DELAYS TALK ON JEWISH ISSUE; NO ACCORD

GENEVA, May 28.—(AP)—Private negotiations regarding treatment of Jews in German Upper Silesia failed to reach an agreement today and the league of nations council session, scheduled to discuss the subject tomorrow, was postponed.

Sean Lester, the Irish Free State council member and reporter on the question, will continue his informal talks with Dr. Friedrich von Keller, German member, in an effort to reach an understanding.

Dr. von Keller said yesterday that if Upper Silesian regulatic with regard to Jews are found to be in violation of the Polish-German convention they would be repealed.

Germans Bow at Grave of Soldier Executed by French

DUESSELDORF, Germany, May 28.—(AP)—A throng of undetermined number, including 300,000 "Brownshirts" and members of the Steel Helmet corps, assembled here today to hear the speech of Capt. Hermann Goering, premier of Prussia and cabinet member. The address climaxed the celebration in honor of Albert Leo Schlageter, executed by the French for sabotage during the Ruhr occupation ten years ago.

Hitler Is Absent.

Chancellor Hitler did not attend. Goering paid a tribute to Schlageter as "the last soldier of the world war and the first soldier of the third reich."

Proclamting anew Germany's will for peace the Nazi minister said nevertheless that "Germany is resolved to defend her honor, her liberty and her peace."

70,000 Youths Attend.

In addition to the Nazi Brown Shirts and their comrades of the Steel Helmet association, 70,000 members of the National Youth organizations joined in the pilgrimage to the monumental black wooden cross on Golzheim, which marks the spot where Schlageter was shot as a spy in 1932. Schlageter was shot as a spy in 1923.

Schlageter's name has been immortalized by the German youth. The young German officer organized and directed and actively participated in the nocturnal raids of his "destruction committees" during the French military invasion.

It was Schlageter's purpose to foment unrest among the French troops of occupation. Many important railway bridges in the Ruhr basin were dynamited by him and his followers and many trains and canal boats carrying minerals to France were delayed by the destruction of locks and dams.

Sentenced to Death.

On Jan. 10, 1923, the day of the invasion of the French army, the 29 year old German officer started his activities. Later he was arrested with several of his companions. In a two day trial the French military court found him guilty of sabotage and sentenced him to death on May 10. His fellow convicts were sent to jail.

The verdict raised a storm of indignant protests from all parts of the reich. German protests at the Quai d'Orsay failed. A French infantry detachment executed Schlageter in the morning hours of May 26, 1923.

French Vets Demonstrate.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 28.—French war veterans today held counter demonstrations to Germany's tribute to Albert Leo Schlageter, executed for sabotage by a French firing squad during the French occupation of the Ruhr.

The veterans marched to the tomb of France's unknown soldier and placed upon it a wreath bearing the inscription: "The Federation of Veterans of the Ruhr and Rhineland to our comrades who were assassinated in Germany." The veterans also honored the grave of a French officer who was killed in Berlin in 1919.

705 Horses Take Part in Frontier Parade; Bar Autos

Ventura, Cal., May 28.—(AP)—A frontier parade which opened the Days of the Golden West celebration here brought out 705 horses. Motor vehicles were barred. There also were 12 wooden horses on roller skates, "drawing" a covered wagon, they in turn being drawn by real horses. Of course, cowboys and stage coaches took part.

LEADER OF DIXIE VETS FLIES HERE TO GREET G. A. R.

Gen. Driver of Georgia Memorial Day Guest.

Gen. James Luckie Driver, commander of the Georgia division of the United Confederate Veterans, arrived in Chicago from Atlanta on an American Airway plane last night to bring fraternal greetings from confederate veterans to members of the Grand Army of the Republic, and to participate in the Memorial day parade tomorrow.

Dressed in a uniform of southern gray and gold, the Georgian presented a trim figure despite his 85 years. He expressed pleasure over his plane trip. It was his first; also his first visit to Chicago.

"I am here to bring greetings to Chicago's Grand Army men and to break bread with them," said Gen. Driver. "I want them to know that Georgia's confederate veterans, like the rest of the boys in gray, while they do revere their old flag sentimentally, are second to none in loyalty to our stars and stripes."

Meets G. A. R. Chief Today.

At 11:30 o'clock this morning, Gen. Driver will meet in G. A. R. headquarters with Capt. William P. Wright, national commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, to arrange for his participation in tomorrow's parade. During his visit in Chicago the southerner is staying at the Southmoor hotel.

General Driver landed at Chicago airport at 10:35 after an eight hour trip. The air ride thrilled him, he said, satisfying for the first time a long desire. He said he expected more thrills in Chicago, especially from the World's Fair, which he will visit this afternoon.

"I don't expect to see any gangsters and don't want to," said the Georgian. "Anyhow, we've got your number one man, Al Capone, as a guest at Atlanta and we can look him over if we want."

Enlisted at Age of Sixteen.

General Driver was one of seven brothers who served in the confederate army. Two of them were killed in action and a third was a prisoner at Camp Douglas in Chicago. The general enlisted in 1864 at the age of 16, participated in two battles under Gen. Joseph E. Johnston, and was with him at the surrender to Sherman's army. General Driver was mustered out as an orderly sergeant, the same as top sergeant, he explained.

His present rank of major general is in the veterans' corps, he said.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 28.—(AP)—Putting up an aerial at home, Joseph Le Clair coughed and swallowed a tack. He was rushed to a hospital for an operation. As he was being wheeled to the operating room he coughed again. The tack bounced to the floor. Le Clair went home.

Thousands to March in City's Memorial Parade

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Tens of thousands of marchers are expected to participate in the Memorial day parade in Michigan avenue tomorrow afternoon. Though fewer than sixty of their number will be able to attend, the Grand Army of the Republic will take its usual place at the head, the location it has rightfully held since Memorial day began. Due to a conflict in precedence in heading the parade, it was explained by Maj. Frank L. Beals, adjutant general of the parade, the Illinois National Guard will not take part. Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, however, with other officers of the army and navy and civic dignitaries, will be in the reviewing stand.

Among those in the group will be Gov. Horner, reviewing officer in chief; Mayor Edward J. Kelly, Rear Admiral Wat T. Cluverius and Brig. Gen. Frank Bolles and their aids; Lieutenant General of Militia Milton J. Foreman, Col. Nelson Morris, Brig. Gen. Abel Davis, James A. Kearns, Albert J. Horan, Sheldon W. Govier, and Capt. John M. Mayeskie.

Commissioner James P. Allman will command the police who will escort the parade. The Black Horse troop and Morgan Park academy cadets will form an honorary escort to the governor and his reviewing staff. The reviewing stand will be in front of the Stevens hotel.

Parade in Michigan Avenue.

The parade will form at 1:30 p. m. at Chestnut street and Michigan avenue and at 2 o'clock will start moving south in Michigan avenue to Roosevelt road, where it will disband.

Capt. William P. Wright, national commander of the G. A. R., will be grand marshal of the parade. The band and drill team of the Woodlawn post, No. 175, of the American Legion, under the command of Daniel H. Lewis, will form an honorary escort to the grand marshal. The honorary escort to the colors will be formed of cadets of Northwestern Military and Naval academy, Col. Royal P. Davidson commanding. The color guard will be composed of a squad from the Racine Military academy.

Then will follow the civil war veterans, not marching as they used to, but riding in open cars. Arthur Dawson will marshal his comrades. Their special escort will be a platoon of uniformed Sons of United Veterans.

Women's Groups to March.

Falling in behind the Grand Army men will come affiliated organizations, the Woman's Relief corps, the Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic, Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, Sons of Union Veterans, and auxiliaries to those groups. In the third section will come the fighters of Indian wars, Gen. O. O. Howard, Camp No. 20, Spanish American War veterans under the command of Capt. John R. Mayeskie will come next, then the United Spanish War Veterans auxiliaries.

Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States will be commanded by Raymond J. Thorn, and will be followed by the Ladies' auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Society of the Army of Santiago de Cuba, and Veteran corps.

The world war division will come next, by far the greatest number of any one group in the parade, with Joseph L. De Lacour as marshal, escorted by the Combat Medal Men's association and American Legion band, the national champions. The medical staff and wounded and disabled veterans from Edward Hines Jr. hospital, Great Lakes Naval hospital, and North Chicago Veterans' Bureau hospital, and the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, commanded by Howard R. Roberts, will follow.

Legionnaires to Parade.

Posts from nine districts of the American Legion will march and behind them the Polish Legion of American Veterans, Sons of American Legionnaires, Gold Star Mothers, Belgian-American War Veterans, Escort Belgian Queen Elizabeth club drum and bugle corps, and the British and Colonial Veterans, French War Veterans, Italian War Veterans' association, Polish Army Veterans' association, American-Czechoslovak Legion of Chicago, unaffiliated world war veterans, and women's auxiliaries to the above groups.

The fourth division is to include the organized reserves, both of the army and navy. The fifth and last division will be the Fleet Naval reserve, Fleet Reserve auxiliary, Air Commerce Reserve of the U. S., Chicago zone, and the Civil Air corps division. Others in the parade will be the Chicago fire department, Salvation Army, Boy Scouts of America, and Leander Stone school patrol.

No mail delivery will be made by letter carriers tomorrow, but at the main postoffice there will be special delivery and lock box service.

The schools will be closed tomorrow.

SUSPENDED CHIEF OF POLICE HAS A NERVE COLLAPSE

South Bend, Ind., May 28.—(AP)—Chief of Police John B. Kuespert, suspended Saturday after he was charged with making threats against Mayor W. R. Hinkle and the mayor's advisor, Frank J. Murray, was confined at his home today following a nervous collapse.

Kuespert's suspension came as an aftermath of a gun battle here late Friday night in which two members of the police force were killed and another wounded by a gunman who also was killed.

The suspension of the chief was ordered by the board of safety at the request of Mayor Hinkle. The mayor said Kuespert called him up Friday night and said if he or Murray appeared at the city hall the next day, he [Kuespert] would kill them.

The board of safety's suspension order said the slaying of the two officers caused the chief to have a nervous breakdown.

Assistant Chief Horace Hamilton was named to direct police activities until an investigation was completed by the board of safety.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

GOING OFF GOLD.

The next step in the progressive degeneration of the United States financial system will be what the government calls "going off the gold standard by statute." Once set causes in operation and the consequences are not only to be expected. They are inevitable. Government costs unchecked by any regard for obtainable revenue, debts, taxes, and wasteful enterprises of no worth are the causes. The repudiation of contracts is the result.

Sound money and sound financing, honorable dealing and good faith in money obligations require of a government as such obligations do of an individual an economy which keeps expenditures within revenue. The reckless nation will go the way of the reckless individual, with less excuse because the citizen may be caught by circumstances out of his control. The government of a rich country is expected to arrange its affairs to survive the adversities which may overtake many of the people.

To the waste which has gone before there is impending the waste in the La Follette-Wagner public works bill, and to the consequences now making themselves felt in degeneration of American financing are to be added the consequences of another tax boost, new levies upon disappearing incomes.

The administration in going off the gold standard by statute not only repudiates the gold clause in all contracts, public and private, but asks congress to prohibit the inclusions of such conditions in future obligations. The government already had forbidden the use of gold to honor such requirements. That prohibition left the debtor in a hole because he was not allowed to do what he was under solemn obligation to do. He had been prohibited from acting in good faith. If the government had not stopped him he would, if solvent, have been able to honor his obligations. His bad faith was not his own fault. It was forced on him by his government and many an honest debtor did not know what to do.

His scruples did not disturb his government, which made no bones about failing to honor its own solemn promises. Dishonor may be a harsh word for it, but the government dishonored its gold notes and it repudiated the conditions of its gold bonds. It seeks its justification in national emergency and the courts have held that anything a government does with its currency in a national emergency is valid. The private debtor, however, was left out on a limb. Apparently the new legislation will simply acknowledge what has been already done and get the citizen out of his predicament at the same time by putting the best face possible upon the bad faith in which the government acts towards its own creditors.

The emergency is not one arising out of a lack of gold, because the United States still has the largest share of the world's store of this metal. The emergency is one of making other tokens acceptable. The rule that bad money drives out good has a secondary clause that in the end it drives itself out. It drives gold out of the country or into hoards and when it has done that it finally crashes in its own worthlessness. America's first experience with this, when the paper was Continental scrip, was the more disastrous because the scrip had no real government behind it, and what government the federated states did have had no power to levy taxes.

The Supreme court in two legal tender decisions which sustained the right of the government to issue such tender held that nothing interferes with the right of the government to decide at any time what is lawful currency. It can be anything upon which the government stamps its approval.

Good faith is anything the government says it is at any time, and when a nation makes bankruptcy its policy good faith is out of the question. It must be observed in the beginning if it is to be preserved at the end.

THE ST. LAWRENCE DEBATE POSTPONED.

Observers in Washington are now of the opinion that the attempt to ratify the St. Lawrence treaty at this session of congress will be dropped. That is as it should be. The treaty as it now stands places restrictions on the diversion from Lake Michigan just as the Illinois waterway is coming into use. No one knows with any degree of certainty what the minimum flow for a successful waterway to the gulf should be. There have been engineering calculations but it is significant that no two of them are alike. The only sure test of the amount of water needed is the test of experience over a reasonable period of time, including the dry season in the autumn.

Until the senate is in a position to know what the gulf waterway requires, with much greater certainty than it now has, no treaty containing an arbitrary restriction should be considered. An investment of 20 million dollars by the state and 7 million dollars by the federal government, not to mention some 80 million dollars spent by the sanitary district, has gone into the construction of the waterway. The federal government has spent far more than that on maintaining the channel in the Mississippi. The whole investment will be largely wasted if the diversion is restricted to a point where the waterway cannot operate twelve months a year.

If a premature and inaccurate judgment is made of the requirements of the gulf waterway Illinois will suffer, of course, but so will all the other states which are in a position to make use of the new route. It is significant that the waterway was first used on a commercial scale by a Milwaukee company which was moving equipment to Iowa and by a mill at Indiana Harbor, Ind., which was shipping structural steel to Texas. Neither shipment originated or terminated in Illinois. Chicago, it cannot be repeated too often, is not the terminal of the Illinois waterway but the midway point on a waterway which extends from the St. Lawrence to Duluth, St. Paul, Kansas City, and Pittsburgh, and New Orleans. The successful operation of the Illinois waterway will be a boon to shippers and consumers in the whole region tributary to either the lakes or the Mississippi system.

CASH AND AFFECTION.

Representative Green's bill providing that "no action shall be brought or presented by either husband or wife to recover any damages for alienation of affection or for loss of consortium of his wife or her husband" was recommended for passage by the judiciary committee and upon reaching third reading was postponed for further consideration. If nothing were given consideration at the present session but emergency legislation this action might be justified. But the legislature will find time to consider a good many other measures that are not of the emergency and should give favorable attention to this brief bill if not, as we have urged, to the general evil of scandal litigation. The alienation of affection lawsuit is in practice an attempt to wreak a grudge or to blackmail. It does not involve real money damage and the wrong upon which the suit is ostensibly based is not commensurable in terms of cash. Neither from the viewpoint of the injured individual nor from that of public policy can we see any substantial justification for this form of action. In its operation it is a boon to sensational journalism, but it does not defend, on the contrary detracts from, the sanctity of the marriage relation. Social intelligence is turning from the conceptions of marriage which this suit is supposed to protect and public law should no longer give countenance to such litigation. Loss of affection and of the consortium which is or should be based upon it are not translatable into terms of money.

THE ALLIANCE WITH FRANCE.

If the French would examine the probabilities they might conclude that in demanding a security agreement from America as their highest good they are relying upon a fragile thing. It might work in need and it might not. The element in doubt must be so great as to eliminate precisely the degree of certainty which makes the scheme attractive to the French.

It must be conceded, as always, in the probability of such an agreement that an American congress would repudiate it. If the obligation should appear in a wholly obnoxious form to the American people, a responsive congress might refuse not only to declare war but to permit any of the economic or military enterprises needed to satisfy the bond. Such a refusal would expose the country to the reproach of behaving in bad faith and to the humiliation of dishonoring its word, but if the obligation were sufficiently distasteful or horrifying powerful men in congress would arise to denounce American participation as a crime and they might prevail. Our state department may propose, but in the end some Borah, La Follette, or Huey Long might dispose, particularly if the sentiment of the country was repelled by the undertaking and no possible national interest was apparent to justify it. No sensible American desires to see his country placed in such a predicament, and yet no one can guarantee that the event would be otherwise.

French misconceptions of the American political system may mislead French judgment. The French saw Great Britain honor Grey's word and fulfill the military obligations preconceived by the British military. But Great Britain had a stake in that war, however much British diplomacy had tried to avoid the conflict and however painful it was to the British populace. Any security treaty signed by America must contemplate the possibility of an intervention when no American interest is involved, when no American feelings have been outraged, when American sympathies would be totally disengaged, and when the action would be viewed as a purposeless horror. In such a case the politician will override the treaty. The event is nothing any American desires to contemplate.

KEEP THE LAND BANKS OUT OF POLITICS.

[Des Moines Register.]

While the Register has not always seen eye to eye with President Dennis Hogan of the Federal Land bank of Omaha, it has regarded him as an honest, courageous, and efficient administrator. This newspaper therefore has no sympathy whatever with the campaign of Democratic National Committeeman Arthur Mullen of Nebraska to have Mr. Hogan ousted because he is a "standpat Republican."

In an office of this nature the incumbent's brand of politics has nothing to do with his fitness for the job, and unless Committeeman Mullen can offer better reasons to support his demands his party associates will do well to lock him in a soundproof chamber until he gets over this fit.

Critics of President Hogan have frequently accused him of being overconservative in his loan policies. Possibly he has been too cautious to fit the temper of even the needs of the times, and yet the thousands of farmer members of local farm loan associations in this territory, who as stockholders are personally liable not only for payment of their own loans but also for other mortgages placed in their territory, may not be unmindful of the fact that the Omaha bank has escaped some of the problems which face other federal land banks.

In any case this critical period is no time to make a political plum of the presidency of a land bank. Administration of these institutions needs to be divorced as widely as possible from politics. If Mullen has any sound criticisms to offer regarding Hogan's fitness for this office let him speak out; if not, he has already said more than enough.

"WHEAT LOBBY DEMANDS $330,000,000 from Consuming Public; Prospect of Flour Bootleggers."—Headline. Oh, gosh! So we've got to have that all over again. Now the hostess will come weeping into the front room where the hungry guests are waiting and sob out: "We can't have any bread or biscuit; my flourlegger was nabbed an hour ago, the poor simp, and slung in the hoosegow. Oh, I could just die." And then another guests will speak up and say: "Oh, why don't you get a good flourlegger? Now, take my flourlegger, he gets the real simon pure A1 Manitoba flour, Canadian brand, and he has never yet failed to get around on time. Some flourjackers grabbed six of his trucks the other night in Wisconsin, but it didn't bother him any, he had plenty stored away right here in Chicago." "He's all right," another guest will agree; "of course, some of the flour we got from him last week was synthetic flour, but it's fairly good, and these days you can't be too particular." And so it will go. We expect to see Max, our favorite bootlegger, call around some day soon with a couple of sacks of flour in the back of his car instead of a case of hootch. Life seems to be just one damn bootlegger after another!

REQUEST.

Some night, when the glimpsing moon
Lifts the edges of her silver veils
Of rain,
Will you come to visit me?
I promise you, you may go forth
Again.
I ask you only to come once,
Some centuries from now,
To tell
Me what the season is,
And if the daisies grow on earth.
So well
I know the wardrobe of the year
That I may not forget it when I go
Into my narrow house of earth
With blindness pressing on my eyes.
I know
That time is long in such
A lonely place, and that the year
May wear
A gown I never saw before,
Or pin some new and extra trinket
In her hair.
This you must tell me:
If the squirrels still look so soft
Of fur;
If the dogs still have sad, friendly eyes,
And if the birds are feathered
As they were.
These things I shall be thinking on
When the rain will be the only friend I have.
These things:
And if the fall hurts as it did
And if the green is just the same in these New springs.
And just before you leave me
Will you put a candle near me where
Its light
May shine a little while upon my eyes
Before they're sealed again forever
With the night?
A grave's a cramped and lonesome place
With never a wind to talk to one
Who dies.
And I would know these things
And have for company the shadow of a light
Upon my eyes.

Here it is after all and in spite of all: "Witness Denies Mrs. Jelke Visited Her Home with Major." Oh, suffering cats! What's the use!

HOW MAGNIFICENTLY old Sol behaved Saturday, beaming down and giving the opening of the Fair a perfect day. If the sun had been like a lot of us humans, how would he have acted? We ask you? Why, he would have pouted around and hid behind clouds and said: "Well, if you want to make all that fuss about a single ray of light from Arcturus go right ahead and get all your light from that poor little bum. Go right ahead, depend on Arcturus in the future for light, heat, the seasons, the tides, and all the rest of it and see if I care. Good-by and I don't care if I never come back." But, no. Old Sol just said: "Oh, go ahead, make a row over that silly little one horse star if you want to. The poor little shrimp horns in for a second or two and then nobody will ever think of it again for the next two thousand years. I should worry about Arcturus, the poor slob." That's the way Old Sol talked Saturday and it ought to be a lesson to everybody.

Lovers should die and not grow old
Or fat or commonplace or cold
Or dull with pallid friendliness

Letters should lie besmeared with tears
And ribboned tenderly for years;
And he who leaves to grieve through life
Should not come back and bring his wife.

PERNICIOUS ANEMIA DIETS.

BREAKFAST.
Milk, 3 1-3 ounces
Oatmeal, 2-3 ounce
1 poached egg
Toast, 2 ounces
Canned pears, 5 ounces
Kidney, 3 1-3 ounces
Butter, 1-6 ounce
Orange juice, 7 ounces

LUNCHEON.
Cold lamb, 3 1-3 ounces
Rutabaga, 5 ounces
Rice, 2-3 ounce
Puree tomato, 2-3 ounce
Bread, 1 ounce
Lettuce, 2 ounces
Mineral oil dressing, 1-3 ounce
Butter, 1-3 ounce
Cherries, 5 ounces
Milk, 5 ounces

EVENING MEAL.
Liver, 3 1-3 ounces
Bacon, 1-3 ounce
Onions, 4 ounces
Asparagus, 3 1-3 ounces
Steamed potato, 5 ounces
Melba toast, 2-3 ounce
Perfection salad, 3 1-3 ounces
Mayonnaise, 1-3 ounce
Tapioca cream, 3 1-3 ounces
Apricot puree, 2-3 ounce
Butter, 2-3 ounce

This diet supplies nearly 2,500 calories. It is rather expensive because it is rich in liver, kidney, lean meat, and fruits.

BREAKFAST.
Milk, 1½ ounces
Shredded wheat, 1 ounce
Canned peaches, 3 1-3 ounces
Scrambled egg
Liver, 3 1-3 ounces
Toast, 1 ounce
Butter, ½ ounce
Grape juice, 5 ounces

LUNCHEON.
Sandwich composed of 2½ ounces bread, 1-3 ounce butter, and 2-3 ounce peanut butter
5 ounces consomme
1 2-3 ounces vegetables
¼ ounce crackers
3 1-3 ounces grapes
3 1-3 ounces sliced tomatoes
1 2-3 ounces boiled ham

EVENING MEAL.
Roast lamb, 2 2-3 ounces
Baked potato, 3 1-3 ounces
The same amount of banana squash
3 ounces fruit salad, consisting of equal parts apples, grapes, and celery
Melba toast, 1-3 ounce
Prune whip, 1 2-3 ounces
Mayonnaise, 1-3 ounce

Total calories about 2,000. The expensive items are the meats, including the liver.

BREAKFAST.
5 ounces milk
1 2-3 ounces cream
2-3 ounce cereal
4 2-3 ounces oranges
1 scrambled egg
1-3 ounce crisp bacon
1-3 ounce butter

LUNCHEON.
3 1-3 ounces of each of the following: Cheese souffle, stewed tomato, waldorf salad, fresh baked pear with saccharine
5 ounces buttermilk
¼ ounce butter

EVENING MEAL.
3 1-3 ounces chicken a la king
3 1-3 ounces each of string beans and carrots
2½ ounces diabetic fruit gelatin salad.
1-3 ounce mayonnaise
2 1-3 ounces diabetic apple sauce
1-3 ounce whole wheat bread
⅓ ounce butter

This menu is planned to supply 1,600 calories. It is very low in sugar, since the diabetic fruits used were not preserved in sugar. It is also very low in bread and cereal. The balance between proteins, fats, and calories is about as it should be.

These menus can be compared with one which is advocated as proper for a normal person of about average strenuosity.

BREAKFAST.
7 ounces orange juice
1-3 ounce cereal
1-3 ounce butter
1 2-3 ounces cream
3 1-3 ounces canned apricots
1 poached egg
2 ounces toast
1 ounce honey

LUNCHEON.
3 1-3 ounces pears
1 2-3 ounces cottage cheese
1-3 ounce mayonnaise
5 ounces milk
1 ounce pureed peas
1 ounce bread
¾ ounce crackers
1-3 ounce butter

CIRRHOSIS.

Mrs. L. E. writes: 1. What is cirrhosis of the liver?
2. Does it affect the heart in any way?
3. Is it curable?

REPLY.
1. A hardening of the liver. It corresponds to chronic Bright's in the kidney.
2. No.
3. No.

AORTITIS.

G. E. D. writes: A friend of mine has been told he has aortitis. What does this mean? His Wasserman has been brought down to negative. How long a life expectancy has he?

REPLY.
Aortitis means inflammation of the aorta, the large blood vessel which carries the blood in the first stretches of the route from the heart to the general tissues. Aortitis is often caused by syphilis. The term is rather loosely used. To predict how long a man will live on the basis of a statement that he has aortitis would be hazardous—more so than gambling on the stock market.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

40 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 29, 1893.

CHICAGO.—Blue, cloudless summer skies and a burst of summer sunshine marked the first open Sunday at the Columbian Exposition, and 100,000 men, women and children spent the day viewing the sights. It was hard to determine what had the most attraction for the people. Everything had to them the charm of novelty. From the south pond to the lake shore on the north, where the foreign buildings stand in column, the crowds were almost equal in density.

The Palace of Fine Arts, stretching its impressive front along the north lagoon, was filled all day with people who wandered about amid its masterpieces with rapt attention. But the crowd spent most of its time out of doors. Sitting at the head of the Court of Honor, looking out over the placid beauty of the scene and listening to the tender strains of "Nearer, My God, to Thee," the spirit of religion was in the very air. On the shores of the south pond, where the rude huts of the Quackash Indians stand, the natives held their religious ceremonies and a great mass of people gathered to watch them.

The Chicago Vorort, composed of delegates from Turner societies of Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, and other states adjoining this, met yesterday in the German building at the World's Fair grounds and furthered the preparation of the program to be participated in at the World's Fair by the Turners.

Thousands of persons lined the bamboo fence around the Javanese village again last night. They could see nothing but they heard the ringing music of the gamalade and the prayers of the priest. The Javanese were holding memorial services in honor of Antonia, the woman who was buried in the afternoon.

The Lapland village was open for the first time, and although snow, which is quite essential to the proper display of life up near their Arctic home, was lacking, the Lapps put on their skis and skipped over the grass, or harnessed up their reindeers and drove their slippery sledges around the yard, followed by their faithful dogs.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 29, 1917.

CHICAGO.—Declaring that "a big conspiracy, designed to defeat the conscription law on June 5, has been nipped in the bud," Hinton G. Claybaugh, chief investigator here of the federal bureau of justice, last night announced the arrests of several ringleaders, among them a woman said to be in authority in pro-German activities. The statement of Mr. Claybaugh followed on the heels of reports of similar plots laid bare in other parts of the nation. Two arrests were made in the mountains of Virginia, nine in Texas, five in an anti-draft plot in Detroit, and one in Seattle. Details of the plot are in possession of Mr. Claybaugh, he admitted, but he would not divulge them.

EAST ST. LOUIS.—A mob of 3,000 persons, determined, as they shouted, to rid the city of Negroes imported to work in factories and munition plants, swept through the streets last night and early this morning, attacking and beating Negroes wherever found. Several Negroes have been injured so severely they probably will die.

WAR SUMMARY.—Rome reports the capture of San Giovanni, across the Timavo river, on the road to Triest. Paris reports repulse of the Germans in the Champagne. London says enemy raiders northwest of Cherisy and south of Lens were driven back.

THE CHALICE OF ANTIOCH.

River Forest, Ill., May 24.—Are the art treasures of A Century of Progress to be disparaged by university professors? It would seem that some of them are quite willing to throw the cold water of doubt on the most highly valued exhibits, spoiling the interest and pleasure thousands of visitors would otherwise take in them.

A specific instance of an attempt to depreciate an exhibit of incomparable worth is that of Dr. Shirley J. Case of the University of Chicago, who attacks the identification of the great Chalice of Antioch, perhaps the most precious of all Christian relics and unquestionably the most valuable single exhibit at the Exposition.

Any one is entitled to his opinion, even though he may have no right of authority regarding the object in question, but Dr. Case's self-appointed task of keeping Chicago from being fooled by a relic accepted as genuine by his own colleague, Dr. A. T. Olmstead, professor of ancient oriental history at the university, is resented by those who really know the chalice. Dr. Olmstead says: "Competent scholars no longer question its authenticity." Please note the word "competent."

Chief among the authorities convinced that the chalice dates from the apostolic times and that the carved portraits with which it is decorated are actual likenesses of Christ, the four evangelists, and the writers of the epistles, is Dr. Gustavus A. Eisen. After studying the chalice for nearly nine years Dr. Eisen came to the conclusion that it is first century archæology and that its portraits are authentic likenesses. Every other great archæologist who has studied the chalice or Dr. Eisen's conclusions has accepted the dating as first century. Clark D. Lamberton, a great authority, says: "If I did not know the chalice was first century I would have to class it as B. C."

One who knows the character of Mr. Fahim Kouchakji, the owner, must resent the imputation Dr. Case so gratuitously makes that the chalice may have been fabricated to sell to some rich American or that it is being advertised to induce some wealthy person to buy it. Mr. Kouchakji has owned the chalice for twenty years, has consistently declined to sell it, and says that it could not be bought. He has kept it in a bank vault in New York and only once before has he consented to exhibit it to any but his personal friends. That was in 1931, at the Louvre in Paris, where the chalice was the chief feature of the International Exhibition of Christian Art and shown under the protection of the French government. Visitors to A Century of Progress will therefore enjoy a privilege which Mr. Kouchakji has denied the leading art museums of the world, excepting the Louvre. Incidentally, it should be said for Dr. Case's benefit that the Louvre is not in the habit of exhibiting anything that is not genuine, as scholars, of course, know. FREDERICK DOYLE.

MORE FORGETFUL THAN WICKED.

Chicago, May 13.—Who said Chicago is a bad, wicked city? Wednesday night I lost some papers on a bus, and the finder (unknown) mailed them to me promptly, thus saving me much worry and inconvenience. ELIZABETH SCHWARTZ.

SALES TAX REFUNDS.

Chicago, May 25.—Your correspondent, E. W. B., evidently did not read the newspapers very carefully, because a statement as to the National Tea company's plans appeared in the papers immediately after the law was held unconstitutional. It also is evident that he does not patronize either the National Tea company or A. & P. stores, because signs have been posted there for the benefit of the consumer, with a definite statement as to what would be done with the balance of the sales tax uncollected.

Signs reading as follows have been placed in all National Tea company stores in the state of Illinois:

"To obtain 3 per cent sales tax refund customers will please present cash register slips identifying purchases made by them from April 1 to May 10, 1933, inclusive, to manager of store where purchase was made. All refund claims must be made by the family that purchased the merchandise. Claims must be presented before June 15, 1933. Any amount of the 3 per cent sales tax collected by National Tea company for which no refund claim has been filed on or before June 15, 1933, will be turned over to the Emergency Welfare Fund in Cook county and to community or similar funds in other districts in which the tax was collected. The above plans subject to possible orders of unified action from state authorities."

FISHY.

Chicago, May 18.—Was your cameraman spoofing us? A picture in THE TRIBUNE of the 17th inst. shows a group of men elevated on a pier some three or four feet above the surface of the lake, transplanting some millions of baby fishes and holding the containers breast high while pouring the contents into the lake. If those men did as pictured, not one in a hundred of those fingerlings will be alive thirty days hence.

Transplanting baby fishes is a delicate operation. The cans containing them should be gently submerged and as gently tipped to permit the fingerlings to swim out. The picture is all wet or those transplanters sacrificed a million fingerlings to make it good to look at.

Cicero, Ill., May 26.—After reading L. W. Mason's article regarding your "Queen" contest I must say I certainly agree. Having personally submitted the photograph of a young woman whose beauty of feature and sweetness of expression would have attracted attention anywhere, I feel that THE TRIBUNE overlooked it for simply one reason—the fact that the address was in Cicero. What you have against us I do not know, but the next time I enter anything I'll make sure the address reads Chicago.

Weary Society Folk Find Long Holiday a Boon

Rest from Night Life of Fair Opening.

BY JUDITH CASS.

MORE than one hard working husband vowed Saturday noon when he locked his La Salle street desk that he wouldn't have another serious thought until 9 o'clock Wednesday morning. And fortunate, indeed, especially for those who contributed glamour and gayety to the dusk to dawn inaugural spectacle Saturday night in the Streets of Paris. In fact, these gentlemen [and ladies] need more than the calm and balm of one mere Memorial day in the country to recuperate.

No sooner had the young Norris Loves returned to the Walter Schuttlers' in Wheaton yesterday morning after a grand two weeks' honeymoon in Bermuda than they were welcomed by Mrs. Love's sister, Miss Jane Schuttler [Mrs. Love was Anne Schuttler before her marriage a fortnight ago] and a whole party of merry-makers returned from Paris. The whole day was spent in homecoming with occasional snatches of sleep at the Schuttlers' big country house, and now this morning the Loves are off again with their good friends, the James Otises, for two days of fishing near Charlevoix. At the same time Jane is leaving with the Press Hodgkins, Frank Wood, Miss Louise Brewer, the Madlener twins, Otto and William, and perhaps the young Solomon B. Smiths, for a two day Dutch treat motor trip. Yesterday they weren't quite decided what their destination would be, though they were considering Wawasee, Ind.

Solomon B. Smiths Pass Week-End in Country.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith were two of those who preferred the quiet and peace of the country Saturday to the night life of the World's Fair Montmartre. Saturday afternoon they packed their bags and went out to the Dunham Woods Riding club, that glorious rendezvous near St. Charles for some riding, tennis and golf. Others who are remaining at the club this holiday week-end are the Ambrose Cramers and the Joseph L. Valentines with a party of six.

Across from the riding club, in the handsome stone castle that dominates a hilltop, Mrs. Wirth S. Dunham has as guests her daughter, Mrs. John L. Dole, and her son, Peter Dole, just returned from Warm Springs, Ga. While there they were the guests of President and Mrs. Roosevelt for several days.

When Miss Betty Offield, wife Rogers Follansbee, retraced her steps across the gangplank of the S. S. America as the sun came up yesterday morning, she had only one thought and that was to get out to Lake Geneva as soon as possible. Miss Ann Elizabeth Walsh is one of her guests at the estate of her family, the James R. Offields, this holiday week-end. Several dozen more friends will come today and tomorrow.

Offields Give First Party on Yacht.

Preferring a quieter dinner than the Streets of Paris would allow, Mr. and Mrs. Offield had their first party this season Saturday night on their handsome yacht, the Cormorant, which interestingly enough takes its name from that bird peculiar to California climes, known for its speed in flying. While they enjoyed dinner and chatted with their guests, the E. R. Bacons, Mrs. Robert C. Wheeler, and Dr. William N. Senn, they cruised down past the Fair and enjoyed the fairyland of lights from the water.

One of the larger parties that has chosen a complete order of country for this extended week-end is made up of the Paget Cadys, the Cyrus C. Hills, the James W. Rogerses, the Louis C. Sudlers, the C. Prentiss Andrews and the McLean Hoggsons, who moved to Chicago recently from New York. They are occupying a cottage belonging to some relatives of the Cadys in Palisades park, near South Haven.

Over at their summer home at Long Beach, Mich., are Dr. and Mrs. Chester Morris with Mr. and Mrs. R. Stephan Hoye of Lake Shore drive as their guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Byron S. Harvey left Thursday to have a prolonged visit with the Thorne Donnelleys at their farm in Bardstown, Ky. The very fact that this farm is across the road from "The Old Kentucky Home" gives some idea of its charm.

Other vacationers who stole an extra day to make an extended trip are Miss Barbara Graf, Miss Caryl Bloomingson, Eugene Talbot, and Torrey Wilkins. The four of them left by motor Friday for a couple of days' visit with young Mr. Wilkins' family in Omaha.

Young Sinclairs Visiting in Detroit.

Wells Sinclair and his sister, Miss Margaret Sinclair, son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Jennings Sinclair, motored out of town Saturday for a visit with their good friends, the Donald La Chances, who are now making their home in Detroit. Miss Sinclair will be away for a week or more, but Mr. Sinclair is returning to business Wednesday.

The Edwin W. Simses were in one of the large Dutch treat parties Saturday night at the World's Fair ball and yesterday they were among those to set out for the country. They are spending the holiday at their ranch at Au Gres, Mich., where Mrs. Sims will soon go for the summer. At the Lake Geneva house of the Kellogg Fairbanks this week-end there is a strictly family house party. Mr. and Mrs. Fairbank, Janet, Ben, and Kellogg Jr. motored up late Saturday night.

When Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Brorby

THE STAGE

A play called "Cementum" was staged in the Chicago Woman's Club theater last night in the hope of a ten days' run. Several professionals, including Judith Vosselli and Bram Nossen, are in the cast. This piece is obviously of inexperienced authorship. Its curious title comes from the vocabulary of dentistry. The word, according to Webster's dictionary, means:

"The layer of true bone investing the root and neck and sometimes parts of the crown of the teeth of mammals."

The author, Marcelite Englander, starts her play with a prologue in a dentist's anteroom and announces that when a dental tool comes in contact with an area of exposed cementum the patient does not enjoy the experience. This fact is then twisted into a symbol of the soul pains of the refined heroine when suddenly faced with the cynical realities of life. "Cementum" is probably the only play ever written that has used dental technique as a symbol.

The Jack Pearl-Paul Whiteman revue, officially known as "Nuts to You," will continue in performance twice a day at the Oriental theater until next Sunday night. This plan extends the engagement three days beyond the original booking.

Lenore Ulric will begin an engagement at the Grand Opera house tonight in a comedy called "Angel," written by Wilson Collison . . . Katharine Cornell's Chicago appearances in "Alien Corn" will begin at the Harris theater a week from tonight . . . "Gay Divorce," a musical comedy of New York popularity, will come to the Apollo theater July 3 for a World's Fair engagement. Joseph Santley will appear in the rôle originated by Fred Astaire.

The American Theater society's plans for Chicago next season include three Theater Guild productions and three plays staged by other managers. The Guild's offerings will be: "Biography," with Ina Claire; "The School for Husbands," Moliere's comedy in a modern adaptation; and a third piece to be chosen from several manuscripts now under consideration. The plays to be submitted by other managers will include "The Nobel Prize," adapted from the Swedish, with Otis Skinner as star, and a new comedy by Claire Kummer with Roland Young in the leading rôle.

The society announces that its subscription campaign will be conducted from its New York office, 245 West 52d street, during the summer. A Chicago office will be opened early in the fall.

Luigi Ruffino's Operatic Arias Received with Great Delight

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Luigi Ruffino, a tenor with considerable operatic experience here and elsewhere, gave a song recital at the Studebaker theater yesterday afternoon. The main part of his program consisted of operatic arias interspersed with songs that in recent years have been enjoying considerable popularity, such as "Princesita" and "Ay, Ay, Ay."

All were received with great delight by the audience, and with considerable reason. Particularly in the arias, Mr. Ruffino's resonant voice, open throat, earnest manner, and well routined style were factors in projecting his singing to the best advantage. He was generous with encores.

He was assisted by Ruth Sokol Mills, soprano, also possessed of a voice of power and quality. She was heard in Moussorgsky's "To the Little Star," which she sang well, and in an arrangement of one of the Chopin études, which she also sang well, but in which even her art could not conceal the fact that it is a better composition in its original piano form than in transcription.

Mrs. Frederick W. Upham, first vice chairman of the Chicago Friends of Music, sends word that there is error in the published statement to the effect that all seats have been sold for the first concert of the Chicago Symphony orchestra at the Auditorium June 7. All the boxes have been sold for the event, but Mrs. Upham states that there are plenty of good seats still available at prices ranging from 25 cents in the gallery to $1.50 on the main floor. The box office will be open at 9 o'clock this morning.

A cablegram from London says that Rosa Raisa, soprano of the late Civic Opera company, appeared in Tosca in the like named opera at the opening of the Covent Garden, London, season, and scored a great success. Twenty curtain calls were given her, which is something like what used to happen when she sang it here. The wire adds that after the London season she will come to Chicago to visit A Century of Progress Exposition.

Good Morning!

"Elmer the Great" is an adaptation of the stage comedy by Ring Lardner and George M. Cohan. It was screened before—so splendidly—under the title of "Fast Company," with Jack Oakie in the lead.

This version has, of course, the value of timeliness. The story deals with the adventures in the Big League of a dumb cluck of a sticks baseball player whose brain—if you can call it that—is all in his arms and legs.

Elmer's phenomenal work on the Gentryville team lands the swaggering, conceited, gluttonous, wooden headed yahoo—whom Jack Oakie managed to make a lovable, and at times a tragic, figure—with the Cubs. His colossal conceit and stupidity provide constant amusement for the team and sports writers and keep him jumping from hot plate to hot plate—though most of the time his thick skin is impervious to heat. The film ends with an exciting game—the last of the "serious," which, against terrific odds, Elmer wins for the Cubs.

As for romance—he's in love with a home town girl—played sweetly by Patricia Ellis. She returns his affection and, as the picture ends, is about to take him in tow for life—which, I would say, proves her not much brighter than the boy friend.

The supporting cast is alive with able craftsmen who get little break due to inferior direction and Brown's limelight monopoly. The director seems to have started the picture with the idea of making it a broad burlesque. That he changed his mind appears evident. Mr. Brown, however, apparently, got out of hand. His performance is incredibly ham. It couldn't be worse if he had maliciously tried to make a failure of the rôle.

Some Unknown Woman

By Elisabeth Sanxay Holding

SYNOPSIS.

Dinah Allen and Jane Rosslyn are roommates in a Manhattan boarding house. Dinah, from the south, envies and imitates Jane's air of mystery and sophistication. Jack Fiske, a young boarder from Vermont, is head over heels in love with Dinah, who considers him just a hick. Dinah and Jane stroll to the corner drug store for sodas. A good looking young man in a silk hat, not quite sober, invites the girls for a ride in his car. To Dinah's surprise Jane accepts for both of them. He takes them to his home. Dinah soon finds herself left alone, with Jane's purse instead of her own. In Jane's purse Dinah finds an automatic pistol. All the lights are turned out. Dinah rushes for the door and is grabbed by strong arms. She shoots. Jane reappears. She rushes Dinah away from the scene of their host lying in a pool of blood. Next morning the papers carry the story of the murder of Philip Divine, Broadway playboy, and said there were two bullet wounds. Jane and Dinah saw a tall, dark man with a mustache as they left Philip Divine's house. Jane recognizes Jack Fiske's sterling qualities and tries to bring Dinah and him together. Jane admits to Dinah that she knew Philip Divine before and that she also shot him. Jane goes to the theater with Jack after Dinah refuses him. Dinah has a caller. He introduces himself as Pierre Baron. He is the tall, dark man with the mustache. Dinah promises to have dinner with him next evening. Baron tells Dinah that Divine was secretly married to Jane. Dinah resents his hatred of Jane and doesn't trust Baron. She tells him it was she who shot Divine. Jane confesses to Fiske that she shot Divine and that she'd brought Dinah to his home. Jane's efforts to shield Dinah win Jack's admiration. Jane leaves, not telling Dinah or Jack where she is going. Baron's sister, Jerry, a dancer, calls in search of Jane. She claims to have been married to Divine. She expects to frighten Jane into supporting her claim. Divine's widow will collect an inheritance. She moves in with Dinah.

INSTALLMENT XXV.

A PANTHERINE CREATURE.

"Can you lend me a nightie or pajamas?" asked Jerry. "I hate to be such a nuisance, darling——"

The panther was purring now, and Dinah made haste to provide her with everything she wanted.

"Is this Jane's bed? I love a bed where I can look out of the window. I've had such a miserable sort of life. Touring, you know. Have you ever seen me dance? Carmen Clavel is my stage name. My mother was—Cuban, but my father was American, and we were brought up here, Pierre and I——"

"Pierre——?"

"Yes!" said Jerry, with wide, innocent eyes. "Pierre Baron. That's my brother, you know."

"I see!" said Dinah as casually as she could.

Dinah got into her own bed, and closed her eyes. She was too fatigued, too overwhelmed by the events of this evening to be able to think. But she could feel. And chief among her feelings was her sense of loss.

Jane was gone, her faithful friend. And Fiske, so to speak, was gone, too. He was still here in the body, but his sudden and unworthy infatuation for Jerry made him worse than useless. And Pierre Baron, too, was lost.

She told herself that he was no friend to regret, but a stranger, whom she had done well to distrust. Nevertheless, she did regret him. Almost since childhood she had dreamed of meeting a man like that, a man with the manner, the distinction, the easy charm and good looks of Pierre Baron. In her fantasy, this man was always to fall in love with her at first sight—just as Pierre Baron said he had done, and she was to treat him a little badly at first.

But if this ideal hero was to have been dark, debonair and fervent as Baron, there the likeness ended. He could certainly never misunderstand Jane, never be the brother of this cruel, pantherine creature. Dinah fell asleep from sheer weariness.

What it was that awakened her she did not know. Simply she opened her eyes and saw a little point of light sailing through the air. For a moment it meant nothing to her; she lay watching it indifferently. Then she realized that it was an electric torch carried by her unwelcome guest, but still that did not interest her particularly. It was not until she heard a drawer open softly that she sat up in bed. Jerry was at the little desk she and Jane had shared.

"What do you want?" Dinah demanded scornfully.

The little point of light turned, was directed full in her face; came nearer and nearer.

"Dinah——" said a soft, sibilant little voice she scarcely recognized. "Shut up! You are such a fool——!"

With the light in her eyes, Dinah could see nothing of the other girl.

"What were you doing?" she asked, valiantly concealing her dismay.

"I'm doing anything I like—any time," said Jerry. "And you're not going to interfere, you little fool. You'd better understand that. If you hadn't asked me to stay here tonight, you'd be in jail—now, this instant."

"I would not!" said Dinah, promptly; but her voice was not steady.

"And you'll go to prison any moment I feel like sending you," Jerry went on. "As long as you behave yourself I'll let you alone—because it suits me. But if you give me any trouble——"

Suddenly she switched on the light.

"Pull down the shades!" cried Dinah, drawing the covers up to her chin. "People can see in."

"I won't pull down the shades. I know who shot Philip——"

"O, do hush!" Dinah entreated in terror. "Not so loud."

"I'll yell if I like," said Jerry.

Springing out of bed Dinah put on her dressing gown and pulled down the shades; then she got back into bed and, on that warm summer night, her teeth were chattering.

"Please—talk more quietly," she said. "Please—sit down. You see—it's so late. Every one else is asleep. And your voice carries so——"

"You'd better say 'please,'" said Jerry, and sat down on Jane's bed facing Dinah. "That damned, arrogant Jane of yours just treated me like a dog. And it was a big mistake. People that treat me like that—get paid back. She's going to get paid back. You know where she is——"

"I don't. I tell you I don't."

"Of course you know," said Jerry. "You helped her to get away. You are bosom friends, you two. You can reach her whenever you want. And you will, too, when I'm ready. Just now I don't need her. I'll let her alone and you, too—as long as you don't irritate me. But if you do——I know who shot Philip. I know whose handkerchief that is."

Dinah was making a desperate effort to think clearly.

"If you really did know," she said, "you'd have told the police. It's a crime not to tell when you know."

"What do I care for the police?" said Jerry. "And what do I care about crimes either? I never get into any trouble, whatever I do. Because I'm not a stupid, silly little prude like you."

"I don't believe you know a thing," said Dinah boldly.

For if this were a bluff she meant to call it. And if it were not a bluff—if it were true—she vitally needed to know.

"Don't you?" said Jerry. "Don't you? And wouldn't you believe me if I told you you were wearing a blue dress that evening—a hideous dress, with a white ruffle down the front, a cheap, horrible, countryfied dress, and a black hat with a wide brim that made you look like a wax doll?"

"Any one with one vestige of taste would know that was a very good dress!" she said, hotly. "It's a really good model——"

"I hate blondes!" said Jerry. "I hate them and loathe them! They're all alike, too. All nasty, insipid, treacherous little cats. All of them! No heart and no brains——"

"It's lucky for us that every one doesn't agree with you," said Dinah, with a faint, chilly smile.

She was surprised and not altogether pleased by the effect of this repartee. For Jerry grew white, her eyes narrowed. She looked at Dinah with a truly shocking hatred.

"You wait!" she said, and, jumping up, turned out the light.

Dinah would have scoffed at the idea that she could sleep, lying wide eyed and tense in the dark. Yet sleep came to her; she was awakened by the familiar sound of Jane's alarm clock.

In the first waking moment she remembered nothing, was conscious only of a drowsy surprise that Jane didn't stop the alarm with her usual promptness. Then she thought how strange it was that the shades should be drawn down—and then she remembered and sat up just as her guest threw the little clock across the room where it crashed against the wall and was still.

"Do let me sleep!" she cried.

"But I've got to go to work——" said Dinah.

"Well, go to work. Who cares? But I don't have to and I'm going to sleep for hours more."

"If she imagines I'm going to get out and leave her here to snoop around in the desk and all Jane's things——" thought Dinah, and aloud: "You can't get any breakfast after nine o'clock," she said.

"Can't I?" said Jerry. "I can get breakfast any time, at any place I like. Now let me alone! I'm tired."

BY MARY MEADE.

I have a salad shelf in my brain. Lined up in neat rows I keep a dozen or so of the old favorites within easy reach. Next come the not-so-oftens—the ones which are called in now and again to cheer up a meal that seems ordinary. And then come the not-yets—those alluring sounding salad tips which one picks up here and there, now and then, but just hasn't yet had a chance to try out.

But recently on one of those days when one's soul yearns for something new I looked upon the salad shelf and found—Shanghai salad! It sounded intriguing. It looked easy. It tasted (can't you taste a recipe sometimes before you even try it?) delicious. And it certainly was different.

So I tried it . . . and now I turn it over to you with the stamp of approval of every diner who has smiled on it.

SHANGHAI SALAD.

This calls for just two ingredients—a can of assorted oriental vegetables and your favorite flavorsome salad dressing. That's all—yet it really involves all kinds of variety bringing it forth from that one can of crisp eastern ingredients. The ordinary can on the market contains bamboo shoots, water chestnuts, and bean sprouts, all ready for use at the first signal from the can opener. Or, if you desire, ask for separate cans of these ingredients—and do your own mixing.

Simply rinse the vegetables in cold water. Next make salad nests of part of the bean sprouts. In each nest arrange the bamboo shoots, water chestnuts, and the balance of the bean sprouts. Chill till very cold and serve the salads with a garnish of salad dressing.

Then, while looking about on my salad shelf—up above the ears—I discovered this spring salad with a Chinese quirk:

ORIENTAL SALAD.

3 cups bean sprouts
1 cup pineapple juice
Mayonnaise flavored with soy sauce
Chopped walnut meats
Preserved kumquats (as garnish)
Lettuce

Turn the bean sprouts into the pineapple juice and boil gently for ten minutes, tossing to let all of the sprouts come in contact with the juice. Drain out the sprouts and chill. The remaining juice may be saved for later use in a sauce or dressing. When ready to serve, pile the sprouts lightly in lettuce cups and dress with mayonnaise which has been flavored slightly with soy sauce. Sprinkle each salad with finely chopped nuts and garnish with preserved kumquats—or not, just as you like.

I doubt if you'll be able to resist the temptation of playing about with crisp bean sprouts once you introduce them to the family. They do such interesting things to the textures of so many dishes.

EASTERN WALDORF SALAD.

To make Eastern Waldorf salad be unorthodox and forget about the nuts for once and merely mix equal parts of finely cut apple, celery, and bean sprouts together. Dash on the appropriate amount of mayonnaise and pile into a lettuce lined salad bowl. Over the top sprinkle minced preserved kumquats if you have them, minced maraschino cherries, and, if you so desire, chopped nuts.

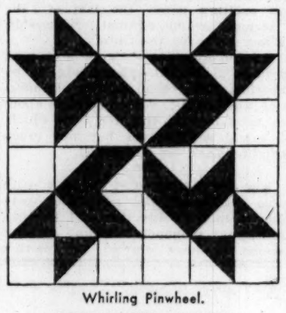
Flaming Sparks Are Pictured in Effective Quilt



Whirling Pinwheel.

BY NANCY CABOT.

The dazzling pinwheel provided the incentive in the designing of this quilt pattern—"Whirling Pinwheel." Older examples of this design were pieced in red and white, portraying as realistically as possible the flaming sparks of the exploding pyrotechnical piece in motion. Other colors or prints might be used to produce an equally effective result.

For a pattern of this quilt design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn.

MINUTE MYSTERY

BY H. A. RIPLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his casebook covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

AN IMITATION.

As he turned into the drive of the old country home, Prof. Fordney observed that it was in darkness except for the light from the second floor window facing northeast.

"Was that her room?" he wondered.

An hour before Bill Duncan, an old schoolmate, had called and in a very mysterious manner asked Fordney to come to him quickly. Duncan, in an excited voice, said something had happened to his fiancée, who was a guest at his home.

As Fordney turned off the ignition switch he thought he heard a low whistle behind him. Where had he heard that particular sound before? He sat motionless for a moment, then quietly stepped out of his car, looked up and saw a shadow pass across the lighted window of the otherwise darkened house. He listened. What was that sound? Was his imagination too active tonight? He was tired . . . it was past midnight.

Silently he turned the knob of the front door and, finding it unlocked, entered the hall and quietly called "Bill." Getting no response and knowing the house well he stealthily opened the library door on his right. With one hand on the knob, the other clutching his gun, he stood for a moment, stunned. Hardened as he was to sudden and violent death, he recoiled in amazement—he saw his friend Duncan lying face downward—a knife in his back!

WHAT WAS IT?

Rest from Night Life of Fair Opening.

Charles W. Isaacs Jr. Opens Wisconsin Camp.

Another summer home that has been opened is the camp of the junior Charles W. Isaacs at Dover Lake, Wis. With the exception of a trip here late in August to see A Century of Progress they will be away until October. With them over Memorial day are Mr. and Mrs. David B. Peck II. and Miss Emily Isaacs of St. Louis.

Edward Wilson, son of the Thomas E. Wilsons, has chosen to spend his holiday in the south. With the William Averys of Evanston, he motored down to the Averys' farm near Louisville Saturday. His original intention was to leave town Friday, but he remained over a day to accept an invitation with Miss Theodore Shaw to the colorful party and pageant Friday night at which the Queen of the World's Fair was crowned.

Clambake on Dune to Be Gay Event.

Last week we heard about the festive clambake fifteen young couples are to have this coming week-end on a Michigan sand dune, but it wasn't until Saturday night when we heard John Richardson, one of the promoters, tell Miss Anne Small about the plans while enjoying a beer at the International bar in the Streets of Paris that we realized what a gay event it is to be.

Early next Sunday morning—at 10 o'clock to be exact—Mr. Richardson, Edwin Stanley, Carrington Clark, and Phillip Hosmer, the four sponsors, with their guests are boarding a chartered yacht with accommodations for 35 and crossing the lake to the Michigan shore. On the yacht, besides guests, will be a tubful of clams and a chef expert in their preparation, besides a couple of accordions, radios, and Victrolas.

Mr. Richardson says they will return by 8 o'clock, but it is almost a safe guess they will prefer instead to come by moonlight. Invited are, among others, Jack Couch, Mr. and Mrs. John MacLaren Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar L. Marston II., Cyrus Adams, John Baker, Miss Marjorie Goodman with her fiancé, Bud Dewey, and his sister, Miss Louise Dewey, and Miss Virginia Cross and her house guest, Miss Helen Louise Cheek.

James Simpsons Return Tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. James Simpson will arrive at home tomorrow from a quick trip to Europe.

Prof. and Mrs. James H. Breasted land in New York today after five months of travel and it is not certain yet whether they are coming directly to Chicago or not.

Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine and her sister, Mrs. Vernon A. Booth of New York, are sailing this week for England to spend the summer abroad.

Scribner FitzHugh, son of the Carter Harrison FitzHughs of Lake Forest, sailed Saturday on the Saturnia for a leisurely two months of European travel. He will make his way up through Italy and then on to Vienna, where he expects to spend several weeks. His return is scheduled for early August. Traveling on the same boat is Mrs. W. David Owen of Lake Forest with her family.

Miss Betty Brawley to Visit in Milwaukee.

Next Tuesday Miss Betty Brawley will go to Milwaukee with the Mitchell Mackies and their daughter, Janet, to visit them for a week or ten days. Mr. and Mrs. Mackie and Miss Mackie, who live at Fox Point, will be here Monday to find an apartment in town to occupy during part of A Century of Progress. Miss Mackie went to school in Washington with many Chicago girls and so has many friends here.

Miss Brawley's sister, Mrs. Harold W. Lewis, and her small daughter, Mary Catherine, have returned to their Oak Park home after a month in town with Dr. and Mrs. Frank E. Brawley. Mrs. Lewis was recuperating from an operation.

Mrs. Ralph H. Poole Returns from East.

Bright and early Saturday morning Mrs. Ralph H. Poole and her daughter, Barbara, motored into town. They have had several weeks in the east visiting Nancy, who is at school at St. Timothy's at Catonsville, Md., and Ralph Jr., who is in his junior year at Princeton.

Mrs. Albert de W. Erskine will be arriving at home early next month from a brief visit at the home of her relatives, the William Gibbs McAdoos, in California. Pretty Ellen McAdoo, who has just been graduated from the Hacienda del Sol school in Tucson, isn't coming with Mrs. Erskine, as the young people here who know her had hoped she would do, but later in the summer, when she goes to Washington with her parents, she will stop in Chicago for a visit, according to present plans.

Child Changes in Behavior as He Matures

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Children change. From year to year, from phase to phase. We must expect changes in behavior. But many of us don't.

The little girl of 8 is not going to show the same kind of docility as the baby girl of 3 whose mother and father are her whole universe. The 8 year old has been out in the world—she's developed definite ideas, perhaps, and strong likes and dislikes. She may be as sweet and reasonable as any mother could wish, but if she's been reared intelligently she won't show the same kind of docility. It's right that it should be so, yet many mothers will bewail it.

Children change. But too often parents don't change in the surface parts of their management for fundamentals, of course, remain the same. But you can't treat a child of 8 as you do one of 3. With the 8 year old you will explain more, reason more, and sit down and talk things over together. Parents must be flexible in their management and let a change in age as well as the child's temperament and way of developing figure in their handling.

Take the matter of bedtime as an example. The little boy of 4, we'll say, who has been even reasonably well trained, goes to bed without question. It doesn't occur to him to ask if he may stay up late—it has been necessary in order to form good habits to be practically undeviating in his routine.

But when that little boy has grown long and strong and perhaps 9 or 12 years old the things that are happening in the evenings are interesting to him; he hates to go to bed. Besides he's sure to have homework, and that means less leisure. So at 9 or 12 if he begins to beg to stay up, if he isn't docile about bedtime, it's not surprising. The fact that "he didn't use to act this way" has nothing to do with the case.

Then, instead of taking for granted that the hands on the clock are his command we use different tactics. We talk this over, perhaps help him to plan his time so he'll get more out of it, explain about the need for sleep, and possibly compromise on moving the bed hour along a little.

Children change in behavior as they grow older and more independent. We need to be flexible and not treat them always like babies.

The booklet "How to Gain Obedience" embodies principles that are helpful to parents of children of all ages. In requesting this send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Money Sense, Mutual Respect, for Happy Union

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"What, in your opinion, are outstanding essentials in starting out on the marriage venture? I mean, what two or three things do you find from your large correspondence need most to be observed by a couple? BRIDE."

Boiled down to two things, they would be an understanding about money and a big type of caution not to try making each other over. These may not be the two most outstanding causes of domestic trouble, but they're current enough to raise a lot of havoc.

The money question is certainly one that breeds all kind of difficulties. Sometimes there's unfair division of it, or maybe no division at all! Mismanaged money due to ignorance of the financial status of the wage earner is another cause of woe. Overspending for show, and so on, still another, to say nothing of the money problems peculiar to the unions in which two wage earning envelopes appear.

We won't have time nor space to go into the many facets of the money question. We would only advise young couples starting out to act rationally toward money, to realize it has to be budgeted in some sensible way, if not on a strict budgeting formula, and that a dollar's value should be learned at once. Also, that sentiment be kept as much out of the money question as is humanly possible.

We mean for the young couple to go into a business huddle, talk money in terms of businesslike application, so that each knows his and her responsibility in the deal. We find the "sentimental" assumption that "all will come out right" the basis of no end of money squabbling later on. Get this money business settled and over with as quickly and as painlessly as possible. You are two people going into a new business. You must know the financial circumstances before you can act intelligently.

What you decide on as a fair division of your combined resources is your business, but let it be businesslike. The one way to keep money bickerings out of your married life is to tackle the subject in the beginning.

The other thing we'd stress is that trouble making fault of trying to make over your partner to suit some crazy "ideal" plan in your head. If man or girl were good enough to take to the altar, he or she is good enough to live with "as is."

Fair Luncheons Start Today at Art Institute

Mrs. Chauncey McCormick Is First Hostess.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

DISTINGUISHED visitors and contributors to our World's Fair are to have the distinct privilege of enjoying the favorite menus of some of our most distinguished hostesses. This noon, at the Art institute, the first of a series of luncheons for A Century of Progress guests planned by the wives of the trustees of the institute is to be held in the gallery restaurant.

The plan calls for three luncheons each week for the duration of the Fair. And every seven days it calls for a new hostess, assisted by three of her especial friends.

Mrs. Chauncey McCormick has been chosen the first hostess. So at 12:30 this noon she will serve several of her favorite menus and spread the tables with her own linens and silver for a group of guests who will include Leo Katz, artist of "the world's largest mural at the Fair," Jack Uegley and Lloyd Griffin, official broadcasters, and Shepard Vogelsang, the director of lighting for the Exposition.

Assisting Mrs. McCormick today will be Mrs. Donald M. Ryerson. Tomorrow it will be Mrs. Paul Welling, and and on Friday Mr. Howell Erminger Jr.

Invited to Preview of Hall of Races.

Invitations are going into the mail today for a party very closely related to A Century of Progress. It is the private preview of Malvina Hoffman's Hall of Races of Mankind a week from this afternoon in the east wing of the lower floor of the Field museum.

The guest list for this preview is almost as distinguished as the hall itself. And best of all, Miss Hoffman [Mrs. Samuel B. Grimson in private life] is returning to Chicago to have a cordial word with her many admirers on this occasion. It will be remembered that she was here only a couple of months back to give these sculptures their finishing touches and tell about them before the American Friends of China at a brilliant party at the Arts club.

As then, Mr. and Mrs. Grimson will probably stay this week with their good friends, the Charles Garfield Kings. Plans now are that they will arrive at the weed-end with Mrs. William Draper [Mrs. Grimson's sister] and Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Field, who want to be here for the opening of this anthropological exhibit as well as for the Fair. After June 5 the new hall is to be open to the public.

Fair Fashion Show to Have Gala Opening.

This afternoon, from 3 to 4 o'clock, the socialites who have given Mrs. Ford Rodman Carter support, moral if not otherwise, in planning the fashion shows that she is to give all during the Fair at the Blue Ribbon casino, will be her guests for the gala opening show and later at tea. Among them will be Mrs. Laurance H. Armour, Mrs. A. Watson Armour, Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Mrs. Secor Cunningham, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Mrs. Charles H. Swift, Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe, Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman, Mrs. Walter Paepcke, Mrs. John R. Winterbotham Jr., Mrs. James Simpson, Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed, Mrs. Francis Johnson, Mrs. Henry Faurot Jr., Mrs. Orville Taylor, Mrs. Howard F. Gillette, Mrs. James R. Offield, Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy, Mrs. Paul Walker, Mrs. Stuart Logan, Mrs. Frank Hibbard, Mrs. Townsend McKeever and Mrs. Fletcher M. Durbin.

Miss Betty Archer, daughter of the J. D'Wolf Archers of Evanston, will help to carry the laurel chain for the commencement exercises at Connecticut college week after next, and then rush home to entertain for her good friend, Miss Nancy Kling, whom she is to serve as bridesmaid June 17. Miss Archer is issuing invitations from New London, Conn., today for a bridge tea and hosiery shower for Miss Kling the afternoon of June 13 at the Westmoreland Country club.

Artificial Blonde Hair Is Waning in Its Popularity

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Emily Post in one of the current monthlies divides the blonds into four groups: The noon-day blond, the moon blond, the negative blond and the plain blond.

Maybe etiquette forbids Mrs. Post from mentioning the platinum blond, the straw blond, the over-bleached, yellow sizzling blond. But she is with us, more than one representative of her from each group, as you'll note in a day's moving about.

I note, however, the same trend away from the artificial blondness that is observed in other fields where the unnatural begins to pall. Certainly the platinum Miss is not so radiantly present as she was a year, two years ago. The yellow blond, who got that way by loss of color sense after a few bleaching operations, is still with us in numbers. Her obviously yellowed tresses may only be explained by the loss of color proportion as time goes on.

And this is a point I'd like to stress as the danger point in changing hair color. It's a well known fact that the olfactory sense becomes dulled after a period of using a perfume. And for this reason a perfume "smell" follows in the wake of the wearer instead of a scent. Likewise, the eye becomes dulled after a few bleaching operations and in order to make the hair seem bleached a stronger and stronger preparation is applied. Or, it may be the same with the use of henna.

The best way I know to correct this common mistake is to cultivate an honest friend and be willing to listen to what she says. Better be just a bit underdone as to foregin color, is another caution to keep you on the safe side. I have nothing in the world against touching up the hair if one feels the need of so donig. It may have good psychological value as well as beauty value. But you've got to keep a sharp eye in your head and frequently warn yourself against overdoing. If you feel you've overstepped good color taste you may indulge in a drab rinse which takes that brassy yellow out of the hair.

While arbitrary rules cannot be laid down for dressing any type today, this one does hold: The less natural blond you are, the more you must be garbed in clothes of simplicity and distinction. Bright colors and shoddy materials add cheapness to an already dangerous hair trend that way.

Movie Studios Race to Offer Film of Fair

Scenarist Is Flying Here to Frame Story.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., May 28.—[Special.]—The opening of A Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago resulted in such a flood of glowing reports to Hollywood that several studios are off at the post in a wild race to reach the screen with the first Chicago World's Fair film story.

The Columbia studio sent Robert Riskin, its ace scenarist, and a camera man to Chicago by plane yesterday.

Riskin's assignment is to drink in the sights and sounds of the Fair, shoot a flock of sequences for background and atmosphere, and pound out an original screen plot as fast as he can.

His story will be titled "World's Fair," and at the studio they say, "We think it is sure fire. We hope to equal or top Fox's 'State Fair.'"

Fred Kohler Jr. is understudying Charlie Bickford in the latter's outstanding rôle in Cecil De Mille's "This Day and Age" at Paramount. That may sound uncomplimentary to Bickford, but "Zeus" De Mille wants every one of his principal characters to have a stand-in man who not only must know the principal's dialogue and action, but must have the same makeup and be at all times prepared to go through with the part, if anything happens.

One of the most interesting film plans in a long time is Radio's proposal to do a modernized version of "Cyrano de Bergerac" in the same locations, and with men of the same stock depicted, but with the setting in 1914, and the hero a French "Blue Devil" of the Alpine chasseurs instead of the De Gascoigne.

The plan is to shoot action in the romantic French locations of the Rostand original as much as possible, and that bucko of a writer, Laurence Stallings, is on his way to Paris. The Cyrano of this modern version will be John Barrymore, in all probability, and, does this rôle make John's mouth water? Barrymore wanted for years to do Francois Villon in Paris, but when he did do it the film fell rather flat; so this opportunity will give him a chance to out-Villon Villon.

Jean Harlow becomes a singer in "Hold Your Man," in which she is just completing a co-starring film with Clark Gable at MGM. The title of her song number is the same as the title of the film.

Tom Brown has been borrowed from Universal to appear in Paramount's "Three Cornered Moon," with Arlen, Oakie, and Claudette Colbert. Here's a reversal from the former routine in Hollywood: Claudette Colbert is having candidates for cameramen tested before she will O. K. one to photograph her. In the past it used to be the cameraman who tested the actresses, to see which girl would fit in the picture.

START brushing your teeth with Kolynos. In just a few days they'll look whiter—shades whiter. They'll feel much cleaner. Here's the reason: Kolynos does what ordinary toothpastes can't do. As it removes ugly stain and tarnish—it foams into every tiny crevice and kills millions of germs that are the known cause of most tooth and gum troubles.

Thus Kolynos gives RESULTS YOU CAN SEE. Cleaner, whiter teeth. Healthier looking gums. Give up incompetent ways of brushing and start using the Kolynos technique—a half-inch of this remarkable dental cream on a dry brush twice a day. It's the better, quicker way to cleaner, whiter teeth—try it.

U. S. URGED TO PUT SUPERHIGHWAY IN RELIEF PROGRAM

Survey Shows West Side Needs Elevated Road.

BY HAL FOUST.

Lafayette Markle, president of the Chicago Automobile Trade association, yesterday joined those urging the inclusion of a west side elevated highway in an unemployment relief program sponsored by President Roosevelt under a $3,300,000,000 appropriation bill pending in congress.

"If, as has been proposed, part of this expenditure is to be financed by an increase in the federal gasoline tax," said Mr. Markle, "there is no question but what the construction should include a public works of special benefit to the motorists. Even without this added federal gas tax, the motorists are entitled to something in return for the 1 cent per gallon that they are now paying to the government.

Opportunity for Relief.

"Furthermore, there is no public works in the state of Illinois that could do more for Chicago and for all northern Illinois than the construction of adequate motor transportation facilities through this city's west side. This has been established definitely in traffic surveys and economic studies.

"Aside from the economic need for such an improvement, the project is an outstanding opportunity for unemployment relief. It has been estimated by competent engineers that as many as 27,000 men might be employed directly and indirectly in the construction.

"Incidentally, the automobile industry in Chicago, the dealers of this city, would benefit from an elevated highway through the west side. The improved facilities for operating a motor car would enhance the value of a vehicle in the hands of its owner."

Congestion Cuts Auto's Use.

Ald. John Massen, chaiman of the city council traffic committee, which made a year's study of Chicago's motor transportation system, estimated that stimulated automobile ownership and usage from an elevated highway might be great enough in itself to justify the cost of the improvement. He figured that the additional gas tax revenue and state license fee receipts might be sufficient to pay for the structure.

The city traffic survey, under the direction of Dr. Miller McClintock, head of Harvard university's traffic research bureau, found that the present congestion on the west side materially reduced the use of automobiles in that area. An excerpt from his report reads:

"It is apparent that the superior lake shore facilities have encouraged a use habit among owners which has resulted in a far more intensive use of their vehicles and thus in a far larger contribution of user revenue [gas and license taxes].

"The converse, that other heavy population areas within the city have been retarded in their utilization of vehicles by relatively inferior facilities, would seem to follow. These areas should be stimulated by traffic improvements."

Whether a west side elevated highway wil be included in President Roosevelt's three billion dollar unemployment relief program will depend mainly upon whether the state, Cook county, and the city of Chicago reach an agreement promptly as to the specific route and the design. The President wants the money spent on projects that will furnish jobs without delay in centers of unemployment.

TWINS, ONE ON CHARITY ROLLS, SEIZED IN THEFT

Brothers on Moonshine Spree Take Car.

Donald and Clarence Stevens, twins, 21 years old, 6537 Kenwood avenue, were captured by South Park police yesterday after several squads had surrounded a public garage at 5122 Lake Park avenue in which the brothers attempted to hide. The brothers concealed themselves in the garage after they fled from a stolen automobile which crashed into a light post in the outer drive at Hyde Park boulevard.

Clarence, who is married and is receiving emergency relief for the idle, told police he made 25 cents Saturday by selling old papers and bottles. With this money, he said, he and his brother bought two pints of moonshine which they drank. He said they stole the car "just to take a ride."

Motorcycle Policemen William Hord and Ernest Osborne saw the twins driving an uncertain and weaving course in the outer drive and gave chase. As the brothers attempted to turn into Hyde Park boulevard the car crashed into a light post.

The twins fled. The policemen fired several shots at the fleeing brothers, who ran into the garage. The policemen followed them into the garage and the brothers climbed to the second floor where they took refuge among cars parked there.

While Hord stood guard at the stairway, Policeman Osborne put in a call for aid. Four squads responded and policemen surrounded the building. When the brothers saw they were surrounded they surrendered.

They were taken to the Hyde Park police station where they were charged with the theft of the car.

GOVERNOR AND MAYOR DISCUSS REVENUE PLANS

Members of a joint legislative taxation committee met yesterday with Gov. Horner, Mayor Kelly and other officials to discuss legislation to provide relief funds. No action was taken by the committee. Further consideration is to be given to the problem today.

The committee is planning to draft a sales tax bill to replace the one recently declared illegal by the state Supreme court. Other revenue producing measures also are being considered.

Mayor Kelly presented his proposal for a provision in the sales tax bill to use the revenue for general governmental purposes after relief needs have been satisfied. The mayor proposed this plan as a means of reducing real estate taxes.

Besides the governor and the mayor at yesterday's conference were Corporation Counsel Sexton, James McCahey, president of the school board; Emmett Whealan, president of the county board; Thomas J. Bowler, president of the sanitary district, and Municipal Court Clerk Joseph L. Gill. Among the members of the legislative committee are State Senators Richard J. Barr and Arthur Huebsch and State Representative Joseph Rategan.

38 Forest Camps to Be Established in Michigan

Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commanding the Sixth corps area, announced yesterday that camps are to be established soon at 38 sites on state lands in Michigan, to which members of the civilian conservation corps being trained at Fort Sheridan will be assigned for reforestation work. On Wednesday and Thursday of last week the camp sent 18 companies, numbering about 2,500 men, to work in national forests in Washington and Oregon.

ASSEMBLY GROUP WILL OPEN MILK QUIZ HERE TODAY

Given Extensive Powers to Subpœna Records.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Vested with extensive powers to pry into the affairs of the fluid milk industry of the Chicago area, a legislative committee from Springfield is scheduled to open hearings on local dairy conditions this morning.

The committee includes four representatives from northern Illinois dairy producing areas and three representatives whose constituents are primarily interested in milk and cream consumption. It is headed by M. F. Hennebry [Dem., Wilmington] and will begin hearings in the county building at 10 a. m.

Granted Wide Authority.

The resolution adopted by the house of representatives, upon which the hearings are based, states that many Illinois farmers are being deprived of a market for their dairy products in Chicago, and that widespread dissatisfaction exists among the dairy farmers over present methods of paying them for their milk and cream. It empowers the committee to subpœna milk company and farm organization officials, as well as city officials, with all accounts, records or files containing information of value to the committee's investigation.

The officials who have been subpoenaed, together with the books and records of the concerns they represent, include: M. J. Metzger, secretary, Bowman Dairy company; Dr. F. D. Walmsley, president, Borden's Farm Products company of Illinois; M. O. Maughan, secretary, Milk Council, Inc., an association of milk companies in the Chicago area; and two officers of the Pure Milk association, farmers' bargaining agency: H. A. Pfister of Prairie View, president, and Don N. Geyer, secretary.

Charges Before Committee.

Representative Frank A. McCarthy [Rep., Elgin], a member of the investigating committee, declared yesterday that the principal charges before the legislators were that Illinois farmers are being paid lower prices for their high quality, inspected and approved milk and cream used in Chicago, than are farmers in Wisconsin; that the Pure Milk association had allotted to its members four years ago a basis upon which they would share in sales to Chicago milk companies, this "base" now being obsolete and discriminatory; and that hundreds of farmers in northern Illinois were being deprived of a fluid milk market in Chicago by virtue of collusion and agreements between the Chicago milk companies and the Pure Milk association.

Take Cream from "Surplus."

McCarthy, himself a member of the association, said that the committee was expected to find out just what prices the milk companies are paying farmers for milk and cream, and into what channels of trade the milk was going. He claims that large amounts of milk now being purchased by the companies at butterfat prices [ranging from 61 to 77 cents per hundred pounds, or 46½ quarts] are being converted into cream that retails at 15 cents per half pint.

D. N. Geyer, secretary of the Pure Milk association, and recently named temporary administrator of the milk industry in the Chicago area, declared yesterday that many of the committee's charges were groundless or unfair.

FIRE ATTACKS BOAT ON LAKE; 3 ENDANGERED

J. J. Marek, 1819 West 13th street; his son, Harold, 14 years old, and Henry Engles, 2975 North Lawndale avenue, were imperiled yesterday morning when their 22 foot motor boat, Rose Marie, caught fire about two miles off the lake shore at 50th street. The trio were on their way to the World's Fair.

The blaze was extinguished after the interior of the boat was damaged considerably. The boat was towed to the Jackson park harbor by a pleasure craft which came to the rescue.

Marek, the owner of the boat, said that the automatic fuel pump failed. He repaired it, but upon starting the motor again there was a backfire and flames leaped from the motor. A life preserver was strapped on the boy and he remained in the water while the men put out the fire.

BANDITS DRINK, THEN ROB STORE.

Two bandits took a round of soft drinks yesterday in the Walgreen drug store at 7400 South Halsted street and then held up the manager, Leo Solomon, robbing him of $100.

FARMERS LEARN FARM BOARD AID CAUSES LOSSES

Milk Co-operative Affairs Are Investigated.

Cleveland, O., May 28.—[Special.]—More than 2,000 northern Ohio farmers have learned how costly it can be to them when the federal government steps in to finance their business, and local taxpayers are aroused at the charges of mismanagement of funds on the part of the federal farm board, as a result of recent developments in the affairs of the Ohio Farmers' Co-operative Milk association here.

So serious are the implications in this attempt by a federal agency to "relieve farmers" hereabouts that the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce has it under scrutiny and a thorough investigation is under way at the direction of the Cuyahoga County Bar association.

The coöperative, in days gone by, had a membership of 3,600 farmers. It built a big milk plant and the farmers began paying for it by deductions from their milk checks. Just as it was becoming a financial monstrosity through reverses in 1930 the federal farm board was created with millions to loan.

Helps Obtain Loan.

W. F. Schilling, dairy member of the board, who had helped to form the coöperative, came to the rescue by pushing through a loan for the association, already heavily obligated to its membership, taking the physical assets as security. The business continued in the red. Less than two years later the farm board went into court and obtained entire control of the co-operative, appointing one of its employés as receiver. The farmers, holding more than $800,000 in certificates of indebtedness on the concern, withdrew from the association and filed suits to share in the remains of the wreckage.

State courts ruled that the contracts signed by farmers to sell all of their milk through the association were valid, and that those member farmers who failed to do so had no claims against the defunct coöperative. Their certificates, given in lieu of cash for their milk, became worthless, while the farm board ordered the property sold.

Sold in Bankruptcy.

It was taken over by a reorganized association of 1,000 farmers, who elected to remain with the farm board and its waterlogged assets. These were sold in bankruptcy here the other day for $406,000. The buyer, Frank T. Bishop, is reported to have paid for it with farm board funds, and is acting as general manager of the new concern.

Bishop, a former vice president of the Guardian Trust company, assumed the job only when assured of ample capital from the farm board to operate the business. The new farm board loan has been placed at $650,000, made prior to the farm board's passing out of existence in Washington yesterday. About $60,000, most of it interest, is due from the defunct coöperative.

When the farm board first made its loan to the farmers in 1930, the Cleveland chamber of commerce vigorously opposed such action. It has not publicly commented upon the loan to the new concern, reserving action until the County Bar association has reported on its investigations.

Among the charges being run down by the bar association are: That farm board employés have a personal interest in the coöperative and have used influence to get additional federal funds; that the farm board is loaning new funds to the same management the association had before it went into bankruptcy; that two bidders were ready to pay more than the sale price, one as high as $600,000, if the farm board would agree not to finance any other dairy coöperative in the Cleveland area; that attorneys have purposely kept the coöperative in legal entanglements for three years; and that the farmers connected with the association have been mulcted repeatedly during the last seven years.

GIRL TRIES SUICIDE IN AIRPLANE 1,500 FEET ABOVE GROUND

Scranton, Pa., May 28.—(AP)—Miss Alice Rockey, 19, of near Montrose, was recovering in a hospital today from what police said was an attempt to commit suicide in an airplane while 1,500 feet above the Scranton airport.

Investigators said the girl slashed her wrists with a razor and swallowed a quantity of poison.

Harold Swank, pilot of the plane, told police she engaged him to take her on a sight seeing flight last night. He said he noticed something was wrong with his passenger after reaching the 1,500 foot altitude and landed as quickly as possible.

MAY TAKE FIGHT FOR 6 HOUR DAY TO PRESIDENT

New York, May 28.—[Special.]—Twenty-one railroad brotherhoods fighting for the introduction of the six-hour day on American railways may take the issue direct to President Roosevelt, it was indicated today by A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and chairman of the Railway Labor Executives' association.

Mr. Whitney was in this city on his way to Washington to attend a conference of the railroad brotherhoods at which the 6-hour day will be considered.

Expressing disappointment over elimination of the six-hour day section from the emergency railroad transportation act as passed by the senate Saturday, and entertaining little hope of modification of the bill by the house in a manner providing for a reduction of hours of labor, Mr. Whitney denounced congress as "reactionary" and declared that the railway brotherhoods, backed by the American Federation of Labor, would now redouble efforts to install reduction of working hours as essential to economic recovery.

As part of their efforts, Mr. Whitney indicated that the brotherhoods would try to enlist the support of President Roosevelt.

HIGHEST COURT TO ACT TODAY BEFORE RECESS

Washington, D. C., May 28.—(AP)—The Supreme court tomorrow will close its present term, not to be in session again until Oct. 2.

John [Jake the Barber] Factor is awaiting in Chicago word from the court as to whether he must go to England to be tried on charges connected with an alleged $8,000,000 swindle.

The president and several of the vice presidents of the American Tobacco company probably will be advised tomorrow whether they must return large sums of money received under a stockholders' resolution adopted in 1912 which authorized the payment to them of some of the annual net profits of the company.

HUBBELL GAINS ON LON WARNEKE IN BASEBALL POLL

NEW YORK VOTE IS 4 TO 1 FOR GIANTS' HURLER

Here's Latest Total on All-Star Game.

BY ARCH WARD.

Warneke vs. Hubbell, Chicago vs. New York. That seems to be the story of the principal contest for honors in the nation wide poll to determine the National league's outstanding players for the games with American league stars at Comiskey park July 6.

CARL HUBBELL.

The returns published this morning include New York, Pittsburgh, Omaha, Neb.; Lincoln, Neb.; Sioux City, Ia.; Louisville, Ky.; Wichita, Kas., Minneapolis, Minn.; Quincy, Ill., Topeka, Kas.; Little Rock, Ark.; Memphis, Tenn.; Streator, Ill., and Chicago.

Warneke has been the fans' favorite pitcher since the voting started a week ago. While only 13 of the 55 cities conducting polls have as yet turned in tabulations, it is apparent that Warneke and Hubbell are going to have a battle all the way.

New York 4-1 for Hubbell.

New York's early returns showed the Giants' southpaw running ahead of the Cubs' ace, 4 to 1. If that percentage continues it will cut down the lead Warneke acquired in Chicago and other centers. Warneke has a margin of only 755 votes. More than 50,000 have been cast for 27 pitchers.

Rules of the contest provide that three pitchers shall work for each team. The managers, who will be appointed by the presidents of the league, will have the say as to the order in which the hurlers will work. The three pitchers who receive the greatest number of votes will be selected.

The early voting eliminates all doubt as to the players who will appear in a few positions. But fans who conscientiously believe another man is better equipped to represent his league are urged to give him a vote. Great players frequently are forced out of the game from injuries or illness. The candidate who holds the runnerup position will be chosen in this eventuality.

Bartell Leads Even in Pittsburgh.

Klein of Philadelphia, Paul Waner of Pittsburgh and O'Doul of Brooklyn are leading the outfielders, but the fight for the utility position promises lively competition. Berger of Boston, Lindstrom and Lloyd Waner of Pittsburgh are closely grouped.

Bartell of the Phillies has maintained a 9 to 7 lead over Vaughan of the Pirates for the shortstop job. It is interesting to note that Bartell is running ahead in Pittsburgh, Vaughan's stamping ground, by almost the same margin as in the national vote. Pittsburgh fans are not so sure of their favorites as other cities in the poll. Hartnett, Cubs' catcher, who leads the national tabulations by 3 to 1, is only a 9 to 7 choice. Frisch of the Cardinals is ahead of Herman of the Cubs about 7 to 5, while his lead in the grand totals is nearly 3 to 1.

Before the next returns on National league players are published, votes will have been counted from Boston, Cincinnati, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Detroit, and other major league cities.

Must Give Batting Order.

Fans who are sending their lineups to THE TRIBUNE are reminded again to list the players in batting order if they wish a chance to share in the $500 prize money. The national vote has no bearing on the order in which the athletes will face the plate. This detail rests with the manager.

The ticket sale for baseball's biggest game opens Thursday. Orders will be accepted only by mail. Applications must be accompanied by cashier's check or money order. Instructions as to where to address orders will be announced tomorrow o. Wednesday. The prices will be $1.65 for box seats, $1.10 for grandstand and 55 cents for bleachers. The free list at Comiskey park will be suspended for this game.

HODAPP TAKES BIG SIX LEAD WITH .383 MARK

Johnny Hodapp of the Boston Red Sox climbed into first place in the big six and among the American league's batsmen yesterday as he climaxed his rise with five hits in nine trips to the plate, adding five points to his average to bring it up to .383. He displaced Sam West, still on the injured list, whose mark is .381.

Pepper Martin gained a tie with Pie Traynor for the National league lead, making the day's only other gain among the leaders. He picked up one point with three hits in eight times up. The standing:

M'LARNIN GOES AFTER CORBETT'S CROWN TONIGHT

Welterweights to Fight in Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 28.—(AP)—James Archibald McLarnin, whom Los Angeles summarily dismissed as just another fighter after a campaign here eight years ago, returns tomorrow night against Young Corbett III., bent on correcting the error.

A baby faced youngster of 17 Jimmy was then, battling as a flyweight. Now, at 25, he has challenged the right of the Fresno, Cal., southpaw to the world's welterweight title.

The bout is scheduled for ten rounds, with Corbett in his first defense of the championship favored by a goodly margin to turn back the threat of the Irish youth from Vancouver, B. C.

Corbett Is Favored.

Superior strength and weight, coupled with his unorthodox fighting stance, favor Corbett, but McLarnin, with his impressive list of knockouts, his clever footwork and dazzling speed seems to question the logic of the odds against him.

Corbett, for several years classified as the uncrowned champion of the welterweights, won the title three months ago when he defeated Jackie Fields at San Francisco.

Prior to that time he had defeated Young Jack Thompson and Fields in nontitle bouts. In his 141 fights Corbett has lost decisions only twice.

McLarnin Fought 71 Times.

While Jimmy started fighting a year earlier than Corbett, he has had only 71 bouts, winning 18 by knockouts. George Blake, nationally prominent manager of Fidel Labarba, former world's flyweight champion, will referee the main event, which is due to start at 12:30 a. m. Chicago time.

The fighters will weigh in at 3 p. m. tomorrow, with McLarnin expected to tip the scales at 145 pounds or less. Corbett expects to have no difficulty making the 147 pound limit, but probably will weigh around 149, ringside.

A crowd of 25,000 is expected.

The Tribune is offering $500 in cash prizes to the fans who come closest to naming the teams. The first award of $250 will go to the person who comes closest to naming the starting lineups [batting order] and the three pitchers for each team in the order they work. The fan who selects the National league's starting lineup with starting pitcher will receive $100. A similar prize will be presented for the American league team. Fifty $1 prizes will be distributed among the fans who can name the six pitchers.

In case more than the allotted number qualify for the awards, the prizes will go to those whose selections reach The Tribune first.

TWO KILLED AS RACE CAR LEAPS SPEEDWAY WALL

Indianapolis, Ind., May 28.—(AP)—William Denver of Audubon, Pa., and Robert U. Hurst of Indianapolis rode to their deaths today while preparing for the 500 mile automobile race to be run here Tuesday.

They were riding in the same car in which Al Aspen, Philadelphia pilot, crashed on last Monday. Aspen was only slightly injured. With Denver, an experienced driver, at the wheel, the speedster this midafternoon got out of control as it roared into the turn leading out of the back stretch. It barged through the upper retaining wall, hit a tree, and burst in flames.

Thrown Clear, But Burned.

Both Denver and Hurst, who was the mechanic, were thrown clear of the car but were burned. They were unconscious when picked up by Speedway employés. Denver died en route to a hospital and Hurst died just after being admitted.

Denver had just made one circuit of the track, preparatory to trying to qualify the car. His speed was estimated at 105 miles an hour at the time of the accident.

Denver was 32 years old and Hurst was 31. Each was married. Denver raced here two years ago, but dropped out after 102 miles.

It was the fourth accident of the qualification tests. Speed Gardner of Pittsburgh, who suffered a fractured left thigh several days ago, was the most seriously injured of the other men whose cars got beyond control.

14 Cars Qualify.

Fourteen drivers qualified their cars above the required speed of 100 miles an hour over a 25 mile distance, thus assuring a full field of 42 starters.

Thirty previously qualified. The two slowest cars of the group—driven by Jerrill [Doc] Williams of Franklin, Ind., and Sam Palmer of Los Angeles—automatically were eliminated.

Those who qualified today are:

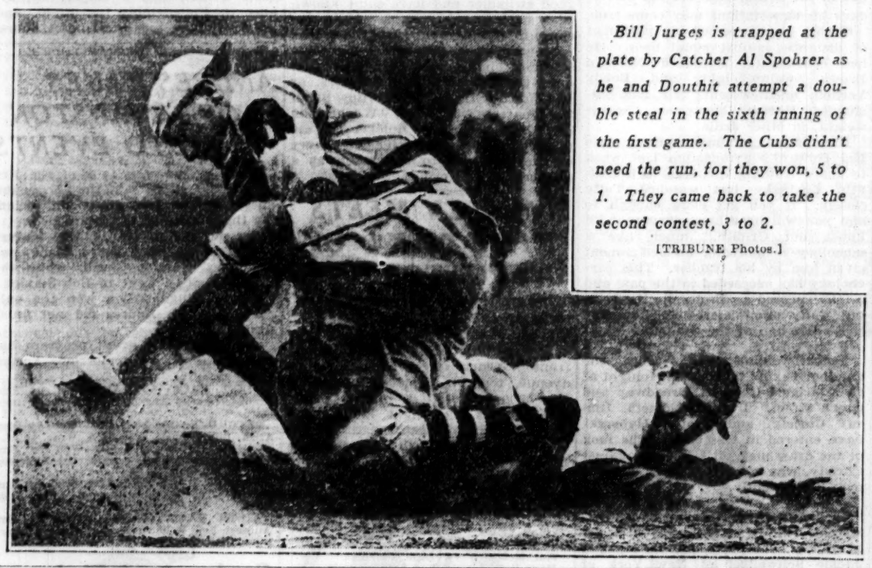
Does It Pay to Slide? Not Always

Randy Moore reaches third base safely in the first inning of the first game of the double header between the Cubs and Braves yesterday. Woody English is putting the ball on the Boston outfielder, who advanced no farther.



Bill Jurges is trapped at the plate by Catcher Al Spohrer as he and Douthit attempt a double steal in the sixth inning of the first game. The Cubs didn't need the run, for they won, 5 to 1. They came back to take the second contest, 3 to 2.

Sparta, Swedes Enter Finals for Peel Soccer Cup

Sparta and Swedish-Americans advanced to the finals of the Peel cup soccer competition yesterday by winning semi-final games.

Sparta defeated the Maccabees, 3 to 1, at Sparta stadium, and the Swedes took the measure of the Bricklayers, 5 to 2, at De Paul field. Before meeting the Swedes, the Brickies played the remaining minutes of a protested game with the Norwegians and held their 3 to 2 advantage, which was acquired a week ago.

Vlick gave Sparta a one goal lead in the first period of yesterday's game at Sparta stadium, but early in the second half Huber tied it for the Maccabees. Later in the period, Turik netted the second Sparta goal, and then Vlick added another.

The defeat of the Bricklayers was regarded as a surprise, but it, however, marked the second time this season that they have been whipped by the amateur champions.

The final between Sparta and the Swedes will be played as part of a double header at Soldiers' field on June 11. The other game will involve the Toronto Scots and the Stix of St. Louis, national cup winners.

RUTH'S 3 HOMERS WHIP SOX TWICE, 2 TO 1 AND 9 TO 7

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 28.—Old Babe Ruth is still a spectacle as well as an annoyance. He was a spectacle to 50,297 today, but to the White Sox he was just a source of constant trouble. He uncorked a home run and single in the first half of a double header and personally scored the runs by which the world champions triumphed, 2 to 1. He hit two more homers, Nos. 8 and 9 for the season, in the second game to assist in repulsing the Chicagoans, 9 to 7.

Outside of the doddering old Babe, the opening fight was principally a matter between Sam Jones, another old campaigner; Vernon Gomez, the Yanks' dazzling southpaw, and Evar Swanson. The crafty Jones hurled beautifully and effectively to all except Ruth and Lou Gehrig. Gomez was equally brilliant, although slightly lucky to escape runless in an inning in which the Sox had three men on bases with none out. And Swanson made himself prominent because of a homer, which was the only run off Gomez.

Ruth's second heroic smash of the day put the Sox out of the second battle almost as soon as it started. It came in the first inning with a man on base. This was the only hit Milt Gaston allowed until the fifth, but the argument then became a rout involving a parade of pitchers. The Yanks kept on scoring, one run being due to Babe's drive over the fence off Red Faber in the seventh, and the Chicagoans kept on chasing the champions.

FIRST GAME

It was well for Jones, and other members of the Sox ensemble, that a double play was consummated prior to Mr. Ruth's initial appearance in the first inning of the first game. Combs led off with a walk. Jones struck out Sewell and Combs was doubled going to second. Then the Babe, after the count had reached 3 and 1, blasted No. 7 into the right center field bleacher beyond the 350 foot sign.

A pair of singles was all the Sox accomplished against Gomez in the first three innings, but Swanson got results in the fourth. He opened with a drive into the left field seats for his first American league home run.

The Yanks moved ahead in the sixth with what proved the winning run, but the Sox had no reason to complain about that. They were satisfied that Janes escaped without more damage from two hits, two walks, and a wild pitch. Ruth singled to right and pulled up at third when Gehrig doubled to center. Chapman walked to fill the bases with none out. Lazzeri bounced sharply to Dykes, who grabbed the ball, touched third to force Gehrig, and then threw to first to double the batter. Ruth scored while this was going on.

SECOND GAME

The difference between Ruth's homer in the first game and No. 8 which he uncorked in the opening inning of the night cap was only a matter of feet. The first passed beyond a 350 foot sign, but the second vanished in the neighborhood of a 429 foot indicator in right center. Sewell was on base at the time, having been walked by Gaston.

From the moment of Ruth's home run in the first until the end of the fourth, there wasn't even the semblance of a hit off Gaston. Then came the fifth. Lazzeri reached for a wide pitch and singled to right. Dickey drilled one in the same direction, and both advanced on Crosetti's bunt. Allen fanned, but Combs doubled to center, scoring a pair. T en Combs came in on Sewell's single past Dykes.

Sox Finally Score.

All the Sox could show after five innings against Allen was a lone single. But they opened up in the sixth

SOAR TO FIRST DIVISION WITH TWO VICTORIES

Bush and Tinning, Warneke Pitch.

BY EDWARD BURNS

The rising Cubs gave the sinking Braves a double licking in yesterday's double header, 5 to 1 and 3 to 2, and thereby edged up within 4½ games of the league leading Pirates. They now share fourth place with the Cincinnati Reds.

The second victory was the fifth in a row at Wrigley field and the seventh straight the champions have achieved at the expense of Boston. It was effected only after much suffering and mental anguish. The Cubs scored the tying run after two were out in the eighth and two were out when Bill Herman drove home the winning marker in the ninth.

Tough Decision for Tinning.

In the first game Bush was credited with his fourth victory of the year, although he worked only four innings and allowed seven hits in his curtailed performance. Because he left the game with a wrist injury suffered in the third inning he technically was eligible for the verdict of the official scorer. The decision awarding the game to Bush was a bit tough on Bud Tinning, however. Bud pitched the remaining five innings and held the Braves to two singles, one in the sixth and the other in the eighth.

In the second game Lon Warneke again played the rôle of arm and bat man in registering his seventh victory of the year. Lon's double drove in Bill Jurges with the first Cub run, which established a 1 to 1 tie, and his single put Jurges on second, in scoring position with . e run that won the ball game in the ninth.

Lon Not as Steady as Usual.

Warneke, in the pitching phase, was not quite as steady as usual, but there couldn't be much kick, for he allowed only one earned run. He gave up seven hits and the two which were for extra bases blossomed into the two Boston markers.

Woody English and Bill Jurges shared the day's slugging honors, not forgetting a vital pinch single by Mark Koenig in the eighth ining of the second game and Bill Herman's deciding smack to end the afternoon's endeavors.

In the first game Woody drove in the first three runs with a single and a double and in the second game he scored the tying run in the eighth after doubling. Jurges doubled to drive home Hartnett in the sixth inning of the first game and two of his three singles in the second game developed into runs.

The Cubs completed their first home stand against the eastern clubs with a record of nine victories and four defeats. They swept their three game series with the Brooklyn Dodgers and their four games with the Braves. They lost two out of three to the Giants and the same adverse ratio resulted from their meeting with the Phillies.

Manager Grimm Chased.

Manager Grimm was chased in the seventh inning of the second game because he tried to convince Umpire Barr that Gabby Hartnett's drive over the left field wall was fair instead of foul by a fraction of an inch.

The Cubs now are above the .500 mark for the first time in weeks and weeks with 20 victories to 19 defeats. This is only three fewer wins than the first place Pirates have acquired. The Pirates have lost six fewer, however. The Cubs go to Pittsburgh tonight to battle the leaders in three games.

FIRST GAME

The Cubs were held to one run in the first inning after an auspicious start. Douthit opened the Chicago offensive with a single to left and went to third on Bill Herman's single to right. English also singled to right, scoring Douthit and putting Bill Herman on third. Bill Herman tried to score on Babe Herman's short fly to Mowry, but failed to touch the plate. Demaree then fanned.

The Braves made five hits off Bush in the first three innings and twice got runners to third, only to have the third out arrive before run production could set in.

English Bats in Two More.

English drove in two more runs in the third. Bush walked and when Douthit bunted, Knothe threw too late to force Bush at second. Bill Herman also bunted, but forced Douthit at second. English then socked a double to the left field corner, scoring Bush and Bill Herman. Babe Herman lifted another easy fly to Mowry and Maranville threw out Demaree.

The Braves stirred up something of a ruckus in the fourth, but emerged wth only one run. Urbanski walked and stopped at second on Spohrer's single. Maranville singled, Urbanski scoring and Spohrer stopping at second. The runners moved up on Brandt's sacrifice, but got no farther because Knothe fouled to Grimm and Mowry was called out on strikes.

Bush Credited with Victory.

The striking out of Mowry was Bush's last professional act of the afternoon. Guy injured his right wrist in going after Moore's grounder in the third and decided to retire at the end of the fourth when the injury continued to give him pain. On this basis he was recorded as the win-

ANOTHER WORLD FAIR DERBY! WILL IT RIVAL 1893?

Washington Park Echoes Stories of Old Race.

BY FRENCH LANE.

This is American Derby week at Washington Park. Great expectations are in the air, because that last World's Fair American Derby in 1893 furnished a story which has lived vividly in the lore of the turf for 40 years.

Another Drama Saturday?

"Impossible," say the old blades who were young blades in the nineties when that Columbian Exposition Derby was run.

They point out that a field of from 16 to 20 will go to the post in this 25th renewal of American Derby. They don't think Boundless, St. Leonards, and Clifford, which finished one, two, three in the Derby of '93, compare with such horses as Head Play, Ladysman, Mr. Khayyam, Charley O., and others which will play the leading rôles in Saturday's Derby.

Only the running of the race itself will prove whether the old blades or the new have the correct notion of things. It has been arranged that the same old silk purse will be dangling on a wire and will contain the prize for the winner this year. Not in gold, as in 1893, but a certified check.

Head Play, despite the defeat he suffered in the Wood stakes in New York nine days ago at the hands of Mr. Khayyam, rules as the Derby favorite at the beginning of Derby week. He was quoted last night at 3 to 1. Ladysman was at 4 to 1, Mr. Khayyam at 5 to 1, and Kerry Patch at 8 to 1. If one wanted to back any of the other probable starters, including Trace Call, two from Willis Sharpe Kilmer's barn, Northgalls, from California; Bamboula, the Illinois Oaks winner; Technique, De Valeria, Warren Jr., Utopian, Fair Rochester, Red Whisk, Isaiah, Misguide, Graceful Lad and Pot Au Brooms, he could just about write his own ticket.

Better Races This Week.

Derby weeks opens this afternoon with a card which shows a big improvement over those of the first week of the Washington Park season, both as to class and numbers. All the eight races are well filled and there should be much contention in every race, a fact which will make it most difficult for the expert handicappers to center on the winners.

The Century of Progress purse at 6 furlongs has attracted ten of the best sprinters at Washington Park, including Isaiah, Mr. Joe, Ebony Lady, Polydorus, Cathop, Marooned, Merrily On, and Warren Jr. Four or five well meant American Derby candidates are in the field.

Derby Trial Tomorrow.

For the holiday program tomorrow the Thomas Curran Memorial Stakes for 2 year olds will be the feature, but more interest may be shown in the Derby Trial purse, which will bring to the post practically all of the western Derby candidates with the exception of Head Play and Trace Call. The trainers of these two colts believe their charges are fit and ready for the Derby and do not need the Derby Trial to put them on edge.

While the racing promises to be of the highest type all week, it is the Derby which will command most attention and keep the old blades arguing with the new right up until the time the field parades to the post.

Hyde Park Legion to Place Wreath on Eckersall Grave

The Hyde Park post No. 34 of the American Legion, will place a wreath and fire a salute over the grave of Walter H. Eckersall, former football star at the University of Chicago, and for many years a sport writer for THE TRIBUNE, in Oakwoods cemetery tomorrow morning at 9:45 o'clock. Commander Emmet F. Byrne will lead the color guard and firing squad.

Lee Humphreys Arrives; to Ride Derby Favorite

Lee Humphreys, the leading jockey in America, arrived at Washington Park yesterday and is to go into action this afternoon. His contract was purchased recently by Mrs. Silas Mason of New York, owner of Head Play. He will ride Head Play, the favorite, in the American Derby Saturday.

Some of the eastern candidates for the American Derby will arrive as late as Thursday. Several of them are staying over in the east to run in the Withers stakes at Belmont Park tomorrow.

Knight Commander, one of the great sprinters in the country two years ago, broke down so badly in his race at Washington Park Saturday that it was found necessary to destroy him. He was owned by the Peconic stable of which Jim Norris of Chicago is the proprietor.

The unbeaten filly, Advising Anna, may be given a race tomorrow or Wednesday and if she makes a good showing her owner, Mrs. Jack Howard, may decide to start her in the American Derby.

Earl Sande, the former jockey idol, is to reach the Chicago racing scene within a few days. In the rôle of trainer he is bringing the horses owned by Col. Maxwell Howard of Ohio. The stable has been quartered at Belmont Park for several weeks.

Tuffy Griffith Shows Boxing Skill in Gym

Tuffy Griffith expects to whip King Levinsky when they meet in a 10 round bout Friday night at Mills stadium. If he shows the boxing ability against Levinsky that he has in the gymnasium for the last 10 days his expectations may come true.

Griffith has corrected his judgment of distance against small men. He has consistently outboxed Norman Brown, welterweight, and Bobby Vernon, middleweight. He has outslugged Harvey Mortenson, heavyweight, in other drills.

Ever since Levinsky moved into Kid Howard's gymnasium last week to share training quarters with Griffith, Levinsky has watched Tuffy closely. If you get close enough to him you will hear him murmur, "I'll knock out Griffith," much like a schoolboy memorizing an assignment given him by his teacher. This psychology has succeeded in the past and it may succeed again despite the beating Tuffy administered to Levinsky two years ago at the Stadium.

Featherweights will feature the amateur boxing tournament tonight at the Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street. Irving Goldstein, Jimmy Christy, and George Haberski have entered in this class. The luck of the draw may pit Goldstein against Christy, who received a close decision over him recently.

Jackie Sharkey, Minneapolis featherweight, will be making his first appearance here since March, against Jackie Schweitzer of New York at Western stadium tomorrow night. The match is the six round semi-final to the eight round battle between Karl Ogren and Kid Leonard. Sharkey held Johnny Pena to a 10 round draw at Washington Boulevard arena in his latest start here. Since then he engaged in five contests at Minneapolis, winning four.

Johnny Fitzpatrick, Freddy Gravelle, Curtis Mills, and Eddie Chinski have signed to appear at the Johnny Coulon club tomorrow. Seven matches will comprise the card.

Bob Groshek, Gary middleweight, has accepted a contest with Bud Saltis at Northwest stadium Wednesday. Young Scotty will meet Eddie Stiegal, Harry Booker is to box Tod Lelly, Mickey O'Shea will face Einar Hedquist and Biff Bennett is matched with Jack Robinson in bouts at four rounds. Walter Jerz, who was booked to meet Bobby Vernon, was taken off the card because of an ear injury.

Ray Tramblie has signed to box at Northwest stadium on June 7. His opponent may be Eddie Gill . . . . Johnny Phagan and Bucky Lawless will clash in the windup of the opening outdoor show at Sparta stadium, June 9. . . . Billy Gladstone is to leave for Eau Claire, Wis., Wednesday to battle Iowa Joe Rivers there Friday.

Scouts! Get Ready for Trip on Fox River

BY BOB BECKER.

It will be good-by to shingle roofs, feather beds, and gas stoves for the Chicago Boy Scouts who are selected to go on the annual TRIBUNE Scout cruise down the Fox river next month. On this trip the Scouts put up their own shelter at night and make their own beds.

The 1933 cruise, open to first class Scouts who have swimming merit badges and know how to paddle a canoe, will be patterned after the five previous TRIBUNE expeditions, which have taken Chicago Scouts on the Rock, Muskegon, Tippecanoe, and Flambeau rivers. Ten or twelve 16 foot canoes, each carrying two Scouts and their duffel, make up the fleet for the cruise.

There'll Be Swimmin', Too.

During the day the cruise leader sets the paddling pace in order to bring the party to the next camping spot on time, with an allowance of time for swimming, lunch, and nature study. Upon arrival at the night's camping location every Scout has to pitch his pup tent and make his bed, while the kitchen police squad peels potatoes and does camp chores. The "hot groceries" which the members of the cruise are given are cooked over open wood fires in real camp style. There are "seconds" on every meal. After dinner comes the big camp fire story telling hour, with stunts, singing, and music.

Besides the fun offered by a camping and canoeing trip of this kind the Scouts who go on this cruise will have a chance to improve their paddle work by daily lessons in canoecraft, to be given by Vincent Smith, commodore of the American Canoe association. Mr. Smith, for years a leading figurfe in canoe racing regattas, will have charge of the water regatta held on the last day of the trip. Throughout the trip he will give daily tips on how to navigate and race canoes.

Make Application Now!

A Scout must hold first class ranking or better to be eligible for THE TRIBUNE cruise. He also must be a good swimmer and have some knowledge of how to swing a paddle, because tipovers are taboo on the cruise.

Scouts wishing to join this trip down the Fox should make application at once through their Scoutmasters, or file direct with Roy Alm, Boy Scout headquarters, 9 West Washington street, Chicago. The quicker the application is filed the better the chance of the applicant to be chosen as a member of the cruise.

M'MILLEN MEETS PINETZKI ON FRONTON CARD

Jim McMillen, who holds several victories over Joe Savoldi, will meet Leon Pinetzki of Poland in the windup bout of a wrestling show at the Rainbo fronton, Clark street and Lawrence avenue, tonight. Pinetzki is one of the largest wrestlers in the game, standing six feet eight inches, and weighing 282 pounds.

The semi-windup will bring together Bronko Nagurski, former Minnesota football player, who plays regularly with the Chicago Bears, and Abe Kashey. Nagurski has been wrestling only a short time. It will be his first appearance in Chicago. The card:

Jim McMillen vs. Leon Pinetzki.
Hans Kampfer vs. Lou Sun Jennings.
Bronko Nagurski vs. Abe Kashey.
Everette Marshall vs. Darna Ostapovich.
Wee Willie Davis vs. Dr. Karl Sarpolis.

JACK DEMPSEY.

Fulfilling his promise to test the fighting ability of the two men he has matched in the Yankee stadium June 8, the old champion took on Baer for two minutes in the sun scorched ring on the same amusement field where he trained for his international duel with Georges Carpentier in 1921.

Jack today was anything but the trim, merciless fighter who smashed down Carpentier 12 years ago, but for a minute and a half he clouted the 210 pound Baer with left hooks to the head, drew blood from his nose, and chased him around the ramshackle ring.

For 90 seconds Dempsey did this, with Baer clowning, backing up, covering, never throwing a punch. Then age told on the old champion. He slowed down and started wheezing. Baer came out of his shell and landed a left hook to Dempsey's stomach. Jack doubled up, puffed in close, and then gladly called it a day as the seconds shouted "Time!"

But all in all, with a crowd of 2,000 cheering him on in his old surroundings and celebrities of another day looking on from the sidelines, it was one of the most stirring exhibitions of Dempsey's career.

He has been living chiefly on a diet of black coffee to keep up with this business of promoting, and his training consisted of brisk rubdowns. He got three hours' sleep last night and drove hundreds of miles to cover Lake Swannanoa, a benefit appearance in Philadelphia last night, and his stunt here today, all in 24 hours.

GOLF OFFICIALS NAME SITES FOR AMATEUR TRIALS

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The United States Golf association is not allowed the imminence of the national open tournament to dim the fact that it annually holds an amateur tournament, won by persons named Jones, Evans, Ouimet, and occasionally a Canadian called Sandy Somerville. This was made plain yesterday with the announcement of the dates and sites of the sectional qualifying rounds for the thirty-seventh annual United States amateur event, together with the deadline for entries.

The fee for entering the amateur is $5, and each entrant must state his club, handicap, and the district in which he intends to qualify. Entries close at 6 p. m., July 20, at the offices of the United States Golf association, 110 East 42d street, New York.

Play 36 Holes.

The sectional elimination rounds, 36 holes each, will be held in 22 different cities on Aug. 8. The championship proper will be decided at the Kenwood Country club, Cincinnati, O., from Sept. 11 to 16, inclusive, one of the few major tournaments not awarded to Chicago in A Century of Progress year. The U. S. G. A. will award a medal to the player, who, having registered from his own district, returns the low score for 36 holes. Contestants playing districts other than their own will not be eligible for this medal.

Canadian entrants will be required to qualify in the district most convenient to them, recalling the case of Sandy Somerville last year. Sandy led the entire field last year in qualifying at Cleveland and then went on to win the title in the tournament at Baltimore. As defending champion, he will be exempt from qualifying this year.

150 to Qualify.

The number of qualifiers for the tournament at Cincinnati will be determined for each district after entries close on July 20, depending upon the number of entries and playing strength of each district. One hundred and fifty players will be eligible for the tournament in September, with ten additional places being reserved for emergencies.

Honolulu and Nashville are the two additional sites for the trials this year. The sites for the cities which will conduct qualifying tests on Aug. 8 follow:

CHICAGO—Bob O'Link Golf club.
NEW YORK—Siwanoy Country club.
BOSTON—Brae Burn Country club.
PHILADELPHIA—Whitemarsh Valley Country club.
WASHINGTON—Columbia Country club.
ATLANTA—Atlanta A. C. [East Lake course].

PORTLAND, ORE.—Tacoma Country and Golf club.
OMAHA—Omaha Field club.
CINCINNATI—The Camargo club.
NASHVILLE—Belle Meade Country club.
HONOLULU—Waialae Country club.

Start Play Sept. 11.

In the tournament proper at Cincinnati, eighteen hole qualifying rounds will be held on Sept. 11 and 12, with the low 32 scorers advancing to the match play rounds, which will be held at eighteen holes on the morning and afternoon of Sept. 13 and at 36 holes on Sept. 14, 15 and 16.

Golf School Classes Are Re-scheduled

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Late comers to THE TRIBUNE golf school caught up with their classmates yesterday by attending special lessons given on most of the courses of the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association, sponsor of these free instructions. Men, women, boys, and girls attended the lessons which consisted largely of a summing up of what was taught earlier in the week. Some of the clubs plan to continue the Sunday afternoon classes throughout the duration of the six weeks of instruction.

Most of the clubs have announced changes in schedule for the men's classes, which normally would be held tomorrow. Some are conducting them tonight, others are postponing them until the following Monday, and still others are combining the men's class with the women's on Wednesday night. Pupils taking lessons at courses which have not announced their plans in THE TRIBUNE are advised to communicate with the club today.

Change Lesson Dates.

As a substitute for the Memorial day lesson, which is postponed to the following Monday, Evergreen has arranged a special match in which four of the club professionals will take part. All of the pupils are invited to watch Al Megeff, Don Gardner, Ray Hutchison, and Joe Takach play a round, illustrating the principles taught during last week's lessons. Play will begin at 4 p. m.

A similar match has been arranged at Mid-City for the benefit of the pupils, the players being Norman Faunce, Eddie Gayer, Joe Tivnan, and Frank Springer. This match also is scheduled for 4 p. m.

ning pitcher, the rules specifying that a pitcher who retires with a lead because of injuries before he has pitched five innings may be awarded the verdict, in the judgment of the official scorer.

Tinning took over the pitching job at the start of the fifth and shut out the enemy on two separated singles the rest of the way.

SECOND GAME

Jordan rapidly responded to his elevation to the lead off spot. He opened the game with a triple to deep right center and trotted home when Bill Herman threw the relay into the dugout. Urbanski fanned and Moore fouled to English, after which English threw out Berger, giving Jordan's marker the unearned stigma.

Frankhouse Scores After Double.

Frankhouse doubled to start the fifth, held second while English was throwing out Jordan, and scored when Moore singled to center. Moore proceeded to third when the ball got past Douthit. Berger was given an intentional pass and then English threw out Spohrer.

At the outset of the Cub seventh Hartnett drove the ball over the left field wall, but it was on the wrong side of the flagpole by about 1-16 of an inch. At first the Braves thought Umpire Barr had called the ball fair and there was a grand rush of Braves for the umpire, who hastened to explain his gesture had been misinterpreted. Then Manager Grimm made a rush and was banished for his effort. It was apparent that most of the customers thought the ball was fair, though it did not appear so from the press stand. Hartnett, after circling the bases, tried again and lined to Urbanski.

Koenig Hits in Pinch.

CALL OFF STRIKE OF 1,200 CITY WHITE WINGS

Carrozzo Puts an End to Sympathy Walkout.

The unofficial strike of 1,200 city street sweepers, who walked out last Thursday after hoodlums had appeared at ward yards and threatened them with violence, was called off yesterday by a unanimous vote of the union membership. The men will go back to work today.

The street sweepers' strike was tied up with that of city chauffeurs in the ash and garbage disposal and water repair services, who are members of the outlaw teamster unions controlled by Murray Humphries, William [Three Finger Jack] White, William [Klondyke] O'Donnell and Marcus [Suddy] Looney.

Carrozzo Denies Blame.

The street sweepers are members of Local 361 of the Hodcarriers, Building and Common Laborers' union, of which Michael Carrozzo is the boss. Carrozzo has denied that he had anything to do with the strike of his men, asserting that the gangsters who threatened them were from the striking teamster unions. Members of the street sweepers' union have said privately, however, that they recognized some of the men who told them to quit work as Carrozzo's agents who collect their dues from them.

Carrozzo disclosed yesterday that he had received orders from national headquarters of his union in Brooklyn to bring the unofficial strike to a close and to coöperate with the city administration in its fight against gangster dominated unions. He called a special meeting of the union yesterday afternoon in the Engineers building, 205 West Wacker drive.

Policemen on Hand.

Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker appeared at the meeting with a detail of 25 policemen to see that gangsters kept hands off the proceedings. They saw no known hoodlums there, they reported.

Carrozzo spoke for an hour, denying that he had anything to do with the strike. He urged the union members to return to their jobs today and to stay there.

He called for a vote of the 1,200 men crowded into the meeting hall and the motion to return to work was carried unanimously. A single member who started to lift his hand against the motion lowered it when his action was greeted with a storm of boos.

JAMES LOEB, ONCE N. Y. BANKER, DIES IN GERMANY

MUNICH, Germany, May 28.—(AP)—James Loeb, retired banker, philanthropist and scholar, who was born in New York City Aug. 6, 1867, died yesterday at his home in Murnau, near Munich.

James Loeb was the son of Solomon Loeb, founder of the banking house of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. He joined his father's firm after graduation from Harvard in 1888, but retired in 1901 and has lived in Europe since 1905. His wife died two months ago. Two sisters, Mrs. Isaac M. Seligman and Mrs. Paul M. Warburg, survive.

Mr. Loeb was noted as an art collector, writer, sculptor and cellist. He founded the Psychiatrical Experimental institute in Munich, now part of the Kaiser Wilhelm institute. During the war he organized food ticket distribution in Munich and after the war directed the infant feeding work through American relief. He endowed a convalescent home and the Institute of Musical Art in New York and a music conservatory at Harvard.

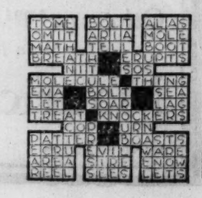
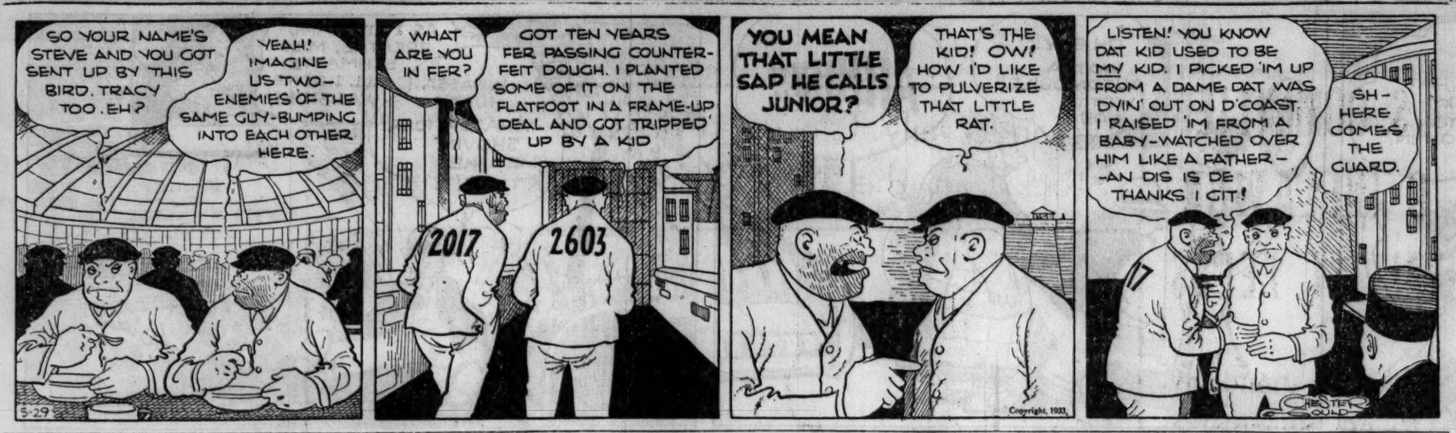
SATURDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



DICK TRACY—Biography



PUBLIC WORKS EXPENDITURES SLASHED 30 PCT.

1932 Report Compared with 1928 Peak.

Mayor Kelly was informed yesterday that the expenditures of the department of public works out of the city's corporate fund decreased 30 per cent last year in comparison with 1928, a peak year under a former Republican administration. The information was contained in a report submitted to him by Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works.

The decrease in expenditures was from $14,432,160 in 1928 to $10,059,636 in 1932. This decrease was effected notwithstanding the absorption by the department of public works of the department of compensation, the building maintenance and repair of other city departments, and the establishment of the bureau of central purchasing.

Further Savings Seen.

The economies were carried out under the late Mayor Cermak and Col. A. A. Sprague, then commissioner of public works. Commissioner Hewitt did not take office until January, 1933, but during his tenure has effected a number of additional economies that he believes will lower expenditures still further.

The corporate fund appropriations and expenditures of the department for the years 1928 to 1932, inclusive, were as follows:

Year—	Appropriation.	Expended.	Balance.
1929	14,658,110	12,845,158	1,812,951
1930	11,999,767	11,655,250	344,516
1931	12,852,647	10,825,551	2,027,096
1932	11,094,561	10,059,636	1,034,925

Cermak was elected mayor in April, 1931, and it was after he took office that economies were instituted that resulted in a salvage in the appropriations for that year of $2,027,096.

Comparison of Expenditures.

A comparison of the 1928 and 1932 expenditures on the principal activities of the department show decreases in the latter year as follows: A decrease of $646,762 in the cost of operating and maintaining bridges and viaducts; a decrease of $3,248,473 in the cost of street and alley cleaning, removal of garbage, ashes and other refuse, and other activities of the bureau of streets; a decrease of $414,626 in operating and maintaining the sewer system; and a decrease of $470,801 in the expenditures of the bureau of parks, recreation and aviation.

REVIEWS SKARDA ACT'S RECORD IN TAX COLLECTIONS

$10,288,017 Paid Since It Became Law.

The collection of $10,288,017 in real estate taxes since the passage of the Skarda act on April 28 has demonstrated the effectiveness of this law in forcing collections, according to County Treasurer Joseph B. McDonough.

These real estate tax collections since the bill's passage include $5,471,608 in current taxes, the 1931 levy, which do not come within the scope of the Skarda law. This act provides for the appointment of the county treasurer as receiver to collect the income from properties delinquent in taxes up to and including 1930.

Hastens 1931 Tax Payments.

"But the Skarda act hovers as a shadow over the taxpayers and hastens the payment of the first installment of 1931 realty taxes, which became delinquent last April 8," said Thomas D. Nash, attorney for the county treasurer.

For the week preceding the enactment of the Skarda bill by the legislature the collection of delinquent 1928, 1929, and 1930 real estate taxes was $350,233, in comparison with the collection of $1,208,875 for the similar period in the previous year.

Since the passage of the Skarda act the collection of delinquent 1928 realty taxes has been $555,845 for the period from April 28 to May 26. The collections for the other three years, 1929, 1930, and 1931, since the passage of the act are shown in the table below, those for the period from April 28 to May 13 being carried opposite the latter date and those for May 15 to May 20 being given opposite the date May 20. There were no collections on May 21, Sunday. The table follows:

May 13....	$ 514,901	$ 971,381	$3,798,111
May 20....	460,107	557,277	800,345
May 22....	34,019	104,227	228,619
May 23....	17,667	98,278	126,794
May 24....	112,373	298,361	209,649
May 25....	97,620	111,901	98,350
May 26....	337,608	544,844	209,749
	$1,574,295	$2,686,269	$5,471,608

Uncollected taxes for 1928, 1929, 1930, and 1931, from which Saturday's collections have not been deducted, total $272,525,023, which includes the second installment of 1931 real estate taxes, on which the penalty date is now Sept. 1.

3.6 Per Cent Paid Since April 28.

The day before the Skarda act was passed the total of uncollected real estate taxes was $282,813,040. Thus 3.6 per cent of the real estate taxes unpaid at that time have been paid since the enactment of the law.

County Treasurer McDonough has filed 700 petitions for tax receiverships under the Skarda act, involving more than $15,000,000 in delinquent taxes. County Judge Jarecki will hear 75 of these petitions today, in addition to adjudicating 25 petitions held over from last week. The judge has appointed the treasurer as receiver for 20 properties.

Her death recalls the $500,000 gift in 1906 to St. Luke's hospital by James Henry Smith, wealthy New York banker known as "Silent" Smith, for the erection of the George Smith memorial addition which now fronts on Michigan boulevard. George Smith was a partner of the elder Carter in Galena and later was a Chicago banker. Upon his death 30 years ago in London he left a large fortune to his nephew, "Silent" Smith. In recognition of the friendship between the Smiths and the Carters, the gift was made to St. Luke's hospital and a large portrait of George Smith hangs in the hospital reception hall.

CHILE TAKES OVER BIG ESTATES TO PARCEL TO IDLE

Forces Employes' Loan to Finance Project.

BY NORMAN INGREY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, May 28.—An enforced loan from private employes' savings funds is to finance Chile's first attempt at land expropriation and division and, according to the law just published, the government will rely principally on a betting tax to pay the interest during the early years of the scheme.

The law fulfills President Arturo Alessandri's chief election promise and embodies reconciliation of the conflicting views of the Conservative, Liberal and Radical parties regarding agricultural policy, and the large measure of political agreement in passing the law bodes well for its success.

Parcels Big Estates.

Some of the biggest estates of the country will be expropriated, with cash compensation to owners depending on the degree of cultivation. These will be parcelled in farms of 500 to 1,000 acres and allotted first to those with a small capital and equipment and then to those with no capital but farming experience. Foreigners who have lived in Chile for 10 years will be included.

The law provides for collective colonization principally by ambitious farm workers and families of unemployed. Urban unemployed will be transported to the farms and given not only agricultural instruction, but also provided with schools, churches and social clubs. The government intends to maintain families intact and make farm homes happy "during the hard, disillusioning years that mark the beginning of all land settlement."

Effort to Fix Prices.

Expropriation, division, and operation plans are intrusted to the Agricultural Colonization institute, a state organization identified with rural development for several years. The institute will prepare a coöperative marketing society in which the new farmers will be represented and with which the government will attempt to insure fixed, reasonable prices for products. State institutions will be compelled to give preference to these products and state railroads must grant them reduced rates.

The law "requires" employés' savings societies to subscribe the greater part of 150,000,000 pesos [nearly $20,000,000 at par] to finance preliminaries of the plan. The societies in 1932 had surpluses well over the sum required. This money, counted as a loan and bearing 6 per cent interest, will be used to expropriate the first farms.

Interest Guaranteed.

The institute will pay yearly amortization of 1½ per cent, and the state from ordinary revenue and the betting tax will cover interest and amortization for four years. Afterwards the state will pay up to 1 per cent of these commitments if the institute cannot do so. Once a colonist has held the same allotted land for 15 years and mastered the agricultural profession he cannot be expelled.

INFLATION DIMS OTHER FACTORS IN GRAIN TRADE

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Inflation of commodity prices, with wheat in the lead, is the program of the government at Washington. It is understood that grains, especially wheat, are to be advanced to a level where farmers will get cost of production. What the latter is no one knows.

It is the impression of many in the trade that 80 to 90 cents for wheat in Chicago may not be out of line. The ideas of the new men who have taken hold of the agricultural department are not known. They are working on an inflation plan which, from general reports, would mean possibly close to $1 a bushel.

There are intimations that were wheat to be put to around 90 cents, it would possibly do away with the necessity of a processing tax on flour. Other reports suggest that the government leaders prefer such a tax.

See Government in Control.

Traders who have followed the news from Washington, made a close study of the situation and have had their opinions backed up by government men in a position to know, say that commodity prices are going higher under the influence of sentiment and support from the government. The latter is to furnish the news that will bring sufficient buying to carry prices up.

There has never been a situation like the present, as viewed by trade leaders, who say that those who have worked on the theory that the government is in control are right in their position and that it is best to forget all about markets of the past, the crops, export, visible supply, and weather conditions, and work on the inflation plan. Eastern operators who have had the best of information, long before it reached Chicago, have been active in the wheat market on both sides at times, and are said to have been most successful.

Prices Rally Sharply.

At the low point of the week prices were off around 7 cents from the recent top. At the close they were only slightly under the highest of the season. The week's range covered about 7 cents, with the close on May wheat 73⅝ cents, July 74¾ to 74½ cents, September 76½ to 75⅞ cents, and December 78½ to 78¼ cents.

Net gains for the week were 4¼ to 4⅝ cents. Winnipeg gained 2½ to 2⅞ cents, with the close on May 65 cents, July 65⅜ cents, and October 67⅜ to 67½ cents. Liverpool futures gained 1¼ to 2¼ cents, May being the weakest at 60¾ cents, with July 62 cents and December 65½ cents. Prices for the week follow:

Two Sided Corn Market.

Traders regard the corn market as a more two sided affair. Those who believe that the late planting will result in a short acreage and a reduced yield are bullish and buy on every weak spot. Traders who say that corn planting on the highlands this year will furnish the bulk of the crop and be sufficient for home requirements, are bearish, and sell on bulges.

The average opinion is that corn will be late in getting into the ground and that good prices should prevail throughout the year. Stocks are the largest known in recent years at terminal markets and liberal in the country. Holders of corn in southern Minnesota and Iowa sold cash corn to arrive in liberal volume the last two days of the week, while Illinois and Indiana did little selling. Shipping demand is limited, despite the low lake rates, 1¼ cents from Chicago to Buffalo. Prices moved within a range of about 4 cents and finished with net gains of 2⅜ to 4 cents, the latter on December, which closed at 51¼ to 51⅜ cents. May finished at 44⅞ cents; July, 46¾ to 47 cents; September, 49 to 49⅜ cents, and December, 51¼ to 51⅜ cents. Prices for the week follow:

Farm Lands Join Parade of Business

Farm land is beginning to move again, according to reports from Iowa. The call seems to be for small tracts. O. J. Ness of Decorah, Ia., bought 17½ acres for $2,500, an average of $142.50 an acre. Dave Baker of the same place bought 20 acres with fair improvements at $1,700, or $85 an acre. A. E. Reeck, wanting a farm home on a school route, searched the consolidated school routes of Fayette, Randalla, and Maynard, Iowa, without success. He located north of West Union, off the school route.

The relatively high position of the Chicago live stock market during the last few weeks, which is attributed to the expected increase in World's Fair demand for meats, has been drawing supplies from the western part of the country that formerly went to markets on the western coast. Otto Stinnette, manager of the Equity elevator of Herndon, western Kansas, says that freight is his principal item in shipping to Chicago, yet he found that he was able to sell everything to advantage on this market for the last month.

It never rains but it pours in Kansas, according to an old trade axiom. Private reports said Burdette, Kas., and vicinity received six inches of rain the other night.

A traveling salesman who returned from a 5,000 mile auto trip through the south and southeast early this week, while noting a marked betterment in business, said: "Wait until congress adjourns, and then we can talk about some real improvement."

La Salle street is a prolific source of rumors. Among those heard yesterday was one to the effect that negotiations were under way at Washington for the sale of a million bales of cotton to China. Confirmation was lacking.

Tractors can be heard popping all night long in many sections of the corn belt where the ground is workable. It is nothing unusual to see tractors plowing at midnight and later. Many tractors are going day and night, with double shifts. There is very little sleep these days for the farmer who has no one to relieve him.

Grasshoppers are not expected to be as numerous or as injurious to crops in Minnesota, the Dakotas, and Montana as they were last year, although grain men in the northwest express the belief that weather conditions will largely determine the seriousness of hopper operations. They say dry weather is favorable for their development, while cool, rainy conditions would greatly diminish the damage.

The other evening a woman from New Britain, Conn., was sitting in the home of a friend in Holland, Mich. She chanced to hear Mayor Kelly telling of the plans for "Let's Go, Chicago" over the radio. At 9 o'clock next morning she was in the office of Paul Kunning in the Chicago Association of Commerce asking for posters and literature so she could show the folks back in Connecticut how alive the people are in Chicago.

ARGENTINE CITY MAKES AN OFFER TO BONDHOLDERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 28.—The municipality of Tucuman, Argentina, has notified holders of its external 7 per cent sinking fund bonds, due on June 1, 1951, of which about $3,000,000 is outstanding in this market, of a temporary offer of readjustment with respect to interest payments due during the period from Dec. 1, 1932, to June 1, 1935.

The offer provides for the payment of 60 per cent of such coupons in cash in United States dollars and 40 per cent [$4 for each $1,000 bonds] by the delivery of a transferable interest bearing scrip certificate, payable in United States dollars and redeemable out of sinking fund moneys after June 1, 1935. Cash payments of the Dec. 1, 1932, and June 1, 1933, coupons will be made when the bond is deposited under the plan and other cash payments when due.

U. S. COMMITTED TO INFLATION, WALL ST. FEELS

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 28.—Any lingering doubts that may have existed in the Wall street speculative mind that the share market is bent on a major recovery movement were effectually removed by last week's developments in the administration's credit inflation program.

The open market operations of the federal reserve, the move to abrogate the gold clause and finally the presidential decree authorizing heavy purchases of government securities by the postal savings bank as a further means of increasing currency circulation all combined to clear up the question to the satisfaction of the most skeptical.

Government Means Business.

The veriest tyro now knows—or thinks he does—that the "new deal" government means business in its drive to boost prices and the opinion is pretty generally held that it is going the whole route even to drastic dollar devaluation. This influx of solid conviction has been reflected in the last two days in a frenzied outburst of fresh speculation on the stock exchange that has sent values kiting in a manner unparalleled in the whole preceding two weeks of the upswing.

Saturday's dealings were the second heaviest for a week-end session in the history of the market, and the largest of any Saturday on record when the market was advancing. Mainly due to the exceptional strength of Saturday and Friday afternoon the last registered an average appreciation for the week of nearly 14 per cent. Its rise from the March lows, as measured by the indexes, has amounted to 33 points, which compare with the 28 point upturn of last year's so-called late summer advance.

Surmounts September Levels.

One highly significant fact about the week's bullish demonstration, from the professional viewpoint, was that the list finally succeeded in surmounting the September levels, a barrier which has been holding it back for more than two weeks and one which many believed would turn it back for a severe technical reaction and an indefinite wait for more convincing reports on business improvement. Talk of this "inevitable setback" has completely dried up since the gold clause repeal move in congress—a fact which leads some veteran observers to believe it may now come about. However, the market was going like a house afire when the gong sounded on yesterday's bull romp and if it follows the rule its acquired momentum ought to give it a good start on the new week.

There is no doubt that speculative sentiment is more bullishly rampant in the street now than it has been since the big smashup in 1929. The public is in with both feet and they are buying wildly and indiscriminately in all directions. Indeed, brokers say that much of the buying is of what is known as an "uninformed" character and almost any customer's man of the district has a story to tell of some client who bought some stock because he "liked the name of it," and rolled up a handsome profit for his venture.

Thought It Aviation Stock.

The tale of the amateur who bought Seaboard Airline because he thought it was an aviation stock has had many variations in gossip going the rounds of the boardrooms during the last few weeks. And just how "possible" some of these stories are is shown by a survey of the long list of low priced stocks that have trebled and quadrupled in value. Some of them indeed are now selling eight to ten times as high as they were before the bank holiday.

Nor is inflation the whole argument for the constructive side of the picture. Trade indices undoubtedly are growing better and better for all the hullabaloo and extravagant claims. Some steel trade authorities estimated last week's operations at 42 per cent of capacity—the highest since the end of May, 1931. Electric power output and freight revenues now exceed those of a year ago by a margin that is steadily growing wider. Mercantile activity continues encouraging, automobile factories are getting busier and commodity prices climb higher and higher.

BRITISH ASSAIL U. S. FOR PLAN TO ABOLISH PAYMENTS IN GOLD

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, May 28.—Strong criticism of the United States is being made in the British press over the Steagall bill to abolish the obligation to pay debts in gold.

"Repudiation of the gold clause may be held to be justified, as Walter Lippmann sought to justify it, on the ground of public policy and interest, but it is none the less repudiation," writes the financial editor of the London Times. "It is true that to determine the value of money is one of the attributes of sovereignty, but to draw a parallel between the losses sustained by America's deliberate stoppage of gold payments and the subsequent repudiation of the gold clause is to confuse the issue."

Under the heading "Legalizing the Fraud," the Financial News editorially says:

"It does not go to the length of sabotaging the world economic conference in advance, but it is bad enough. It is bad enough that a civilized country having 40 per cent of the world's gold should descend to the trick of locking up that gold and declaring to its creditors it has lost the key and cannot pay them. It is bad enough that a civilized country, to quote the New York Times, should by a formal congressional act repudiate a solemn, explicit engagement of which the government has long since obtained the fruits.

"The capitalist system has survived many shocks and doubtless will survive this one, but a contract is the whole basis of capitalism, and the deliberate shattering of contracts on this scale must leave its marks on the system for generations to come."

UTILITY HOLDING FIRM PERMITTED TO REORGANIZE

Wilmington, Del., May 28.—Chancellor J. O. Wolcott has signed an order granting the receivers for the American Commonwealths Power corporation authority to consent to the amended plan dated Aug. 17, 1932, for the reorganization of the Wisconsin Fuel and Light company, the Northern Indiana Fuel and Light company, and the Michigan Fuel and Light company.

The receivers were also given authority to consent to changes in the plan providing they do not change the original terms. They were also given authority to consent to the liquidation or dissolution of the Interstate Fuel and Light company and distribution of its assets.

U. S. GAMBLING IN ECONOMICS, N. Y. BANK SAYS

Doubts Success of Industrial Bill.

The federal government is rushing in where others fear to tread when it assumes responsibility for the regulation of an economic system the workings of which are beyond the comprehension of any individual or group, the Guaranty Trust company says in discussing the pending industrial recovery bill in its June economic survey.

There can be no argument with the view that the state should promote the economic well-being of its citizens but the question is an essentially practical one as to whether the government can succeed at such regulation, the bank believes.

Discusses President's Authority.

Discussing the authority granted to the President by the bill under which he may approve voluntary agreements within industries and between industry and labor, the bank declares that the administration will require integrity, intelligence and alertness of the highest order.

"To meet these stringent requirements with reasonable adequacy would appear to demand a higher grade of public service than has ever been achieved in the past," it adds. "And for every error, every miscalculation, every failure of the system to function according to expectations, the blame will fall squarely on the shoulders of the government.

"It is not without reason that men of practical experience in economic affairs have consistently demanded that business be kept out of politics. The industrial recovery bill, if enacted, will carry business into politics on scale unprecedented in this country."

Sees Retreat Possible.

The bank adds, however, that a retreat from this type of experiment can be made in case of failure with less permanent damage than some of the other experiments that are to be tried.

Regarding the current revival in business the bank finds it the "most impressive since the beginning of the depression." There is ground for hope, the bank believes, that the current improvement will obviate the necessity of using some of the "drastic and dangerous experiments in currency tinkering."

ENGINEERS PUB. SERVICE GROSS EARNINGS LOWER

New York, May 28.—The Engineers Public Service reports for the year ended on April 30 that its consolidated gross earnings were $43,030,958, against $49,464,360 in the preceding year, and its net operating revenue was $19,774,063, against $22,366,950. Net income, after depreciation, underlying dividends, minority interest, taxes and charges, was $3,297,225, which was equal, after preferred dividends, to 51 cents a share on the common stock, comparing with $5,973,459, or $1.91 a share, for the preceding twelve months.

For the parent company only, the revenues were $3,431,603, against $5,438,546 the year before and the balance for the common stock was $839,857, or 44 cents a share, against $2,770,981, or $1.45 a share.

'LET'S GO, CHICAGO!' WEEK GIVES FURTHER IMPETUS TO BUSINESS

Promotional market events connected with the "Let's go, Chicago" campaign helped to increase wholesale and retail turnover in Chicago during a week marked by steel operations at above 40 per cent of capacity, sales of passenger automobiles in excess of earlier estimated, and a gain in electricity output over that for the comparable period of 1932, according to trade observers of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Sales at retail were considerably ahead of the averages for the same period last year. This applied in outlying shopping districts as well as in the loop department stores. One of the larger stores reported a 10 per cent gain over last year and another a 15 per cent gain.

This increase at retail had a quick and stimulating effect upon the wholesale business. Wholesalers in lines of women's apparel were particularly busy during the week, and through them increased orders were rushed to the local garment shops. One large wholesale house did business on Monday, which in various lines on orders for immediate delivery alone was from 25 to 30 per cent over the levels of the same day last year.

SILK WORKERS PRESENT PLAN FOR INDUSTRY

Paterson, N. J., May 28.—(AP)—A program for reorganization of the silk industry was outlined today by the American Federation of Silk Workers for presentation to the federal government as part of President Roosevelt's industry recovery plan. The cardinal points of the workers' plan were:

Thirty hour work week; one shift system; minimum weekly wage, $36; two loom operation in order to take care of surplus workers dropped by adoption of the one shift system; and accord and cooperation with the proposed plan of licensing manufacturers as "the only method of keeping the manufacturers in line."

The meeting today took place at Associated Silk Workers' hall and the federation's executive committee approved the recommendations as adopted by the workers at meetings yesterday. A subcommittee of the Federation of Silk Workers will place their plan as outlined above before the International board of the United Textile Workers of America tomorrow.

HAROLD EDWARDS SLATED TO HEAD WOOL INDUSTRY

Boston, May 28.—(AP)—The National Association of Wool Manufacturers announced today that Harold S. Edwards had been selected to succeed Franklin W. Hobbs as president.

Hobbs, head of the organization for eight years, recently tendered his resignation in order, he said, that an executive might be found who could give his entire time to development of the wool manufacturing industry under the provisions of the national industrial recovery act.

In his resignation, Hobbs stressed the desirability of electing a man not connected with the industry. Hobbs is president of the Atlantic Mills, large factors in the woolen business.

Illinois Group Joins the Fight on Control Bill

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 28.—Joining the increasing number of business interests opposed to President Roosevelt's industrial control bill representatives of the National Association of Manufacturers and the Illinois Manufacturers' association will appear before the senate finance committee tomorrow to protest passage of the bill in its present form.

James A. Emery, general counsel for the national association, after criticizing the labor and business control features of the bill, called it a move toward state Socialism.

Sees Harm to Industry.

The bill would retard rather than promote business recovery, Mr. Emery declared, and "nip in the bud" the business recovery already manifesting itself.

"It will do this in our judgment," he went on, "first because it will transfer with a stroke of the pen all control and authority over every aspect of business operation and management from its private owners and managers to a government bureaucracy. Nothing is so illusory and ill founded as the assertion widely disseminated, that this legislation primarily gives to business and industry the power and authority to regulate itself. Nothing may be done without government sanction and approval. Anything may be ordered or may be forbidden by presidential edict.

Fears Effect on Trade.

"In the second place it will retard business and industrial recovery because with increased prices and without correspondingly import control, the American manufacturers will be under increased competitive handicaps in the home markets and foreign goods will undersell and displace American goods with consequential decline in production at home and added unemployment—less work instead of more for the American worker."

Mr. Emery also objects to the gasoline and income tax rates.

UTILITY EXPECTS NO COMPETITION IN TENNESSEE

New York, May 28.—B. C. Cobb, chairman, and W. L. Wilkie, president, of the Commonwealth and Southern corporation, in the report of the company for 1932, issued today, state that they find it difficult to believe that the Tennessee Valley authority will build transmission lines, "particularly in view of the fact that this corporation and its subsidiaries have offered to purchase surplus power generated by the government as rapidly as it can be absorbed."

The report, signed by the two officers on May 27, adds that their offer to buy power provided also for its redistribution to consumers "at rates which will give full recognition to any savings made by the government in the cost of generation."

The executives predicate their belief on the authority's abstention from the building of lines on adequacy and economy of service as provided by the present companies in the entire territory within transmission distance of the Tennessee Valley.

According to the report, $8,678,000 of long term bonds was sold in 1932 by subsidiary companies and $4,964,100 of subsidiaries' bonds was retired through payment at maturity.

STEEL INDUSTRY NOW UP TO 43%; DEMAND VARIED

Needs of Many Lines Broaden Market.

With the national average of steel works operations at 43 per cent at the close of last week, demand from farm implement manufacturers, construction enterprises, automotive, refrigerator, and washing machine producers, and even to some extent from railroads, is broadening the entire iron and steel market foundation, says the magazine Steel.

Steel ingot production last week continued to advance in most districts. At Wheeling, W. Va., the rate was 80 per cent; Cleveland, 59; New England, 58; Birmingham, 50; Youngstown, 47; Detroit, 38; Chicago, 37; Buffalo, 33; Pittsburgh, 27, and eastern Pennsylvania, 19½ per cent. There are prospects of further expansion in some areas this week.

More Railway Repair Work.

"Direct reflexes of gains in freight car loadings are heavier pig iron and steel shipments for railroad repair work; the expected placing of 10,000 tons of rails by the Norfolk and Western, and the reopening of the Edgar Thomson rail mill," observes Steel.

The magazine reports that some farm implement makers who had planned to suspend for the summer will keep on producing. Automobile output for this month will probably surpass the original estimate of 200,000 units by 25,000, with prospects of equal activity in June.

Improvement in structural steel is manifest in awards of 17,000 tons. From another source it has been learned that the most encouraging factor in the Chicago area steel situation is the increase in structural inquiries, persuading producers to anticipate that next month's schedules will be at least as high as in May.

Federal Projects Foreseen.

"A better outlook for federal projects also has quickened demand for pipe," says Steel. "Chicago sanitary district improvements ordered by the government will take 10,000 tons of cast pipe. Large inquiries are developing in eastern cities."

May sales of pig iron by lake furnaces, increasing to 150 per cent over sales for April, have exceeded all expectations, says the journal. The tonnage placed so far this year is larger than the entire amount for last year. Furnaces have piled up backlogs that will probably carry them, at the present rate of operations, through the third quarter. Tin plate output is now 80 to 85 per cent, Steel reports.

With an increase of 19,828 tons in exports to 100,395 tons for April, the United States attained the highest export level in two years. Imports gained only 5,947 tons to 28,061.

Await Third Quarter Prices.

"In practically all finished steel lines in which advances have not already been announced for third quarter, consumers are pressing for prices with mills reluctant to name them until further clarification of federal industrial control and its effects on costs," declares Steel.

The magazine's iron and steel price composite this week is unchanged at $28.50; the finished steel composite remains $45.10; the scrap composite is off 4 cents to $9.37.

Meat Packing Production Increases 5 Pct. in April

Production in meat packing plants in the United States rose 5 per cent in April over March and was 2 per cent over the like month of 1932, according to the monthly federal reserve report. The production was 3 per cent above the 1923-'32 average for the month. Sales billed to foreign and domestic consumers in April rose 7½ per cent over March, but were 8 per cent under 1932.

DO NOT EXCHANGE!

Associated Gas & Electric Company

Your attention has been called by the Company to a "Plan of Rearrangement of Capitalization" proposed under date of May 15, 1933; in various recent notices the Company has urged the prompt deposit of debentures under such plan.

A preliminary study of the Company's plan has, it is felt, adequately revealed the plan's UNFAIRNESS to the debenture holders, in as much as they are called upon to make the only substantial sacrifices.

Holders of large amounts of debentures are now organizing a representative committee for the protection of the interests of all debenture holders.

It is expected that the complete list of names of members of the committee will be announced shortly and that holders will be asked to deposit their debentures with the committee.

Until further announcement, holders of debentures are urged NOT to turn in their debentures for exchange under any one or combination of the exchange options proposed by the Company.

Dated, New York, May 27, 1933.

BRITISH EXPECT BETTER TIMES; TURN TO STOCKS

Rise in Commodity Prices Inspires Cheer.

BY SIDNEY CAVE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 28.—Expectations of better times consequent upon the recovery of commodity prices have been the motive force behind buoyant markets again last week with the rise gathering momentum.

An exception to the rule was the gilt-edged section, where drooping first class stocks contrasted sharply with a growing demand for commodity shares and industrial equities. Stock market sentiment continues optimistic with regard to future developments and the only obstacles to recovery are believed to be political and economic problems left over from the slump.

The momentary disarmament conference crisis and the approach of the war debt installment due date, June 15, do not seem to be adverse market influences. Sentiment rather clings to the belief that the evidence of a real trade recovery both here and in America is convincing.

Rely on Roosevelt Plans.

It is believed President Roosevelt will eventually realize his aim of raising commodity prices and that at least some real stimulus will be derived from the world economic conference.

Regarding actual business many brokers and dealers report greater volume in commodity shares and industrial equities than has been experienced for some time. As long as the tone of the commodity market remains strong the general public is likely to continue to follow the professional lead. The recent strong movement in industrial shares in many cases seems already to have discounted the progressive continuance of recent signs of trade recovery. The gambling spirit is again rampant and there is a tendency to pay fancy prices on prospects.

Many pools are operating in the industrial section and there is danger that the technical structure of the market may become a little top-heavy.

Money Continues Easy.

Conditions in the money market remain much the same as last week. It is still glutted with money and the difficulty in employing funds continues to restrict the discount business. In the foreign exchange market speculative opportunities are few.

The tendency regarding gold currencies changes only slightly from day to day. Comparative stability seems restored and official control does not appear to be operating. Arrangements for Argentine exchange are operating satisfactorily, while the British loan of 10 million dollars to Uruguay for a similar purpose is reported concluded and negotiations are in progress for securing the release of funds immobilized in Brazil.

PARIS MARKET DULL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 28.—The last week in the stock market here has been marked by slack business. Uncertainty arising from the Geneva disarmament conference, the political situation, and the budget situation caused an irregular share market and a persistent drop in rentes and public funds.

The question of the world monetary issue, particularly as pertaining to the United States, is momentarily of little importance compared with Geneva. A week-end slump on the bourse was due to the Ascension day holiday, with only one day before a two day close.

Reports that the chamber of deputies passed the budget caused a flurry in the share market. Stabilization rumors are holding prices fairly firm, but a stand-off policy continues.

The weekly bank statement of gold holdings shows an increase of 25,000,000 francs, which is only fractional.

Am. Smelting Buys Tract from Chief Consol. Mining

Salt Lake City, Utah, May 28.—Purchase by the American Smelting and Refining company of the Grand Central property of the Chief Consolidated Mining company in the Tintic district of Utah for $300,000 in cash and royalties was announced here today. Development of the property with an estimated 600,000 to 1,000,000 tons of low grade ore will be conducted during the summer, it was stated. The ore carries silver, lead, gold, and copper.

Baldwin Works Enters Air Conditioning Business

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 28.—As part of its diversification program, the Baldwin Locomotive works, through its subsidiary, the Baldwin-Southwark corporation, has entered the air conditioning business. More than 70 per cent of the company's business is now represented by its diversified interests outside of the locomotive field.

Writ Against Texas Oil Proration Order Denied

LETTERS

Financial Editor: The whole clothing industry of Chicago, manufacturers and retailers alike, naturally is very much interested in the prices of wool and is very glad to note that you have begun the use of the wool market quotations.

They would be very much more useful, however, if you could arrange to give not only each day's quotations but in another column the prices of a year ago. The advance in prices, as you know, is doing more to stimuate business than anything else, and if the retailers throughout the country can see these comparisons as they see stock market comparisons it would encourage them greatly to make future commitments and naturally have a big effect in putting Chicago workers to work.

DRUG INDUSTRY ACTS TO UNITE UNDER U. S. LAW

Institute Formed to Control Trade Policies.

Pronouncing itself in harmony with the President's program for industrial recovery, the two billion dollar drug industry is uniting, through the formation of the Drug Institute of America, Incorporated, in an effort to maintain fair wages and end sterile competition, it was announced yesterday. Incorporation papers have been filed at Albany and temporary executive offices opened at New York.

Wheeler Sammons of Chicago, former president of the A. W. Shaw company, has been elected acting managing director of the institute by the directors. Other Chicagoans on the board are S. Bayard Colgate, president of Colgate-Palmolive-Peet company, and C. R. Walgreen, president of Walgreen company.

Patterned After Other Groups.

Patterned somewhat along the lines of the American Iron and Steel Institute and the American Petroleum Institute, the new drug organization will regard as its main objectives the maintenance of a high standard of products, control of output to prevent overproduction, maintenance of fair profits and fair wages, elimination of unfair competition and the demoralizing of prices, and protection of the public in buying drug products.

The membership of the institute will be drawn from twelve divisions of the drug industry: Manufacturers of pharmaceutical, drug and chemical products, manufacturers of trade marked medicinal products, makers of toilet articles and of cosmetics, manufacturers of other products generally distributed through drug trade, mutual and other wholesalers dealing in products handled by pharmacies, chain retail stores, independent drug stores, other retail outlets, officers and employés of trade associations connected with the drug industry, deans and members of faculties of colleges of pharmacy, officers of pharmaceutical associations, and members of learned, scientific, public or professional organizations.

Directors from Divisions.

The directors will comprise 20 representatives of the various divisions, 8 elected from the membership at large, and one from outside the active membership. The greater part of the board has already been selected.

Besides the board of directors, there will be a council composed of the directors and at least 30 additional members to be elected by them. The organization of the institute will include ten standing committees, the most important of which will be on merchandising trends, channels and statistics.

READING CO. CAN REGAIN CONTROL OF N. J. CENTRAL

Washington, D. C., May 28.—The Interstate Commerce Commission Saturday authorized the Reading company to regain its control of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey.

The Reading company in 1913 owned 145,000 shares of the stock of the Central of New Jersey, constituting full control. At that time the Reading coal trust case was decided and the stock placed in the hands of trustees.

Lincoln Aid Association.

Please give me all the information you can on the Lincoln Aid Association of Chicago. Do they operate under state insurance laws?—H. M. V.

Being unable to find any data on this association in the standard sources of insurance information, we wrote to the insurance commissioner of Illinois for data on it.

". . . With reference to the Lincoln Aid association, this company was referred to the attorney general for such action as he deemed necessary on April 18, 1933."

War Dance Mines, Inc.

I own a few shares in War Dance Mines, Inc. A strong effort is being made by mail to induce present shareholders to increase their holdings. What would you advise?—C. I. W.

So far as our records indicate the stock has not been qualified for general distribution in accordance with the laws of the state in which you reside. We, therefore, cannot recommend dealing in the shares.

RISE IN COPPER HALTS PLANS TO CURTAIL OUTPUT

Plants Double Operations as Demand Expands.

New York, May 28.—(AP)—An advance of ¼ cent per pound in asking prices for electrolytic copper to the basis of 7¼ cents in the Connecticut valley featured the copper market late last week. Although consumers hesitated to pay the higher quotation, no metal was said to have been available at under the general asking price. Base prices for copper wire were also advanced by ¼ cent to ⅝ cent.

There have been no further developments with reference to curtailment proposals, but the firmer tone is said to be a reflection of reports of increasing consumption, domestic fabrication plants having about doubled operations to an estimated 40 per cent of capacity rate.

Lead Quotations Advance.

Lead quotations also advanced, accompanied by an improved demand from a greater variety of consuming interests. Brass fabricators were among the more active buyers, while a good demand was also reported from battery makers and corroders extending into July deliveries, as well as for nearby requirements.

Gradual but persistent advances occurred in zinc quotations, reflecting, however, firmness in sellers' views rather than improved consuming demand. Dealers were moderate buyers of limited offerings. Expectations of a firmer ore market and reports of increasing steel operations were regarded as contributing factors.

Tin Prices Irregular.

Tin quotations fluctuated somewhat irregularly, influenced by changes in sterling and London quotations. However, the undertone was about steady, owing to limited offerings which were fairly well taken. Tin plate mills increased operations sharply to about 80 per cent of capacity on increased orders from the canning industry.

Although antimony was unchanged, firmness of some other metals attracted moderately improved demand for carload lots.

MEN

What a salesman needs today is something new. WE HAVE IT—ex-clusive, basically sound and patented.

MAKE $75 A WEEK WITH A NEW IDEA Somebody said, "There is nothing new under the sun." However, auto-mobiles, radios, victrolas, sewing ma-chines, vacuum cleaners, etc., were new at one time and made fortunes for salesmen who took advantage of these new ideas.

To men who do not answer ads, yet desire a business that will pay them a fair return for their effort—I sin-cerely believe will be satisfied and happy that they answered this adver-tisement.

MAN TO MAN, this is the best deal in Chicago and offers men of good appearance and reference, WITHOUT ANY INVESTMENT, an unusual chance to make immediately from $38 to $75 a week.

Interviews will be granted between 9 and 12 noon Monday—no other time —Room 608, Mather Tower, 75 E. Wacker-dr. Out of town men write for infor-mation.

SALESMEN WHO ARE BUSINESS BUILDERS HERE IS A REAL DEAL

We are manufacturing and selling mer-chandise of better quality at half the price of competition. Our production system en-abling us to this permanently thus mak-ing our business revolutionary. Salesmen here for a period of time see a future suc-cess as big as the chain store system with the salesmen earning full benefit of volume. Our line is not unusual with our line. Every one who works makes sales. However, the biggest feature is repeat busi-ness for men who are business builders get a 100% repeat business every thirty to ninety days. We solicit interviews with men who have $10,000 a year ideas, who are workers, who have glit edged references, per-manent addresses and are serious about making a real future for themselves and are willing to pay the price of success. Imme-diate income when investment required. Room 706, 8 South Michigan avenue.

A FEW MEN

We are now at the height of our busiest season and require a few more capable men on a full time basis. We honestly believe is the greatest money maker under present con-ditions. Our present organization is proving this statement consistently. If you are sin-cerely seeking a permanent position where you can begin earning a weekly wage with in-come immediately a personal call may prove to be your turning point. Satisfactory finan-cial arrangements on a drawing account basis to those who qualify; $30 a week and more according to ability. Apply from 9 to 11:30 a. m.

MR. JACOBS, MR. ZURER,

STEADY POSITION.

Old investment house is willing to teach you the business and give you your chances. Due to change in our policy and expansion, we will interview men over 25 years of age who can qualify for junior executive positions. Experience in this business is not necessary. Neat appearance, ability to make a serious effort to go ahead; ability to grasp situation and an aggressive spirit is all that you need. See Sales Manager, Suite 312, 208 W. Washington-st.

WANTED—MALE HELP.

MEN

What a salesman needs today is something new. WE HAVE IT—ex-clusive, basically sound and patented.

MAKE $75 A WEEK WITH A NEW IDEA Somebody said, "There is nothing new under the sun." However, auto-mobiles, radios, victrolas, sewing ma-chines, vacuum cleaners, etc., were new at one time and made fortunes for salesmen who took advantage of these new ideas.

To men who do not answer ads, yet desire a business that will pay them a fair return for their effort—I sin-cerely believe will be satisfied and happy that they answered this adver-tisement.

MAN TO MAN, this is the best deal in Chicago and offers men of good appearance and reference, WITHOUT ANY INVESTMENT, an unusual chance to make immediately from $38 to $75 a week.

Interviews will be granted between 9 and 12 noon Monday—no other time —Room 608, Mather Tower, 75 E. Wacker-dr. Out of town men write for infor-mation.

SALESMEN WHO ARE BUSINESS BUILDERS HERE IS A REAL DEAL

We are manufacturing and selling mer-chandise of better quality at half the price of competition. Our production system en-abling us to this permanently thus mak-ing our business revolutionary. Salesmen here for a period of time see a future suc-cess as big as the chain store system with the salesmen earning full benefit of volume. Our line is not unusual with our line. Every one who works makes sales. However, the biggest feature is repeat busi-ness for men who are business builders get a 100% repeat business every thirty to ninety days. We solicit interviews with men who have $10,000 a year ideas, who are workers, who have glit edged references, per-manent addresses and are serious about making a real future for themselves and are willing to pay the price of success. Imme-diate income when investment required. Room 706, 8 South Michigan avenue.

A FEW MEN

We are now at the height of our busiest season and require a few more capable men on a full time basis. We honestly believe is the greatest money maker under present con-ditions. Our present organization is proving this statement consistently. If you are sin-cerely seeking a permanent position where you can begin earning a weekly wage with in-come immediately a personal call may prove to be your turning point. Satisfactory finan-cial arrangements on a drawing account basis to those who qualify; $30 a week and more according to ability. Apply from 9 to 11:30 a. m.

MR. JACOBS, MR. ZURER,

Miscellaneous.

SALESMEN AND MEN ABLE TO LEARN a simplified method of introducing a major specialty of unique character;

If you have to make money now and are prepared to stop waiting for your former business, trade or profession to perform a miracle in your behalf, you may be the man we can use. This is not a part-time or seas-onal job, but requires full-time effort. If you are sufficiently responsible and adaptable to be accepted for one of these positions, we will immediately train you in a method of work that turns present conditions into a practical advantage. When we first dis-covered and began to teach this method of work, even our most experienced men hailed it with enthusiasm and applied it to step-up their earnings. The result was that last year was by far our biggest year and our men earned more than ever before.

To learn this simple and very effectual method requires only a few days' investment and practice [at no cost to you] and you will receive special training later whenever necessary in order to help you increase your moderate initial income. PROVIDED you can show that you are a diligent and con-scientious worker. You must also be able to supply your own reference and that you are to handle our money, as we require no de-posit or investment.

Throughout the civilized world, extraor-dinary success has attended the introduction of this invention. In America, where the first model of this invention was introduced in 1924, a powerful, successful organization has been developed, giving immediate employ-ment to thousands of men from coast-to-coast.
